Benjamin Harrison's Name Still Being Used to Conjure With-Populists Are Sanguine-That Silver-protection Conference.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.) WASHINGTON, March 21.—The American Protective Association, which American Protective Association, which has been a factor in the State and municipal politics of several States for a number of years, has announced its intention to enter upon the field of national politics in the coming Presidential campaign. Its first movement toward this crusade will be taken at a meeting of the supreme advisory board of the organization, called to meet in Washington on Tuesday, March 24. This meeting is reliminary to the sessions of the supreme council, which will be held here is lay. Prominent members of the order from every Congress district in the country will take part in the deliberations of the supreme council and will determine the part which the supreme council will take in the campaign.

P. A. will endeavor to have the amendment made a part of the Constitution. Another feature of the Constitution. Another feature of the programme with which the advisory board will deal is what the political leaders of the A.P.A. call a campaign of education. They declare their literature shall reach every postoffice in the country, and every voter before election day. Senstors and Representatives have heard from the A.P.A. organizations of their States during the past month. The following is a copy of a letter which has come to nearly all of them:

"At a recent meeting of the State council of the A.P.A., a resolution was adopted that we request our Senators and Representatives in Congress to work and vote for the following bills which are now pending: A bill to secure a just distribution of Federal offices, known in the last Congress as 'House Bill No. 8934;' a bill to establish a national university, known in the last session as 'House Bill 8949;' a bill to restrict immigration and regulate naturalization, known as 'Linton's Bill, naturalization, known as 'Linton's Bill, House bill 8774;' Linton's joint resolu-House bill 874; Linton's joint resolu-tion No. 11, amending the Constitution, prohibiting for all time sectarian ap-propriations; a bill to prohibit adver-tisers or others from using the national emblem as an advertising device. and in line with the ideas of the founders of our government.

"We also desire to respectfully call your attention to the fact that it is the design to place in statuary hall a statue of Pierre Marquette. We regard this as a dangerous innovation. The Jesuits have been banished from almost every Catholic country, and yet here in Protestant America they are not only allowed to remain and plot against the liberties of our principles, but it is even now proposed to further violate the principles of church and state by the introduction of the statue of one of these traitors to all governments among the statues of those patriots who have given their lives that government by the people should be preserved; and we appeal to you to use your endeavors so this idea shall not be carried out."

SILVERITES PRESUMED TOO FAR. PHILADELPHIA, March 21.-In ora false impression growing out of the recent secret conference in Washing ton between silver men and Philadelphia manufacturers, three prominent members of the Manufacturers' Club today addressed a letter to Robert Dorn, its president, requesting him to call a meeting of the club for the purpose of informing the country of the real situation of the silver question in the organization. The letter is as follows: a false impression growing out of the

the organization. The letter is as follows:

"Today's papers show that the capital which the friends of free and unlimited coinage of silver are trying to make out of the Washington visit of Philadelphia manufacturers rests upon as unsound and frail a foundation as the whole structure they are trying to erect. An erroneous impression has certainly been spreading over the country that our Philadelphia manufacturers are willing to conciliate the silver Senators by approving free-silver coinage in exchange for additional protection, and has given new life to the agitation for free-silver. This impression should be reviewed in the most public and emphatic manner, and we request you to call a meeting of the Manufacturers' Club to take action and express their opinion on free silver coinage. We desire to know the position of the club on this question.

We have a good fighting chance in Missouri, and are certain of sweeping Texas and will carry every Congress District in the latter State, with the possible exception of three.

"In the South we will carry without question Alabama, Georgia and North and South Carolina. If the union of forces between the silver advocates and ourselves is as harmonious as everything now indicates it will be, we expect to capture all the States south of the Ohio and Potpmac River, with the possible exception of West Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee, where the fight will be between us and the Republicans. This would leave the Republicans sixteen States east of the Mississippi and north of the Potomac and Ohio without taking the Democrats into calculation at all.

BEN HARRISON'S NAME. CHICAGO, March 21.—A special to the Tribune from Washington says that Benjamin Harrison's name will be presented for the consideration of the Republican National Convention at St. uis. This announcement is made or presented for the consideration of the Republican National Convention at St. Louis. This announcement 4s made on the authority of prominent Indiana leaders, who have within the last few days written to members of the delegation here and the story has been confirmed by telegrams received explanatory of the results in the convention of Thursday.

When ex-President Harrison's letter of withdrawal was printed prominent members of the Indiana delegation declared the letter would not prevent them from making use of Gen. Harrison's name if they saw fit. Since that time the situation has been canvassed thoroughly, and the result has been that the word was passed throughout Indiana that instructed delegations would be an unwise step and that the State should be left free to take up Harrison's name if it seemed advisable.

A concession, it is said, was made to the McKinley sentiment in the State in several districts by an agreement that McKinley men might be elected they would secure votes enough, provided they would agree to vote for Harrison at any time when a majority of the delegation so decided. Talking of the situation, one of the strong Indiana leaders said:

"You are safe in announcing that ex-President Harrison's name will be presented to the convention unless it should be demonstrated before the meeting itself that McKinley or some other candidate is absolutely certain of a nomination. We have resisted instructions to the delegates quite generally throughout the State, not in opposition to McKinley or any other candidate, but solely that we might be free to bring out our own candidate if we had a reasonable chance of success."

(BY TELEGRAPH TO THE TIMES.) NEW YORK, March 21.-(Special atch.) Intelligence from South Africa received here today dwelt upon the fresh outbreak of opposition in London to the alleged Americanizing of the Rand, as the great mining ridge is called, by wealthy mine-owners, who, it is said, have been placing orders for anchinery in the United States instead of in England. When mining took spurt in Africa six years ago, the men interested determined to work in the way which had been in vogue in this ountry with so great success. American manufacturers received orders for mining machinnery and great quanties of it were shipped. A Demand for an Indemnity Will Probably Follow the Investigation-Work of the Boundary Commission Incomplete.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.) NEW YORK, March 22.—A special to the World from Bridgetown, Barba-

loes, West Indies, says: "An iron mine in Venezuela on the southern bank of the Corosimo River, one of the affluents of the Orinoco, is owned by a London syndicate. In the interests of the owners, George Turn-bull of Boston visited the Island, char-tered the British schooner New Day of St. John's, N. F., Capt. Baxter, and sailed from this port on December 20 for Venezuela with eighty laborers and a miscellaneous cargo, Nothing further was heard of the New Day until Capt. Baxter arrived here from Venezuela on one of the Royal Mail liners. He reports that the vessel finished discharg-ing her cargo at Imataca on January

"Mr. Turnbull, who had gone to Cluand Bollvar with a customs officer to return with the vessel, returned on the 19th, stating that the clearance had been obtained, but afterward recalled. Four armed Venezuelan soldiers came from Bolivar to inspect the goods landed and the manifest of the New Day. The

from Bolivar to inspect the goods landed and the manifest of the New Day. The manifest was declared satisfactory and the officers directed Capt. Baxter to go to Bolivar to clear the vessel, the New Day arriving there January 28. The captain requested to be cleared on the following day and was refused, the customs collector stating that he had orders to seize the New Day, which he would not do, but await further instructions from Caracas.

"Meantime, Capt. Baxter entered his protest before the Acting British Consul. Capt. Baxter and his crew were taken before a court. No charge was made or fault found with his papers or action, yet the clearance of the vessel continued to be withheld. On the advice of the Acting Consul Capt. Baxter then took pasage for Barbadoes via Trinidad. He reported to the Governor, a telegram was immediately sent to the imperial authorities in London and he was directed to return to Cludad, Bolivar, and await the action of the British government. The captain left yesterday for Bolivar.

"The H.M.S. Cordelia is preparing to sail. It is said she is ordered to Bolivar to demand the clearance of the New Day and indemnity for her detention. The government, it is believed, will follow the precedent set by the United States three years ago, when the Kearsarge was sent up the Orinoco to Ciudad Bolivar to investigate alleged outrages by the Veneuzuela authorities on the United States Consul at that place."

MINDS NOT MADE UP. WASHINGTON, March 21.-Mr. Millet-Provost, secretary of the Venezuela Commission, today authorizes the following statement:

"During the past week a report has become current that the commats become current that the committee has reached a decision with reference to the boundary question favorable to Venezuela. This having been denied, the report has been circulated in another form, and it is now asserted that while the commis-sion as a body, has reached no such conclusion, the commissioners individually entertain the views referred to.

"It must be evident to all that so long as anything remains to be ex-amined and considered, the commisamined and considered, the commissioners are not in a position to pass an opinion respecting the merits of the controversy. As a matter of fact, neither the commissioners nor the individual commissioners are as yet in possession of all the evidence. The papers presented by Venezuela are but a part of what has been promised. The blue book of the British government, while remarkably full and detailed, does not include all the documents which may be adduced in support of its contentions. The commission has not and will not limit itself to the consideration of what those two governments may present; it has been engaged upon independent lines of inquiry, and will continue to follow those lines until all its sources of information shall have been exhausted. Then and not until then will it be in a position to form any opinion it be in a position to form any opinior or to make any report."

Socialists and Anarchists Celebrate Paris Commune-Failure of the Naval Subscriptions.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.) BERLIN, March Press Wite.

BERLIN, March 21.— (By Atlantic Cable. Associated Press Copyright, 1896.) A conflict between the Rundesrath, Reichstag, Count von Posadowski, Secretary of the Imperial Treasury, and Dr. Miquel, Prussian Minister of Finance, has arisen out of a motion of Finance, has arisen out of a motion of Dr. Lieber, the Clerical party leader, to set aside half of the imperial surplus for 1896-97 in order to pay off that much for 1896-97 in order to pay off that much of the national debt, which has risen from nothing in 1875 to two milliards (2,000,000,000 marks.)

Count Posadowski approved of the proposition, thinking the opportunity favorable, as the imperial budget now shows a steady surplus of 26,000,000 marks. But the Bundesrath opposes the matter because the surplus now goes to the treasuries of the different states, and Dr. Miquel opposes it because he matter because the surplus now goes to the treasuries of the different states, and Dr. Miquel opposes it because he is jealous of Count Posadowski's growing influence in finance and the Reichstag, and he also brought the Empergit to his views. The Reichstag, however, adopted Dr. Lieber's motion today by a large majority, and it is thought there may be trouble ahead.

The Abyssinian and Egyptian questions are the subjects of a great deal of negotiation on the part of the Dreibund. Germany, in response to Italy's representations, supports Great Britain, although the bitterness manifested by the former toward the latter country is not effaced. The German ewspapers, however, generally support the Nile expedition.

It became known today that France, through M. Herbet, the French Ambassador here, sounded Germany during the week as to whether the idea of a European conference to regulate the Egyptian affair would be acceptable, but Marschall von Bleberstein, the Minister for Foreign Affairs, replied that the evacuation of Egypt was considered a strictly British affair, and must be settled between the Interested parties.

It is generally believed that Emperor must be settled between the interested parties.

It is generally believed that Emperor William's visit to Italy is connected with the renewal of the Dreibund, and the suggested modification thereof, and that he may meet Emperor Francis Joseph, as well as King Humbert, before he returns. In additon to the alteration of Italy's position, Germany is desirous of greater liberty to enable her to place herself in accord with Russis and the far East.

The Emperor and Empress have put off their departure for Italy until Monday, and His Majesty may now meet Emperor Francis Joseph at Vienna, instead of at Genoa in company with King Humbert, as at first proposed. It is understood that the plans of His Majesty may be still further changed unless the agitation in Italy, shown by the recent excited behavior of the Deputies, quiets down. Indeed, further demonstrations in the chamber may possibly indefinitely postpone the meeting of the Emperors and King Humbert.

ing of the Emperors and King Humbert.

Emperor William yesterday dined with the officers of the Cuirassiere of the Guard, and toward midusint began talking with the bandmaster about his local marches. Later His Majosty took the baton from the bandmaster's hand, and conducted 'Hohenfreidberge: March,' by Frederick, the Great. At its conclusion the Emperor said; 'It its grand, like them. I will have it slike that throughout my arms'.

Five thousand Socialists, Anarchists and ultra-Radicals celebrated the Berlin revolution of 1848, and the Paria commune on Wednesday last. The graves of the so-called martyrs of 1848 were visited, and thousands of decorated wreaths and scarlet ribbons, some of them bearing revolutionary mottoes, were seized by the police.

The Voerwaerts, organ of the Socialists, issued a special unmber, which was unusually aggressive, and it was confiscated by the police, who selzed a special editon issued upon the same occasion by the Anarchist organ, the Socialist.

The Reichstag jubilee banquet tonight is almost wholly ignored by the leading German newspapers, owing to the fact that they have been snubbed and slighted by the officials. Not one of the German newspapers, owing to the fact that they have been snubbed and slighted by the officials. Not one of the few editors and correspondents invited to attend accepted, and the Berlin Press Club has passed resolutions expressing its indignation at the manner in which the press has been treated. Besides the present members of the Reichstag, 140 former members of that body, including forty-one of the original members, will attend the banquet. There will only be two toasts, "The Emperor," and "Prince Bismarck."

The first popular collection toward an increase in the strength of the German navy was started by the Deutscher Verband on Sunday, and it turned out to be a signal failure throughout Germany, showing that the nation does not favor the scheme.

The huge Bismarck monument, the cost of which was defrayed by public subscription, is being erected on the shore of Starbeiger Lake, Bavaria.

The Socialist Labor associations of Germany are going to hold a congress in Berlin on May 4, with the view of forming a central body to regulate systematic assistance of the unemployed.

WAR TALK AND POLITICS.

LONDON, March 21.—(By Atlantic Cable. Associated Press Copyright, 1886.) France, it is generally believed here, is burning her fingers with the Egyptian question. The French government, it is asserted, expected the cooperation of Germany, but found she had been anticipated by Great Britain, as the Marquis of Salisbury assured himself that he had the support of Emperor William in the matter and the latter is said to have informed the British Premier that Great Britain could rely upon the support of Germany and Austria if she aided Italy.

The Marquis of Salisbury, it appears, had not consuited with the Congo Free State authorities before announcing the government's decision. France consequently found hereelf confronted with a plan fully prearranged and, it is stated, she now shows a disposition to "climb down" from the attitude she assumed when the government issued its note of Wedneslay last, saying that the proposed advance up the Nile was a great surprise to the government of WAR TALK AND POLITICS.

There was a large gathering of members of the Salvation Army at Waterloo rallway station to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Booth-Tucker, who sail for New York from Southampton by the American liner St. Louis, in order to assume command of the forces there. Commander Booth-Tucker, in an interview at the station, said: "Our plan, primarily, is this: We hope to induce Ballington Booth to return to the fold, and will make him most liberal offers. Failing this, we have a great belief in the efficacy of prayer, and shall labor with him in a prayerful spirit. We have great hopes in his sister's influence, as he is very fond of her, and this may prevail with him and induce him to come back to the general's side. Should he be obdurate, I do not believe it will greatly affect the army in America."

The general kissed both his son and daughter, and as the train started he formed his hands into a trumpet and abouted, "Remember my message to America."

The general, in the course of an interview, after the departure of the Booth-Tuckers for Bouthampton, remarked: "My message to America is a simple one—"Peace and good will."

When he was asked if he thought Ballington Booth would return to the army, the general replied: "I am absolutely confident that he will." When asked why he was so confident, he answered: "On account of my prayers."

What She Married For.

(Chicago Record:) "It makes all the difference in the world what a person marries for. I'm so thankful that I didn't make any mistake," said a small, shabbily-dreased, tired-looking woman, who was cane-seating chairs at a house where she had asked for work. Her tongue was as nimble as her fingers, but her views on all topics were so cheery and hopeful, notwithstanding her manifest poverty, that her garrulity did not become tiresome. Her opinions on marriage, coming as they did from a woman to whom marriage had brought poverty and unceasing labor for an invalid husband, were refreshing and had the ring of a true heart, says the Philadelphis Times.

"Yes," she said, "folks that marries for but one thing makes a dreadful mistiske. I often think to myself: "What if I had married for anything in the world but love—real, genuine, sure-enough love! What a fix I'd be in today!

"You see, my husband has been an invalid for nine years. He went into slow consumption four years after we were married, and he ain't worked six weeks, all told, since, and I've had all the support of him and our three children for nine years, and I've done it by trailin' "round from house to house cane-seatin' chairs; and all the feelin'

B'posin' I'd married for riches, and they'd taken wings and flew sawa?

B'posin' I'd married for besuty, and siekness and mis'ry had robbed my husband of his good looks? Wouldn't I be in a nice fix?

"But I didn't marry for a thing on earth but respect and love for a good man and I ain't regretted it and I ain't a bit unhappy or discontented, exceptin' in the sorrow that comes from the uncertainty that I ain't goin' to have my husband with me much longer.

"He's failin' fast now, poor dear! I ain't never looked on him as a burden. I ain't throwed it up to him that I've had the Hvin' to make. I ain't fretted nor complained nor done any of the things I would surely have done if I'd made the dreadful mistake of marryin' for anything but real affection.

"Folks that marries for anything else has got a lot of unhappiness before 'em that I don't snow anything about."

Den't Turn and Stare.

(Nineteenth Century:) Two women pass each other in the street of a provincial town; they are not acquainted, yet it is long odds that one of them turns around to look after the otherwery short odds against both doing so. It is not the gait, or the figure, or the hair of the stranger that has attracted attention, it is the dress, and not the person within it. The gentle Anarchists who are busy organizing the debrutalization of man will, of course, attribute this little failing to the vacuity of the feminine mind, by reason of man's tyranny in excluding women from boards of directors, and other intellectual arenas. It may be conceded that psychology and betterment are more recondite fields than millinery, but this would be but a dull world, and far ugiler than it is, if every woman had a soul above chiffons. Odds grenadine and tariatan! that were a consummation by no means desirable. No, let the men who have eyes to see withal, or hearts to lose, set great store by the pains bestowed on pretty dressing; but if one may speak and live, the art should be studied with subtler tact than is sometimes seen. It should be better concealed; it is distressing to see a young woman's eyes wandering over the dress of her with whom she is talking, for if the mind be engaged in taking note of external detail, conversation oceases to be intercourse, and becomes the cracking of thorns under the pot.

ROME, March 21.—(By Atlantic Cable.) The Chamber of Deputies today resumed debate upon the subject of the African credits. A sharp personal altercation took place between Deputies Mocenni and Barzilla relative to the recall of Gen. Baratieri. So bitter was the discussion between the two members that a duel is likely to result.

After various amendments had been proposed, including the matter of impeachment of the Crispi Cabinet, the subject of the abandonment of Erytherea and the proposition condemning subject of the Arispi Caninet, the subject of the abandonment of Erytherea and the proposition condemning peace negotiations from Abyssinia, Premier Rudini declared that Italy's recent friendly arrangements with Great Britain completed the system of the country's alliance with foreign nations. He said it was not correct to assert that peace had already been concluded with Abyssinia, though it was true that an alliance was pending. He concluded by declaring that he was opposed to the policy of colonial expansion in Africa. The Credits Bill was then adopted by a secret ballot, the vote standing 214 yeas to 57 nays. The chamber then adjourned until April 28.

The Independence of Cuba

Is the burning question of today, and all believe the Cubans should be free. Just as important and far-reaching in another sphere

Is the Independent Drug Store. That's What the "Owl" is,

FREE from that combine known as the "Los Angeles High-Priced Druggists' Association," which fact has unquestionably made the Owl the people's most popular Drug Establishment on the Pacific Coast.

Wake up, ye Old-timer, mee our prices. You say we can't do it, but we do.

We sell

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND 60c bottle.

We know YOU pay 73c for it. Oh yes, you don't keep it any more, ah! Well, the Owl does—Yes, 60c. The Wholsale Druggists of the Pacific

The Wholsale Druggists of the Pacific Coast (a strong combine in themselves) have compelled Wells. Richardson & Co., the makers of Paine's Celery Compound, to stop selling us their preparation for no other reason than that the Owl was doing all the business, our price being less by the bottle than the wholesale price by the dozen. We never raise our prices, and we intend to fight this boycott combination to a finish and Paine's Celery Compound will remain as heretofore—60c a bottle.

To Physicians:

We are pleased to call your attention to the reductions in price of SCHIEFFELIN & CO. S PILLS. You know they are the best! Your only objection to them in the past has been the price. We carry in stock every Pill Schieffelin & Co. make. ED R. SQUIBB & SON-We carry full Just received all the latest novelties of THE CROWN PERFUMERY CO.'S LONDON.

The difference between dealing with us and others in the same line of business is this:
To us you pay only for the raw material and the cost of grinding, which we do at very small expense. This we can afford to do, as we pay no rent, we don't keep two or three bookkeepers, as we sell for cash. We don't keep an army of clerks and hustlers.
This little ad. is our HUSTLER. To the other dealers you have to pay, in addition to the cost of grinding, two profits—one to the wholesale dealer must charge the same price as the retailer in order to protect the retailers profits. "See?" They must advance the price of their paint not less than $60 cents per gallon above the manufacturers' prices in order to pay a profit on its passing through two sets of dealers and having to keep up the expense of the wholesale and retail establishments. "See?" When you buy of us you save these two profits of the middlemen and it is direct from the manufacturer to the consumer. "See?" Two per cent off on city trade when you mention this paper and freight prepaid on prepared paint when this ad. is refurned. LOS ANGELES PAINT & COLOR CO., 2515 S. Main st., near Adams.

PAINT & COLOR CO., 2515 S. Main St., near Adams.

SPECIAL NOTICE — THE "WILLCOX & GIBBS" is the only "Automatic," no tension, silent sewing machine. In stands preminent and commands the highest price, and will be thoroughly appreciated by those seeking the very best; it is not offered at a competing price with other machines, all of which are without its new and valuable principles. The "Automatic" is decidedly the cheapest machine when quality and merit are considered; it has no equal for durability, light-running qualities and simplicity; can be operated without bobbins or shuttle or tension and do finer and stronger work than any other machine made. Seeing is believing, so call and investigate the merits of this wonderful swing machine. Sold and handled exclusively by WILLCOX & GIBBS S. M. CO., 221 W. Fourth at., Los Angeles.

COR SALE-FOR SALE—WE SELL THE EARTH— BASSETT & SMITH,

FOR SALE-WE SELL THE EARTH—

BASSETT & SMITH,

Pomona.

Well, he fell down; we presume the oilve oil made it too slippery for him. We have reference to our purchaser for the Howland Olive Orchard. We had parties investificating the proposition, and they asked upon the market temporarily, and we did so, from the market temporarily, and we did so, from the market temporarily, and we did so, dive Orchards.

As an investment, as a future paying business we believe the Howland Olive Orchards and Olive Piant is worthy of a thorough investigation by anyone wishing a permanent and paying business. We believe that the oilve business is but in its infancy and stands today where the orange industry did fifteen or twenty years ago. Look over the statistics and see the amount of oilve oil and oilve pickles shipped to this country, and then see the small amount that is produced, and you can begin to realize what the future will be for this industry. And the quantity of oil used today is but a drop in the bucket to the amount that will be used when thoroughly introduced in our country, and any person or company that goes into the business now, and gets their trade exhibitshed, will get the full benefit in the future. The Howland olive orchard and plant consover $5000. Orres and oilve mill, which cost southeast of Pomona order is located to niles trees, mostly four and five year-oild, of the best varieties for oil and pickles, just commencing to bear; small house, barn, etc., and a 30-acre orchard just north of Pomona near North Pomona Depot; 20 acres in oilves, 4 acres not yet in bearing; 18 acres 8 and 12 years oid; 10 acres justed to oranges, etc. On this tract is located the oilve mill. Although but 16 acres, just can a small crop on this year; from this time on there will be an income from. If the income in two years is $14,000 from 16 acres, you can easily see what a profitable investment the propersion, call on or write to 22 HASSETT & Gay term in his perposition, just closed and at its Allants Experision, and the world

ASHMAN'S COMPANION.

Mrs. Ashman, wife of Denman C. Ashman, the man who is supposed to have left Summerland with one "Mollip," was in Sants Barbars friday afternoon making inquiries about ther husband. It is reported that Mrs. Ashman has said that her husband went away with Mrs. Herandeen. The latter did live at Goleta, and it was her dwelling that was destroyed by fire the morning of the listh. When Ashman was in Santa Barbara on the littinst. he bought a ticket for St. Lours for a Mrs. I. A. Welch, and the woman should have left Los Angeles the same day. Mrs. Ashman now says that Mrs. Welch and Mrs. Herandeen some time before her departure from Goleta negotiated a loan on her property of from 2000 to 12500. There are peeple who believe this entire sitr shout takiman is only a tempest in a teapot and that he will return and explain matters of the sunters. A change at this place. About Widows.
(Frances Courters Baylor, in Lip-

(Frances Courtemey Baylor, in Lippincott's:) It often strikes an observer that while Americans are by all odds the best husbands in the world, universally conceded to be more generous, more considerate, more attentive to their wives than the men of any other nation, they do not provide for the "relict" with the care and forechought that characterizes Europeans. It does not do to take any chances in Europe, and carelessness or neglect to look to the future of a wife in the event of death does not result, as in this country it may possibly do, in her being comfortably supported somehow, somewhere; it means the poor-house, or the Serpentine, or worse,—certain degradation and starvation in some format best the miseries of genteel paupersism. The result is that when a European marries he makes settlements; he buys a home; he lays by, if he is in business, a rainy-day fund; he keeps his weather eye open; he remembers that he is mortal.

Not so the American, as a rule. He

The largest affair of the week was the "eschischoltzla tea" given yesterday afternoon by Mrs. J. H. F. Peck, at her lovely home on West Beacon street in honor of Mrs. E. W. Peck of Burlington, Vt., and Mrs. H. L. Dodge of San Francisco. She was assisted by Mmes. William Pridham, William Kerchkoff, Granville MacGowan, Le Grande Betts, Metcalf, T. E. Gibbon, Clifford Fleming, Margaret Hobbs, A. C. Jones, George Peck, Howells, the Misses Fairchild, Miss Innes, Miss Frankenfield and Miss Bloomfield. The gowns were exceedingly handsome and were affectively set off by the beautiful decorations. In the reception hall there were masses of yellow popples, overflowing huge bowls and pretty baskets; in the drawing-room, long-stemmed La France roses and festoons of broad pink satin ribbon contrasted prettily with the pale blue tints of the room. In the punch-room were masses of nasturtiums, and the dining-room was all in yellow and white. Broad yellow satin ribbons were caught with a branch of acacia at the chandeller, and fell in two long streamers to the table, where they terminated in huge bowls. In the center was a large bowl of cloth-of-gold roses, and among the exquisite embroideries were strewn more of the same flower. Bridalwreath, Lady Bankshire, cloth-of-gold and niphetos roses were arranged in profusion about the room. A mandolin quartette rendered fascinating music during the afternoon, and delicious refreshments were served under the direction of Christopher. A feature of the afternoon was the guessing of the words contained in "eschscholtzia." Mrs. Dan McFarland succeeded in extracting the largest number and was rewarded with the first prize, a framed watercolor painting of popples. Miss Wise of New York, won the second, a vellow-and-gold plate, and Miss Katherine Johnson, the third, a yellow-and-gold plate, and Miss Katherine Johnson, the third, a pellow-and-gold plate, and Miss Katherine Johnson, the third, a pellow-and-gold plate, and Miss Katherine Johnson, the third, a pellow-and-gold plate, and Miss Kat

A PROGRESSIVE LUNCHEON.

The progressive luncheon given Friday by Mrs. R. M. Widney and Mrs.
Boyle Workman, at their home on South Olive street, in honor of Mrs. S. H. Watson of Illinois and Mrs. J. H. Norton, was an exceedingly pleasant affair. There were six tables, each strewn with a different variety of flower, matching those in the dainty baskets presented to each guest, by which they found their places. Two of the baskets at each table were tied with white ribbons, and two with plak, one color progressing one way and the other in the opposite direction. The introductory course was a literary salad; on leaves of paper lettuce, were pinned quotations, the authors of which were to be guessed. The first prize, two prettilybound books, was won by Mrs. Wells. Those present were: Mms. Watson, Norton, G. Wiley Wells, R. J. Widney, Earl B. Miller, Alfred Solano, H. G. Brooks, J. A. Fairchild, McLean, Pendleton, Baylies, Holmes of San Francisco; Pendleton, J. J. Akin, Richard McKnight, Burdette, Chandler, I. N. Van Nuys, A. L. Lankershim, S. C. Hubbell, N. W. SUNDAY-SCHOOL CLASS DINED. A PROGRESSIVE LUNCHEON.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL CLASS DINED. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Braly enter-tained the former's Sunday-school class young ladies at Immanuel Church, their home in St James Park, Fri-y. There were covers for eighteen, of the table was prettily decorated pink. Pink cafnations filled three in pink. Pink cafnations filled three tall vases, and were strewn over the cloth, while at each place was a dainty souvenir basket of bon-bons, in the shape of a pink chrysanthemum. The guests were: The Misses May Kimball, Jennie Campbell, Fannie Barber, Ina Ramboy, Grace Alexander, Mabel Godfrey, Katherine Kemper, Pansy Whitaker, Ada Dryden, Marguerite Moore, Blanche Merrill, Julia Tarleton, Julia Kilpatrick, Ruth Harper, Myrtle Markson and Rowens Moore.

The musicale given Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carpenter, at by Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Carpenter, at their elegant home on West Twenty-seventh street, in honor of Mrs. Car-penter's mother, Mrs. George Wilsbire, was one of the most thoroughly enjoy-able affairs of the winter. The rooms was one of the most thoroughly enjoyable affairs of the winter. The rooms were prettily decorated with pink and white carnations, and potted palms and plants. Mrs. Carpenter was charming in cream-colored crepe, with garniture of embroidered chiffon. Mrs. George Wilshire wore an elegant gown of pearl satin, with quantities of Honiton lace about the bodice. Mrs. Nat Wilshire was lovely in pale, green crepon, the waist of white silk, trimmed with lace and green satin ribbons. The programme, which was exceptionally fine, opened with a guitar and mandolin quariette by Mr. and Mrs. Cosmo Morgan and the Misses Tay; Mr. Shawhan sang, "The Swallow," by Serradell; Mrs. J. S. Owens sang, "Angus MacDonald," by Roceckel; Mr. Ferrer, the well-known violinist, played a sonata by Gade, and in response to an encore, a berceuse; Mr. Jackson sang the "Creole Love Song;" Mrs. Wightman played exquisitely on her guitar, exthoven's "Le Desir," and in response to an enthusiastic encore, some panish dances. A DINNER.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Earl entertained at dinner last evening, at their home on West Pico street. The flowers upon the table were arranged in an extremely artistic fashion. In the center stood a tall Bohemian vaye, filled with branching bridaiwreath, through which fell broad bands of rose-colored satin ribbon, caught with a large bow, in a mass of asparagus, from the chandelier, to the silver candelabra on the table. About the base of the centerpiece were massed pink roses and ferris. At each lady's place was a large cluster of Duchesse roses tied with pink satin ribbon, at each gentleman's, a bunch of white violets. Branches of pink roses and garlands of smilax were artistically arranged about the mantel and buffet. Mrs. Earl was very pretty in Nile green mousseline de sole, with a cluster of pink roses fastened upon her left shoulder. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Holliday, Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Cline, Mr. and Mrs. Al Barker, Miss Owen and Mr. Stevens. A DINNER.

A LUNCHEON. Mrs. John R. Haynes entertained in Mrs. John R. Haynes entertained informally at luncheon yesterday, in honor of Mrs. John Wigmore, who will soon leave for Europe. The table departations were in green and white. The guests were: Mmes. Wigmore, L. W. Bilinn, Charles Monroe, John T. Jones, S. C. Hubbell, William H. Perry, J. W. A most interesting event took place Friday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Mower, at Miransar. It was the christening of their islant daughter by Dr. Edward Everett Hale of Boston. After the affair was over the guests, twelve of the intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Mower, retired to the residence of J. Doutlon and partook of a dainty luncheon. The young Miss Mower will be known in the future as Margaret Helen. This event is all the more interesting from the fact that Miss Mower is the first child born is Miramar in the past twenty years.

MANN-STREET PAVING.

MAIN-STREET PAVING. A Meeting of Property-holders Last

A Meeting of Property-holders Last Evening.

The property-holders of Main street held a meeting last evening at Masonic Hall for the purpose of discussing the Main-street paving question. A number of property-holders were present, J. Q. Dague being in the chair, S. K. Lindley acting as secretary.

A number of speeches were made by E. C. Shafer, Wesley Clark, W. G. Sory and others. The contract submitted some time ago to the Council by J. T. Long, the San Francisco contractor, who bid 27 cents per square foot for the street work, was fully discussed, and finally set aside as too high. The action of the Council in the matter was fully discussed, and Councilman Kingery, who was present, went into details of some length, in order thathe might apologise for the position taken by the body of which he is a member.

Mr. Dague, the chairman, then made some pointed remarks. He said that when the matter first came up he went to see Mr. Munson, Councilman from the Third Ward, and remonstrated with him against paving the Council not to do so, Mr. Munson replied that "It would have to go through, anyhow." Mr. Dague further said that the contractor's price for the paving was $6.35 per lineal front foot, and incidental expenses, such as inspectors, commissioners, etc., would bring the price up to fully $5 per foot. No property-holder of a dwelling to could afford to pay $400 for paving the street in front of his lot. As to the petition asking that the paving be done, he denied all knowledge of it at the time it was circulated.

After some further discussion, a motion was made by Wesley Clark that the chair appoint a committee of five to consult attorneys in the matter. The chairman appointed as a committee Wesley Clark is K. Lindley, W. G. Sory, A. M. Scott and D. R. Roselle, who will consult with an attorney and report to the meeting on Monday night at 7:30, to which time the meeting was addourned.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

A concert which will interest the music-lovers of Los Angeles, will occur this evening at the Los Angeles Theater. The selection of this date is due to the crowded condition of the date sheet at this house. The players who will take part are Ondricek, the bril-liant young Bohemian violinist, who has been enthusiastically received by the people of the East and San Fra liant young Bohemian violinist, who has been enthusiastically received by the people of the East and San Francisco; Frau Materna, the Wagnerian soprano, and Mr. Luckstone, accompanist. Materna, the once glorious "Isolde" and favorite of the immortal Wagner, more than any other singer, knows how to invest the music of the "Meister" with all its characteristic charm of melody. Her second number is to be the great dramatic aria of Adriano from "Rienzi." These musicians will give but one concert.

One of the society events of the season will be the appearance of the Stanford Glee and Mandolin clubs at the Los Angeles Theater next Tuesday evening. These representative clubs of this popular educational institution have been appearing with great success in the northern cities before audiences composed of the best society people of these cities, and nothing but praise has been given these student musicians, en route to Los Angeles.

The special feature of the programme on Tuesday evening will be specialties by Charles K. Field, Charles Dillon and Shirley Baker. The entertainment will be given under the patronage of the following society ladies of Los Angeles: Mrs. S. C. Hubbell, Mrs. G. W. Wells, Mrs. W. S. Bartlett, Mrs. I. N. Van Nuys, Mrs. Modini-Wood, Mrs. C. T. Parsons, Mrs. E. B. Miller, Mrs. R. M. Widney, Mrs. J. M. Witmer, Mrs. J. S. Slauson, Mrs. E. P. Johnson, Miss Wills, Mrs. W. S. Bartlett, Mrs. T. D. Stimson, Mrs. W. R. Hunt, Mrs. H. Jevne, Mrs. Wilbur Parker, Mrs. T. D. Stimson, Mrs. W. R. Hunt, Mrs. H. Jevne, Mrs. J. W. Hendricks, Mrs. H. Z. Osborne, Mrs. J. H. Braley and Mrs. Felix C. Howes, I. B. Newton, E. R. Smith and W. W. Strohm.

The students will be entertained by a number of young ladies Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Frank Burnett on West Eighth street.

J. Bond Francisco's violin recital Thursday evening at Bartlett's Hall was a delightful affair, and there was a good attendance. Mme. Isidora Martinez and Miss Blanche Rogers assisted.

tinez and Miss Blanche Rogers assisted.

Twenty-five thousand dollars has already been subscribed in San Francisco for Anton Seidl's orchestra, with Sauret as solo violinist. It is hoped that sufficient interest may be aroused in Los Angeles to make it possible to bring them here.

Mr. and Mrs. Rubo gave a pupils' recital yesterday afternoon at their home on West Seventh street. Those who took part in the programme were: The Misses Marie Lammes, Orilla Donnell, Anna Brand, Blanche Donnell, Alice Strong, Dora Hovel, Harriet Knox, Katharine Scudder, Edith Barnes, Mrs. Ada Long, Mrs. MacClure, Mrs. Josefa Tolhurst and Mr. and Mrs. Rubo.

Mrs. Brophy will give a pupils' recital Tuesday evening in the Blanchard-Fitzgerald Hall.

Down with the Funding Bill!

The International Educational Labor Association of this city has prepared a memorial to Congress in relation to the resolutions submitted by Mayor Carison of San Dieg, at a meeting recently held in this city, of which a report was given in The Times the following day. The memorial declares the real object of the meeting was to indone the Funding Bill. The members of the association declareheir emphatic and unalterable opposition to the measure because of a belief that it is the grossest form of class logislation, and because they believe the railroads should be owned and operated by the government, and therefore urgs the immediate foreclosure of the government mortgages on the Union Pacific and Central Pacific roads.

Dr. A. J. Shores, by His Master Skill, Cures the Sick.

Mr. L. Scheidler Was So Badly Afflicted That He Was Confined to His Bed, and Testifies That He Was Fast Giving Up All Hopes of Ever Being Well Again.

He Had Been, Treated by Others, But, as Usual, Failed-Dr. Shores Was Consulted, And as a Result, Mr. Scheidler Is Now a Well Man.

$5 a Month--- Medicines Free.

It is really alarming the ignorance displayed by many physicians in the practice of medicine.

Every day DR. SHORES is called upon to help the victims of this class of medical know-nothings. Patients come to DR. SHORES who have been treated for catarrh, with the delicate mucus lining of the nose and throat entirely BURNED OUT. They explain that their doctor said it was the only way to cure Catarrh, and now they have lost all sense of taste; they are unable to smell anything, and their physical condition is much worse. Then they say, "Now, Dr. Shores, can't you cure me?"

After the delicate linings have been completely destroyed, then they come and want Dr. SHORES to cure them.

Such heroic treatment is like the fellow who once owned a valuable dog.

THE SICKROOM. Showing the results of Catarrh. People say: "Oh, it is just a case of Catarrh; it don't amount to anything."
It nearly cost Mr. Scheidler his life. In some way his dogship broke his leg. His master, in order to keep the dog from suffering, cut off the leg; con-sequently, the afflicted part was re-moved. But look at the dog's condition

now. Dr. SHORES'S treatment for Catarrh consists of mild, soothing washes, administered to the nose and throat; no burning, no cauterizing. It is a simple, mild and painless system of treatment, that is curing thousands of cases that were given up as incurable. With these washes Dr. SHORES gives with these washes Dr. SHORES gives constitutional treatment, prescribing for each individual case as it requires. Dr. SHORES gives every patient his personal attention, and no cheap hired doctors are allowed to practice on his patients. We ask the public to read today the case of Mr. L. Scheidler, ten years a resident of Los Angeles,

And go to bed. I had a terrible smothered feeling all the time. The catarrh in the throat would accumulate so that it would almost choke me. I had headaches, and always a bad taste in my mouth. I coughed constantly, sharp shooting pains in the chest extending back to the shoulder-blades; a soreness in the chest; my back was very weak and pained me greatly. I could not sleep at night and would have to lay awake almost the entire night; the loss of sleep made me weak, nervous and irritable. I could not eat, and was being reduced in weight so that I looked like a

Dr. SHORES has made me well, and I canot say too much in praise for his careful attention to my case. I am now 57 years old, and I feel as well as I did at 20. I have gained in weight rapidly. I now do any kind of work without tiring, sleep well, cough gone, no pains of any kind, eat well, and I want to talk with any one who will call on the, and I will prove to them that my story is true."

A reckless driven on North Main street drove into a wagon standing by the sidewalk, and smashed it. The cause of the accident drove rapidly away down Commercial street, no policeman being in sight to arrest him.

The axle of a big oil-tank wagon broke down yesterday, as the wagon reached the corner of Washington and Figueroa streets. The accident opened a leak in the tank, and the oil went gushing forth in a sticky stream, befouling the street from side to side.

The third lecture in this season's Art Association course is postponed from March 25 to Wednesday, April 1, when Prof. George G. Hitchcock of Pomona College will lecture on "Paints and Pigments," at the School of Art and Design, No. 110 West Second street, at 8 p.m.

Shortly after 11:30 o'clock last evening the lights in the electric cars all went out, and the cars came to a standstill. Then came the warning blast of the whistle, which told there was a break in some machinery at the powerhouse. The passengers waited half an hour in much anxiety before the cars started up.

Horace Hayes is an old soldier, who tried yesterday to quench an overpowering thirst. He labored long and diligently to do so, and in the effort grew very drunk. Officer Harris found Hayes on Marchessault street at 3:15 o'clock, suffering from a weakness in the legs. The policeman took him to the Police Station for medical attention.

The officers of the church explain the matter by the statement that Robert Jordan contracted to build the church at a price of $33,-000, a large part of which has already been paid over to him.

The church officers say that the suits are practically against Jordan and that he has either found that he made his hid too low and practically against Jordan and that he has either found that he made his bid too low and will lose money or that he has diverted the money paid him to some other undertaking. Be this as it may, there still remains something over $9000 which has not yet been paid to the stonemasons, plumbers, carpenters, etc., and it is to insure the payment of these debts that the claims have been filed.

The church officials declare the claims do not affect the church-body at all, but are merely a private affair of the contractor's.

Two lost children were taken to the Police Station yesterday. Fannie Hef-lefinger was found at Eleventh and flefinger was found at Eleventh and Main streets, just after nightfall, by Officer Pauling. Her father soon appeared to take her home. Just at midnight Officer Stephenson found the second lost child of the day, Frank Rumsey. His mother had told him to wait for her a minute on a street corner, walked away and never came back. The little boy spent the night in the Receiving Hospital.

VIVID ACCOUNT OF THE ATROCIOUS TREATMENT OF AMERICAN CITIZENS.

Has Spanish Temper Changed?-The "Virginius"-Ruthless Slaughter of Prisoners-Pathetic Scenes-Dying Men Trampled Under the Hoofs of Horses-An Orgy of Cruelty-Description of the Bloody Orgy of November 4, 1873.

(From a Special Contributor to The Times.)

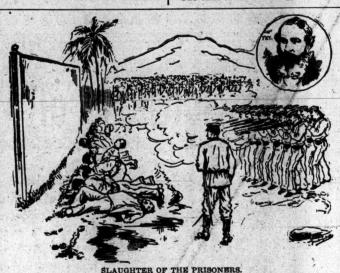

tle avail to stem the current of American public opinion now rapidly rising to flood-tide.

Is it to be supposed that the leopard has changed his spots; that Spain, which, twenty odd years ago, turned the fair Eden of the Antilles into a charnal house, is to day disposed to treat her down-trodden sons with com-ger, and started to make a run for the Jamaica coast.

By a strange lack of foresight on the part of her commander the Virginius had run short of coal; but as it was an issue of life or death, no exertion was spared to reach the protection of the British waters. To supply the lack of fuel all the greasy substances on board, such as oil, fat and hams, from the provision stores, were thrown into the furnaces; all the weapons, the horses and the cargo were consigned to the waves. But all to no avail. Even the coming on of night proved of little benefit to the fugatives, for the moon rose in full tropical splendor. Finally, toward 10 o'clock in the evening a shell was sent across the bows of the ill-fated cruiser. There was now no alternative; surrender was unavoidable. Presently two armed boats from the Tornado came alongside, and taking possession of the Virginius, made all on board prisoners.

in charge was to lower the American flag, and hoist in its place the Spanish ensign—notwithstanding the fact that Capt. Fry presented his papers, demiconstrating that the Virginius had been duly cleared for colors; and shortly after midnight the two vessels started for Santiago de Cuba, which was reached the following afternon at 5 o'clock.

The arrival of the Tornado with her prize created a tremendous sensation, and the wharves were soon crowded with exultant citizen, and officials eager to gaze on the foolhardy 'Yan-hoarded her at Kingston were Gen. W. A. C. Ryan, a native New Yorker, who had already fought in Cuba, Pedro Cespedes, a younger brother of Carlos Manuel Cespedes, President of the Cuban republic, and Gens. Jesus del Sol and Varona, prominent patriots. It was on the 2th day of October, 1873—I take the story from reliable contemporaneous accounts—that the Virginius steamed out of Kingston Harbor. The original intention was to sall direct for the shores of Cuba, but a damage to the machinery necessitated a stoppage at Port au Prince, Hayti. A second start was made on October 30. Meanwhile the Spanish Consul at Kingston had been keeping a watch on the movements of the oruiser, and this resulted in Gov. Burriel, of Santiago de Cuba, ordering the commander of the warship Tornado to sail in quest of her. On the morning of the 31st inst, the Spanish vessel sighted the fillbuster on the high soa. The former was at the time under full sail with little steam on, as her engine was undergoing repairs. The captain of the Virginius mistook the enemy for an ordinary sailing craft, and did not alter his course until too late. At 2 o'clook in the afternoon the Tornado's regimes announced the sail of the control of the C rant prosecution, for, as already stated, every object of a suspicious nature had been thrown overboard before the surrender, and when the Spaniards boarded the Virginius she was to all outward appearances a peaceable merchantman, dulp documented, with the American flag flying at her stern. Capt. Fry and his men therefore expected, at the worst, a short imprisonment and an early return to the United States. But the poor fellows had not reckoned on the bloodthirsty temper of Gov. Burriel and the Spanish volunteers, and their intense hatred for this country.

unteers, and their intense hatred for this country.

On the day following the arrival of the Virginius in Santiago a court-martial was held on board the Tornado. It began at 9 and ended at 4 o'clock. The charge was "piracy on the high seas," and four leaders, Ryan, Varona, Cespedes and Del Sol, were promptly found guilty and sentenced to be shot. Early at dawn on the morning of November 3 the unfortunate men were led from their prison to the slaughter-house outside of the town's limits, and to the cry of "Cuba forever" they fell beneath a hail of bullets.

But it was only a foretaste of Spanish vengeance. The first four victims, though executed in violation of all international law, were at least open and off.

But a still greater horror was at hand. Presently some cavalry appeared, and in order to accelerate the extermination of the victims, the horse-soldiers were cordered to ride their steeds over the recking mass of dying men. This was repeated several times until the last breath of life had been crushed out of the sufferers. After this the troops withdrew, and the rabble were let loose on the human shambles, with the rerult that for the rest of the day the streets were paraded by processions bearing the heads of the victims on long pikes. Thus ended the bloody orgy of November 4, 1873.

It must not be supposed that this second butchery had quenched Gov. Burriel's thirst for blood. On the contary, orders were issued by him for the shooting of fifty more of the prisoners—the majority being boys ranging from 16 to 20 years of age—and 3 o'clock on the afternoon of the 5th was the hour set for their execution. At 10 o'clock on the morning of that day, however, a gallant British man-of-war, H.M.S. Niobe, steamed into the harbor of Santiago. As soon as her commander, Sir Lambton Lorraine, heard of the Governor's intentions, he quietly trained his guns on the town, and sent word ashore that in view of the probability that some of the crew of the Virginius were British subjects, he must insist upon a postponement of the execution until the respective governments had been communicated with. Burriel demurred at first, but a second look at the portholes of the Niobe, and her decks cleared for action, caused him to acquiesce to the demand, and the remainder of the crew and passengers were saved.

The subsequent action of the United States government, anding in Spain's ticle. One little incident, however, I cannot pass over in silence since it emphasizes the absolutely devilish cruelty manifested by the officials on this occasion. The day before the survivors of the Virginius, 102 in number, were taken from Moro Castle, Havana, to be turned over to the United States authorities, they were informed by their jailers that their walk on the morrow would be from the cell to the grave. To enhance their sufferings a priest entered the castle and began to shrive them. All night this inhuman torture was indulged in; and when in the morning walls, they all thought it the dawn of their last day on earth. Sadly they fell into line and marched out into the town. All this while the United States vessel Juniata was lying in the harbor awaiting them; and their feelings can be better imagined than described when the welcome truth finally forced itself upon them. This episode was a fitting climax to one of the most hideous chapters in the long history of Spanish oppression and cruelty.

Petroleum Ahead.

(Oliver McKee in Lippincott's:) In the race for horseless vehicles recently held in France, there were seventeen starters, of which eleven used petroleum, five steam, and one electricity. One of the petroleum vehicles was a bicycle. The course was from Paris to Bordeaux and back, a distance of 726 miles; the prizes amounted to $16,000. Contrary to expectations, the three vehicles first to complete the distance were all propelled by petroleum. One of these covered the distance to Bordeaux in twenty-two hours and thirty-four minutes, and the return trip to Paris in twenty-two hours and fifty-three minutes, or at the rate of about fifteen miles an hour. Town and country roads in France, as returning American bicyclists have told, are far superior to those in the United States, a fact not to be lost sight of in any prediction of the wide-spread adoption of the motor-vehicle in this country.

recognized enemies of Spain and had figured prominently in the war. Not so the captain and the crew of the Virginius, many of whom had even been ignorant of the purposes, and destination of the ill-fated vessel. These men appeared before their judges a few hours after the distant ratile of musketry had told them of the fate of their erstwhile companions, and before dusk the captain and his menmany of them youths under age—had learned that their last moments were at hand. Thirty-seven of them, including Capt. Fry, were told off for execution the next day. The scene of this horrible tragedy was the same as that of the first—the city slaughter-house, an adobe structure with a steep tiled roof, encircled by a shallow trench half filled with stagnant water. Half a mile separated the jail from the place, and the wretched procession had to march thither on foot, preceded by a corps of drummers with muffled drums, which they beat in slow, measured cadence, unspeakably melancholy. The theatrical element enters so largely into the composition of the Latin races that even their atrocities are enacted with a due regard to scenic effect. Arrived at the place of doom, the procession halted and formed a hollow square, with the victims in the midst. The line of mariness against the slaughter-house wall next opened, and the prisoners were to the place of doom, the procession halted and formed a hollow square, with the victims in the midst. The line of mariness against the slaughter-house wall next opened, and the prisoners were to the fraces turned toward the wall. What followed is best told in the words of Franklin Coffin, an American eyewitness of the tragedy:

"After they had knelt down," he says, "the captain walked along the line and bade each one good-by one sparately. No one was slighted, not even the colored men who sailed among the crew. The last sounds they heard on earth, apart from the roar of the muskets that belched forth their death, were the kind words spoken by the heroic Fry. Nearly all of those who made up the old club, not a few of whom were afterward to become re-nowned, are now dead. art is known and loved.

In the '60s, when the war-cloud hung over the land, Thomas Buchanan Read and Hiram Powers were the shining lights of the club. Of their successors, such men as Chase and Farny and Mosler are leading examples. Chase was a student with Eston when Farny, now the most devoted painter of the American indian, was a boy, and be-fore Henry Mosler had won distinction abroad at the hands of the French govabroad at the hands of the French government and been decorated with the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor. Hart and Clevinger were in the Cininati group when Whitbridge and Wyant were painting landscapes; so was John Talt, who was one of the first Americans to study at Dusseldorf, when it was the great romantic school of art bugene Field was in literature, and he believes in the unbounded possibilities of art in America.

Henry Mosler, after twenty years spent abroad, returned last year to America, and has handsome studios in the top of the Carnegle building in New York, where his Saturday afternoons are among the fashionable fads of the season, and his canvases are known throughout the country. William M. Chase has gone abroad and his famous collection of art bric-a-brac that has adorned one of the most beautiful and unique studios in the country recently went under the hammer. In Munich he fell in with Munkaoy, and as they were both too poor to hire models, they took turns, posing for each other, and so it was that Farny posed for the principal figure in "The Condemned Man," the great canvas that won fame and fortune for Municacsy.

Still poor, after three years abroad, Farny returned to America in the steerage. Then he went to Cincinnatian and painted, but no one would buy his pictures. After that he drew circus posters for Uncle John Robinson, the show man, and was able to buy three meals and way and keep a change of linen with the proceeds. It was soon after this that Farny was employed by a book publishing house and made pictures for Harvey's Readers. The illustrations made a hit and the standard of school book illustrations throughout the country was raised.

by a song which father wrote, and this brought a challenge to a duel. Eighteen boon companions of my father answered the challenge and told Marshall that he must fight all of them, singly or all at once, but the eighteen men he must meet. Somehow this duel never came off, and Marshall never afterward alluded to it but once, and that was when he first saw father's canvas. The Last Victim of the Flood-Standing before the painting, Marshall seemed visibly impressed. Finally, drawing himself up to his full height, be turned to father and said: 'Beard, you're a d-n poor poet.'

THE SUCCESS OFMOSLER.

When I asked Henry Mosler to tell me something of his early struggles in the field of art, he carefully shut one eye and looked critically at the skylight. After that he partially closed both eyes and scrutinized the red ribbon in his buttonhole.

"I met with little tangible success," he said, "until I painted "The Lost Cause," after the war, representing a Confederate leaning upon his rifle, before the empty cabin with desolate fields about it. This had exactly the reverse effect of what I had exactly the reverse effect of what I had expected. It called forth a storm of abuse in the Northern papers, and in the South it created much enthusiasm. It was purchased by Col. A. S. Berry of Newport, and I then owned my first real estate, as I took a lot in part payment. Within a short time copies of the painting adorned many Southern homes. After that my success was fair, and perhaps the next epoch was marked in '79, when the French government purchased 'The Return' for the Luxembourg, thus conferring that honor on an American for the first time.

"My third greatest honor, in chronological sequence, was when, having been declared 'hors concours,' the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor was conterred upon me. I well remember the varnishing day at the salon when I made the discovery of the honor conferred upon 'The Return.' My wife and I went through the rooms looking for my canyas, but we could not find it. As we retraced our steps we saw in the salle d'honneur a large crowd grouped about some canvas. We pressed forward to see what it was. It was my picture. My delight was unbounded. The moment was one of the happiest of my life.

The moment was one of the happlest of my life.

"Another honor that I prize highly is the gold medal awarded in 1893 by the Archduke Carl Ludwig of Austria, at the Vienna exhibition, for "The Last Moments," being the only one conferred on any foreign artist. Of my American experiences I greatly enjoyed the trip I made to America in 1886 to make studies of distinctively American subjects. On this occasion, accompanied by my old friend, C. T. Webber of Cincinnati, one of the ablest genre painters that America has produced, I made studies in New Mexico among the Apaches. 'Abandoned' The Visit of the Marquiec' and "The White Captive' were exhibited at the Paris saloms of '37 and '88, and 'The White Gaptive' and the Harvest Dance' are the two canvases which placed me 'hors concours' at the salon. It was from James H. Beard that, when but a boy of 10, I received my first real instruction in art."

A California Bee Village.

A California Bre Village.

(Ninetta Eames, in Harper's Magasine for March) The month of May is the carnival of bee life in California, and at no other time of the year is half-work, half-play of "bee-manching" so wholly faschating and delightful. After spring showers are over, a delicious warmth and fragranice steam up from the circling foothilis, where every notch and by-way is choked with flowering wildwood. The long blooming slopes stretch sunnily to fruitful valleys, and the whale rictous floral zone is voiced by homey-hunting bees. Their Lilliputian cities are seen just without the open arms of canons, the white hives arranged with the precision of dwellings along the streets. Sometimes these mimic thoroughfures are shaded by scattering oaks and sumao, or the green imbrelias of elderberry bushes, now fringed with freighted, creamy clusters. Where there are no indigenous trees, it is not unusual for the thrifty spiarist to plant grape vines and orchard riws between the lives, which serve the double purpose of shade and forage. A neighboring bee ranon is often four or five miles distant, and again this Palestine of the New World shows leagues on leagues of ideal pasturage, left soley to the harvesting of wild bees and various species of wasp and humming-bird, or to that interesting lover of sweets, the Mexican honey-ant.

A typical Western apiary belongs to the foothill region of Southern Callfornia. Here the atmosphere has that degree of heat and dryness essential to an abundant saccharine flow, and the high gravelly soil grows a luxuriance of nectar-bearing plants, the chief of which are the numerous varieties of sage. During the blossoming of these aromatic spikes the amount of honey stored by strong colonies is almost incredible. A summer's product will often average seventy-five to two hundred pounds a hive and instances are not uncommon where a single Italian credible. A summer's product will of-ten average seventy-five to two hun-dred pounds a hive and instances are not uncommon where a single Italian swarm has produced 1000 pounds of ex-tracted honey in one year. This sage honey has rare virtues and is said to be more delectable than the famed nec-tar of Hymettus or Chambuni, and be more delectable than the famed nectar of Hymettus or Chamouni, and whiter and finer flavored than the celebrated honeycombs of Atacama. To set one's teeth through an exquisitely frail comb brimming with the delicate nectar of the white sage—Audibertia—is a gustatory relish not to be otherwise equalled. More especially is this true if one has all the concomitants—a warm, clean stone under a singing sycamore, mountain air spiced with countless odors, the monotone of bees at their voluptuous toil, a landscape billowing up to gigantic summits, and a stream hard by to keep the shout up in the heart.

Chicago Times-Herald.) Wirulent as was the cycling fever in 1895, the record for 1896 promises to eclipse it beyond the most sanguine calculations of the manufacturers. If we may judge from the fact that the output of all the leading factories was sold several months ago there is reason to believe that an ordinary vehicle drawn by a horse will be a rare sight on the boulevards this summer. All the world is evidently going a-wheeling. Cycling organizations are becoming so numerous and so strong that they do not hesitate to declare their purpose to dictate legislation. In many cities they have demanded and secured the establishment of bicycle paths along boulevards free from invasion by horses' hoofs. In Cincinnati they have demanded a reform in street sprinkling. They want a strip three feet wide next to the curb left dry on each side of the sfreets.

The army of wheelmen is getting so large that if its demands in regard to the highways are not compiled with, it can easily crowd, the fleet-footed roadsters and stylish turnouts into the back streets.

and hung there with a fence picket through the seat of his first pair of trousers; and it was all so funny that, now as the engineer recalled the discumstances, he threw back his head and laughed as heartlly as he had ever laughed in his life. The fireman, casting a farewell glance at his companion, saw him laughing, and concluded in his last moment, that the driver had suddenly become insane, but as he glanced ahead where death was waiting, he was not sure that he was sane himself.

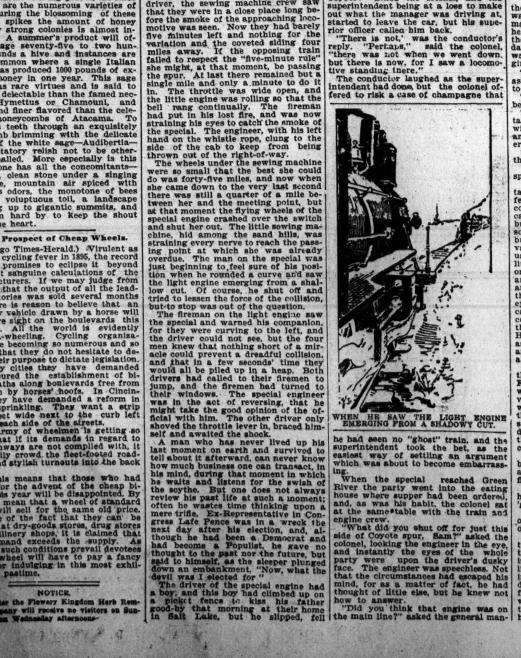

THEAT THAT INSTANT THE "SEWING MACHINE" HAD JUMPED THE TRACK

He will hold a passenger train ten minutes rather than hold the special five. Another point in favor of the special engineer is the fact that he is due at no particular point at any specified time, and having no time-card to hold him down he may regulate the speed of the train to suit himself. He is always an experienced runner who knows the road—knows every low-joint and high center, every curve and sag on his division—consequently the officers put no limit upon the speed of the train, but leave it all to the good judgment of the engineer. It was a clear, dry day in the early autumn, the very best time of year for a fast run, and "Old Sam" had been gauging his speed for, fifty miles back so as to hit Coyote Spur on the dot, and break the record for fast running on the Alkali division.

By the rules of the road five minutes were allowed for the variation of watches, but the rule is not always wholly respected, and as the man on the special was known to be a daring driver, the sewing machine crew saw that they were in a close blace long before the smoke of the approaching locomotive was seen. Now they had barely five minutes left and nothing for the variation and the coveted siding four miles away. If the opposing train falled to respect the "five-minute rule" she minute, and the the menager was by no means satisfied. He pressed the butte the general manager was by no means satisfied. "Send the conductor to me," said the conclusion of the train, but the general manager was by no means satisfied. He pressed the butten d ager, noticing the embarrassment of the engine crew.

"What engine?" asked the engineer, trying to look and speak naturally.

"There was only one engine there beside your own," was the colonel's response. "Will you be good enough to answer my question?"

"Well," thought the driver, "if I've got 'em the G. M.'s got 'em," and he answered: "I did think she was on the main stem."

was staring at the engineer. The fireman only closed his eyes and shook his

"Did you see anything on your side?" asked the colonel, who was determined to unlock the lips of the fireman.

"Not a thing," said Harry, "I don't believe in ghosts."

"It will not be necessary for you to take out 63 (an accident report,) but I wish you would tell me what you saw and how it affected you," said the general manager, addressing the engineer.

"May I ask you first if you saw anything, colonel?" said the driver.

"I saw a locomotive standing on a spur or siding just east of Coyote."

"When I see her. first," said Sam, taking courage from the colonel's confession, "she was bang in front of us coming out of a cut like a bail out of a cannom. I saw it was all up with us, but I naturally shut off—mechanically, so to speak. I think I hooked her over, but I didn't whistle, open the sand valve not set the air—they wan't no use—no time—but just then I thought of little Sammie as I saw him last, hangin' on the fence by the seat uv his pants, an' it seemed to me that I never see anything quite so funny, and I laughed that hard that the tears came in my eyes and blinded me. Then the thought came to me that we were a long time coming together, so I looks ahead an' there wan't a thing in sight. I asked Harry if he see anything an' I lied too, an' opened up the throttle again. That's all I know about it."

There was a noticeable increase in the attention of the company, and Tim Flarity, the flagman, leaning low toward the table, crossed himself and ventured the prediction that they would have a head-end collision before they reached the function. "I never see a ghost train show up yet that didn't mean something," he added, but the burst of laughter that followed closed his circuit, and he said no more. Now the agent came in with a number of measages for the superintendent, and as the official began reading the first of the lot he began to smile.

open she might have made the curve all right, but the suden relaxation of all her tension caused a jar that threw her off her feet, but it was a lucky jar for her crew.

Since that time, however, old Sam has been in hard luck. He has already lost three legs. The last one, being caught under an engine, was chopped off by the conductor with an ordinary ax to prevent the engineer being roasted allve. Those who witnessed the operation say that Sam rested on one elbow and smoked a cigar until the conductor hacked away at his ankle. It was a wooden ieg.

SEMI-PRECIOUS STONES.

THEY ARE MUCH MORE POPULAR NOW THAN FORMERLY.

Spinel the Most Valuable—Its Range of Color Greater Than that of Any Other Known Stone—Many Mineralogical Gems Found in the United States.

CONTRIBUTED TO THE TMES.)

Public interest in the fancy, or semiprecious stones, has increased greatily in America since the Centennial Exposition of 1876. Formerly jewelers sold only diamonds, rubles, sapphires, emeralds, opals, pearls, garnets and agates, but now it is not unusual for the mineralogical gems, such as zircon, star sapphire, star ruby, tourmaline, spinel or titanite, to be called for, not only by collectors, but by the public whose taste has advanced as much in the matter of precious stones as it has in art.

Spinel is the most valuable of the semi-precious stones, and is one of the few minerals that are ornamental and beautiful enough for gems in their natural state. No other stone has so wide a range of color, and each color in turn is represented by many distinct shades.
The flame-red and crimson stones have been mistaken and sold for rubles, but although the hue may be vivid, yet it lacks the richness of the ruby. The orange-red spinels are called rubleelle, the pink ones balas ruby, and a charming variety of blues, blue-greens, inkyblues, purples and violets, terminating in the black spinel, called pleonaste, give this stone a range of color almost unequalled.

One would little expect to find the jewels of the Queen of the Ruby Mines any other than true rubles; but the English officer who, in 1888, took the hairpin from the private chamber of Souy-T-La, the Queen of Burma, in the palace at Mahdalay, was surprised to find that the red jewel in it was not a true ruby, but a fine ruby spinel.

Beryl is one of the most lustrous and hrilliant of gems and occurs in a variety of shades of yellow, golden yellow, yellow brown, brown, green, siga and and yellow green beryla, so-called from their resemblance to the color of sea

The topaz is found in graniterocks in Siberia, Japan, Peru, Ceylon, Australia, Brazil and Maine and in volcanic rocks in Colorado, Utah and New Mexico.

One of the most beautiful of all gems, and one not known two decades ago, is the green garnet called demantold, or "Uralian emerald," or "Bobrowska garnet," found at Poldnewaja, near Sysserk, in the government of Orenberg, Russia. It varies from yellowish green to an intense emerald color, and has such a power of refracting light that it shows a distinct fire like the diamond or zircon, and in the evening has almost.

Fine kind of whipping that was. Why we—"
He suddenly ceased, smitten mute by a sound that broke the stillness of the night. It was the sharp crack of a distant shot that made wild echoes among the hills. It was instantly followed by the hoarse cry of a human voice, a faraway yell of warning, singing of surprise, peril, fear of death. A moment later, there was a distant flerce spattering of shots. The sentry and the prisoner stood facing each other, their lips apart, listening.

The orchard at that instant awoke to sudden tumult. There was the thud and scramble and scamper of feet, the hollow and swift clash of arms, men's voices in question, oath, command, hurried and unhurried, resolute and frantic. A horse sped along the road at a raging gallop. A loud voice shouted: "What is it, Ferguson?" Another voice yelled something incoherent. There was a sharp discordant chorus of commands. An uproarious voiley suddenly rang from the orchard. The prisoner in gray moved from his intent listening attitude. Instantly the eyes of the sentry blazed, and he said, with a new and terrible sternness: "Stand where you are."

The prisoner trembled in his excite-new and terrible sternness: "Stand where you are."

The prisoner trembled in his excitement. Expressions of delight and triumph bubbled to his lips: "A surprise, by Gawd! Now! Now you'll see!"

The sentry stolidly swung his carbine to his shoulder. He sighted carefully along the barrel until it pointed at the prisoner's head, about at his nose. "Well, I've got you, anyhow. Remember that. Don't move."

The prisoner could not keep his arms from 'nervously gesturing. "I won't, but.—"

"And shut your mouth."

"And shut your mouth."

"And shut your mouth."

The three comrades of the sentry flung themselves into view. "Petedevil of a row—can you—"

"I've got him," said the sentry, calmly and without moving. It was as if the barrel of the carbine rested on plers of stone. The three comrades turned and dove into the Garkness.

In the orchard it seemed as if two gigantic animals were engaged in a mad, floundering encounter, snarling, howling, in a whirling chaos of noise and motion. In the barn the prisoner and his guard faced each other in silence.

les, the last words of the combat, spoken with feminine vindictiveness. Presently there was a thud of flying feet. A grimly panting red-faced mob of troopers in blue plunged into the barn, became instantly frozen to attitudes of amazement and rage, and then roared in onegreat chorus: "He's gone!"

The girl who knelt, weeping beside the body upon the fioor turned toward them her lamentable eyes and cried: "He's not dead, is he? He can't be dead?"

They througed forward. The sharp lleutemant, who had been so particular about the feed-box, knelt by the side of the girl and laid his head against the chest of the prostrate soldier. "Why, no," he said, rising and looking at the man. "He's all right. Some of you boys throw water on him."

"Are you sure?" demanded the girl. "Of course. He'll be all right after a while."

"Oh," said she, softly, and then looked down at the sentry. She started to arise and the lleutenant reached down and hoisted rather awkwardly at her arm.

"Don't you worry about him. He's all right."

She turned her face with its curving lips and shining eyes once more toward the unconscious soldier upon the floor. The troopers made a lane to the door, the lleutenant bowed, the girl vanished.

"Queer," said a young officer. "Girl very learned the search in the face.

the flettenant bowed, the girl valished.

"Queer," said a young officer. "Girl very clearly worst kind of a rebel and yet she falls to weeping and wailing like mad over one of her enemies. Be around in the morning with all sorts of doctoring—you see if she ain't. Queer."

The sharp lieutenant shrugged his shoulders. After reflection he shrugged his shoulders again. He said: "Warchanges many things, but it doesn't change everything, thank God." (Copyright, 1896, by S. S. McClure, Limited.)

and motion. In the barn the prisoner and his guard faced each other in silence.

As for the girl at the knot-hole—the sky had fallen in the beginning of this clamor. She would not have been astonished to see the stars swinging from their abodes and the vegetation, the barn, all blow away. It was the end of everything, the grand, universal murder. When two of the three miraculous soldiers who formed the original feed-box corps emerged in detail from the hole under the beam and sild away into the darkness, she did no more than glance at them.

Suddenly she recollected the head with silver eyes. She started forward and again applied her eyes to the knothole. Even with the din resounding from the orchard, from up the road and down the road, from the heavens and from the deep earth, the central fascination was this mystic head. There to her was the dark god of the tragedy.

The prisoner in gray at this moment burst into a laugh that was no more than a hysterical gurgle. "Well, you can't hold that gun out forever. Pretty son you'll have to lower it."

The sentry's voice sounded slightly muffled. for his cheek was pressed against the weapon. "I won't be tired for some time yet."

She did not run, because physically she was now in the power of these events. Her feet chained her, to the ground in submission to this march of terror after terror. As she stared at the spot from whence this sound seemed to come therefoated through her mind a vague, sweetwision, a visjon of her safe little room in which at this hour she usually was sleeping. The scratching continued fainth, and with frequent pauses as if the terrier was then listening. was then listening. When the girl first removed her eyes from the knothole, the scene appeared of one velvet darkness; then gradually objects loomed with a dim luster. She wolld now see where the tops of the trees soloned with a dim luster. She wolld now see where the tops of the trees soloned the sky and the form of the barn was before her, dyed in heavy purple. She was even about to shriek, but in sound came from her constricted throat. She gased at the ground with the expression of countenance of one who watches the sinister moving grass where a serpent approaches.

Dimly she saw a plece of sod wrenchedfreeand drawn from the great foundation beam of the barn. Once she imagined that she saw human hands, not outlined at all, but sufficient in color, form or movement to make subtle suggestion.

Then suddenly a thought that illuminated the entire situation flashed in her mind like a light. The three mea, late of the feed-box, were beneath the floor of the barn and were now scraping their way under the beam. She did not consider for a moment how they could come there. They were marvelous creatures. The supernatural was to be expected of them. She no longer trembled, for she was possessed upon this instant of the most unchangeable species of conviction. The evidence before her amounted to no evidence at all, but nevertheless her opinion grew in an instant from an irresponsible accorn to a rooted and immovable tree. It was as if she was on a ivry.

She stooped down hastily and scanned the ground. There she indeed saw a pair of hands hauling at the dirt where he sod had been displaced. Softly, in g whisper like a breath, her said. The dim hands were drawn hastily under the barn. The girl reflected for a moment. Then she stooped and whispered. "Hey'l It's me!"

indication that he had made an astonishing discovery. The others questioned him with their eyes, but he simply waved an arm to express his inability to speak at that spot. He led them back toward the hill, prowling carefully! At a safe distance from the barn he halted and, as they grouped eagerly about him, he exploded in an intense undertone: "Why that—that's Cap'in Sawyer they got in yonder." "Cap'n Sawyer!" incredously whispered the other men.

But the girl had something to ask. "How did you get out of that feedbox?" A man turned to her at once. "Oh! The feed-box?" He smiled. "Well, when you put us in there, we was just in a minute when we allowed it wasn't a mighty safe place, and we

After a time there was a resumption of the disging. The ghostly hands began once more their cautious mining. She waited, in hollow reverberations from the interior of the barn came the frequent sounds of old Santa's lazy movements. The sentry conversed with the prisoner.

At last the girl saw a head thrust slowly from under the beam. She perceived the face of one of the three miraculous soldiers from the feed-box. A pair of eyes glinted and wavered; then finally settled upon her, a pale statue of a girl. The eyes became lit with a kind of humorous greeting. An arm gestured at her.

Stooping, she breathed: "All right?" The man drew himself sliently back under the beam. A moment later the pair of hands resumed their cautious task. Ultimately the head and arms of the man were thrust strangely from the earth. He was lying on his back. The girl thought of the dirt in his hair. Wrigging slowly and pushing at the beam above him, he forced his way out of the curious little passage. He twisted his body and raised himself upon his hands. He grinned at the girl and, drew his feet carefully from under the beam. When he at last stood erect beside her, he at once began me-

Boys who are clumsy may learn how to overcome it, and those who are round-shouldered and flat-chested, how to straighten up. Ms in many other things the first lesson to learn is what not to do. One of Harvard's prize-winners said to me today: "First of all, boys must learn to not over-do; if they enter the college over-do; if they enter have never had any physical training at all than to be over-trained. They should stick to their free gymnastics and lightweight dumb-bells."

Dr. Anderson of Yale, who leads the world in physical training for boys, way strongly emphasized the fact that boys should not join a gymnasium unless the director was an educated man, or the department under the supervision of a physician. "Every boy," said he, "who reads of the doings of Sandow, is for the time being interested in that man of might. If he reads that Sandow acquired his great power by handling heavy dumb-bells, he will at once think that he can do the same, and will purchase a pair of fron bells, weighing from ix to twenty pounds, and begin to follow out the course of training recommanded by one of the strongest men in the world, forgetting that the methods are those used by lants and therefore of fiftle value to a boy. No boy, if he wishes to acquire attength and a good physique, should handle the heavy dumb-bells. Then he went on to tell me of a young fellow they once had in college, six feet four inches high, with broad shoulders, deep chest and powerful arms. Round shoulders and a flat chest may be remedied by any movement that brings the shoulder blades together. The young men in gymnastic classes at Yale are drilled in the following exercises for these defects:

for the great Emperor Napoleon had come to pass a few hours within its gates. Nearly thirty years had gone by since the "Little Corporal" had last looked upon Brienne. Then he was a poor pupil in the military school, unable to speak French, and avoided by his fellows. Now behold him lodged in the proud chateau of the Count de Lomenie, with courtiers and generals at his beek and call, the idolized ruler of France. Little wonder that the Emperor, riding at the head of a glittering staff to visit the ruins of his old school, should ponder upon the contrast which his for the great Emperor Napoleon had come to pass a few hours within its

They made my life miserable for months. I was poorthey had plenty of pocket money. I was 'a foreigner,' they were native born. I suffered tortures in this town of Brienne."

The Duc de Feltre, with Irish readiness, said something about early misfortunes sent by Providence to mould the spirits of the great. To this Napoleon answered nothing; but Clarke could see by the expression on his face that he was reviewing the events of his bitter boyhood. Presently, trough through the then Rue d'Aube, through lines of cheering citizens, they came in front of the quaint old Hotel Croix Blanche, the little inn where Napoleon Bonaparte had stayed the night before his entry to the military school. The Emperor halted absurbty.

"Ma foil" he said: "the Croix Blanche."

"Ma fol!" he said; "the Croix Blanche is just the same. Come, general, for the sake of old times, we will alight and take luncheon here instead of at the Chateau."

take luncheon here instead of at the Chateau."

The ways of sovereigns are not to be questioned. Gen. Clarke knew that a superb luncheon had been prepared at the Chateau; but the Emperor's will was law, and so the whole staff dismounted and followed their great master into the dusky parfors of the inn. Then followed a frantic scouring, of the Croix Blanche's limited larder, and a making ready of the Emperor's favorite roast chicken by the landlord in person. Meanwhile, at the window, looking into the roughly-paved street, Napoleon sat, watching intently all that passed without, and trying, perhaps, to recall his feelings of thirty years before.

"Just yonder," he said, pointing with his riding switch. "I dismounted from the Troyes diligence. There was no one to carry my meager valies, so I shouldered it myself. I looked odd, I am sure, with that shabby valise on my shoulders."

While the great Emperor was waiting for his roast chicken and chable, behind the diamond-shaped window panes of the Croix Blanche; a very different scene was going on in one of the squalid eating-houses at the lower end of Brienne. A huge, hirsute Italian sat drinking at one of the dirty cabaret tables, only interrupting his occupation to hurl hard words at his two silent companions. These were a small Italian boy, with a woe-begone, harassed face, and a tiny marmoset monkey absurdly dressed in plumed hat and red petticoat. The boy was trying to eat and to feed the monkey also, who sat on his shoulder.

"There you go," roared he of the angry words, "eating your fill, and doing as little work as possible. You are a preclous pair—you and the marmoset. But I'll tell you what, my fine Master Guiseppe, if you don't bring me back

Then servants angrily took to buffeting poor Guiseppe, and, the boy's hat falling off. all his little earnings rolled into the street.

Into the street.

The emperor had finished his chicken and his chablis. He stood at the familiar window drawing on his gloves. Something seemed to arrest his attention, for he started, and then, smillingly beckoned Gen. Clarke to his side.

"Monsieur le Duc," he said, "do you see that little Italian boy on the steps carrying a marmoset over his shoulder?

Well, that little fellow reminds me of myself—myself that was thirty years ago. If you can imagine the marmoset to be a valise, the boy cuts much the same figure on those

This sudden exclamation on Napoleon's part, had been caused by the double onslaught made upon Guiseppe.
For a moment the emperor watched the scene in grim silence; but when the boy's fattered cap fell off, scattering the money. Napoleon wheeled impetuously about, and rushed into the hallway. Gen. Clarke followed, in time to see his sovereign seize an inn servant by the shoulder and push him roughly aside. Then Clarke, divining Napoleon's wishes, sprang forward and lifted the terrified Guiseppe out of harm's way.

"Bring him into the parlor," said the emperor; and into the parlor was the little vagrant carried. A young aid-decamp all ablaze with gold lace, followed, dragging the unwilling marmoset. Napoleon laid his hand kindly on the boy's black locks and said in musical Italian: "Do not be afraid, my little one, you are with friends."

Guiseppe's face became all radiant at the sound of his mother tongue. Then upon questioning he told his story—and a sad little story it proved to be.

A New and Interesting Came for the Early Spring. (CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.)

Tip and run is the name of a gamour English cousins are just learning-both boys and girls. It resembles cricket, so some one says, as a caricature resembles its original.

It is a game to play early in the spring, before cricket or tennis can be thought of, and it has this advantage over golf that it can be played on lawns or garden plots without damage to the turf.

Tip and run fivolves much exercise of a rather severe kind.

This is the manner of it: The fair guardian of the wicket, armed with a bat or even a racket, takes her stand, and as soon as she has hit the bowler's ball, is bound to run as fast as she can between the wickets, as failure to hit or to run involves discomfiture and an immediate successor at the bat.

The score mounts up rapidly, as some expert batswomen hit each time and fly to and fro like a ball herself, until she can be dislodged by three successive failures to hit her ball. The other players field out, with a success generally less than more. Bowling usually taxes the skill of fair players more than batting. They do not, as a rule, bowl with the mechanical skill which marks the masculine player.

Eleven is the proper number for each team of tip and run; when men are permitted to reinforce the eleven, they play left-handed or bat with broomsticks. But even thus handicapped they often seem to be more than a match for their fair antagonists, though there be elevens, and there are those who can well hold their own upon the level green, and are afraid of no man's prowess, and understand all the intricacies of the game.

The maiden possessed of Atalanta's speed and grace will doubtless prove the prise player at tip and run, but every girl who indulges in the game will find herself the better and the roster for the fresh air, sunshine and exercise it gives her.

DIANA CROSSWAYS.

(CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.)

If you want to get up some really novel Easter eggs, and some that will send your boy or girl friends wild with delight, try the following plan:

Divide your eggs into three portions, color some of them dark brown (seal.) some yellow and leave others white, merely boiling them hard.

Take paints and brushes (water colors are best, because they dry at once, and if plenty of megilp is used they will not rub) and outline faces on them.

Take a dark brown egg, outline nose and eyes on it in black, touch in the nostrils and corners of the eyes in red, and paint a very thick-lipped African mouth in the same color. Put the whites of the eyes in with Chinese white, and irls and pupil with black, then outline a pair of heavy rimmed glasses over the eyes with your Chinese white.

One-third of these brown eggs may press your cotton aginst it, and trim off any that seems too long or ragged. The hair is arranged in the same way and it looks funnier to leave the whole top of the head bald, and put only a fringing of it at the base.

On the other of your brown eggs put a gay little turban of plaid China silk, and gum big bead ear-rings at the side. The rest, on which no spectacles should be painted, may be fixed up as smart young men and girls, using a flamboyant hat made of paste board and trimmed with paper ribbon for the young women. A baby, too, is apt. to please. Make its eyes rounder, draw its mouth wide open, filling in the open portion with black.

These eggs are all to be mounted on little circles or squares of heavy cardboard, being attached to them with thick glue.

The men's heads are finished with tall shirt collars, cut from stiff white paper, and neckties of narrow red ribbon, the old auntie's with a crossed kerchief like her turban, the young woman's with a white sruche, and the baby's with a wilde white ruffle.

The yellow eggs are for Chinamen, their features are put on just as the negroes' are, only that the eyes must slant, the mouth must be small and red, and a tinge of color rubbed into the cheek is an addition.

Queues may be braided of black silk or linen thread and added, and wide hats made of thin yellow cardboard or heavy paper, cut in a circle considerably larger than the cardboard case, slitup the center and pressed a little to make it slant down.

A Chinese or Japanese lady is effective, if one has the skill to manage the elaborate hairdressing necessary. If jute or mohair, such as imitation hair switches are made of, can be had the little colifure is quite easily put together and gummed on. The Chinese baby is the funniest of all. Make him looking out of the corners of his absurd slant eyes, and give him a little fringe of black hair arranged as you see it on the heads of Japanese dolis.

Of the eggs left uncolored make young women with rosy cheeks, or children with curly bangs, if you can get drummer and strive for fame and fortune."

The lad hesitated a moment and then answered in a half-whisper: "Signor, I had rather go home to Genoa."

"But why?" said Napoleon—"It is but a poor place; whereas my army is the greatest in the world. You will have a fine uniform in my army, and may become a great general like M-de Feltre here, some day. Consider, little one; why do you prefer to go back to Genoa?"

"Signor," replied Guiseppe—"it—it is my home, and the mother lives there."
The empetor slipped the purse into the boy's ragged shirt. "Thirty years ago," he murmured with a sign—"I should have chosen as he does."

(Harper's Weekly) It being aged 35 or more, you will consult the geography of your childhood, there shall you find the words "American Desert" printed over a general space between the Missouri and California, with little else printed there at all. Today that vacancy upon our map is filled with dotted towns and county lines, and romenclature of every size, and—upon paper to the untraveled eye—the American Desert would seem clothed with citizens and progress. This is true in some places, and undoubtedly will be true in more. A part of Utah is now a very garden; in Arizona the Salt River Valley is another where fruit and crops and prosperity abound; others there are that teem with both promise and performance. And yet, I suppose, the whole watered area of Arizona, where man and beast can flourish, is not anything like 2000 square miles, while the area of that Territory in total is close to one hundred and thirteen thousand, and so with New Mexico, Western Texas, Utah and Idaho, a similar proportion between desert and fertility will be found; their plenty may be called called scarcely more than a drop in the bucket, while in Nevada the thing grows worse instead of better. Here, save at the edge, not a stream that rises has strength to run out, but dies in the sand or in some evaporated lake; the population dwindles yearly, and Nevada at present produces almost nothing except a Senator or two. So that, on the whole, the old geography was right, and it is not until you reach the Coast States, California, Oregon and Washington, where there is a real rainfall, that an honestly productive region lies around you in any abundance.

In this work your glue must be thick and strong, and your painting must be given time to dry, or you will find your eggs toppling to pieces and smeared before they are completed.

that he had left no call at the office, he was naturally indignant. But his sleep was spoiled for that morning, so he arose, and soon after appeared before the clerk.

"See here." he demanded of this individual, "why was I called at this uncerthly hour?"

"I don't know, sir," answered the clerk. "I'll ask Mike."

The frishman was accordingly summoned. Said the clerk:

"Mike, there was no call for Mr. Jefferson. Why did you disturb him?"

Taking the clerk by the laper of the coat, the Hibernian led him to one side, and said, in a mysterious whisper: "He were thnoring loike a horse, sor; and ol'd heer the bys saying something about how he were once afther shiaping for twinty years, so ol says to meell, "Molike, it's a-cooming onto 'im again, and it's yer juty to get the crayther out o' yet house instantly!"

Love Comes and Goes.

(Jean Wright, in March Lippincott's:)
The causes are many; but the greatest of these are propinguity and ennul. One captious critic and would-be cynichas objected that these words are synonyms; but perhaps he has been whortunate in his neighbors. Propisquity does not necessarily mean one snext-door neighbor (though there are several well-authenticated cases where otherwise prudent young men hare succumbed to the fascinations of sdjacent damsels because of the steep and rocky road which led to town. Propinguity means easily to be got at, and for the other happy the human being who needs a definition of ennul. When the spirit of boredom takes hold of a man, does not he find himself in wisting with an "angel brightness" that being who is not only easily to got st, but, who seems to offer a refuge fron the horror of rusticity or the hauning cares of business, and even promises an escape from the enforced and to constant association with himself? Llove not, love not, ye hapless sons of clay!" To him who feels the sproutings of this spurious tenderness I ss, be careful of thyself! Stocks may rise, or one may move to town, and in this world of sorrow there is nothing which brings such cold despair, which so chills the heart and freezes the blod, as the necessity of "making love," with all the time a horrible consciousness of the impotence and hollowness of all things. It brings weariness to the sul, and makes of life a howning wilderess. Often the love-lit smile hides the grin of deperation. Nothing in life lasts; why should so much be expected of that which from its very nature kills itself? Love brought about by such a cause, or causes, beannot last; it hurns, itself to ashes. And it very essence of ennul rises from the shees of a burnt-out love.

Unfailingly in nature these shapes express the inner life, the native quality, of the animal, tree, bird, fish, that they present to us; they are so characteristic, so recognizable, that we say simply, it is "natural" it should be so. Yet the moment we peer beneath this surface of things, the moment we look through the tranquil reflection of ourselves and the clouds above us, down into the clear, fluent, unfathomable depths of nature, how startling is the silence of it, how amazing the flow of life, how absorbing the mystery! Unceasingly the essence of things, and this unspeakable process we call birth and growth. Awhile the spirit and the matter fade away together, and it is this we call decadence, death. These two happenings seemed joined and interdependent, blended into one like a bubble and its iridescence, and they seem borne along upon a slowly-moving air. This air is wonderful, past all understanding.

Lola Montez borne along upon a slowly-moving air. This air is wonderful, past all understanding. Yet to the steadfast eye of one standing upon the shore of things, looking chiefly and most lovingly upon that side on which the sun shines and that we feel joyously to be life, the heart is ever gladdened by the beauty, the exquisite spontaneity, with which life seeks and takes on its forms in a perfectly responsive accord with its needs. It seems ever as though the life and the form were absolutely one and inseparable, so adequate is the sense of fulfilment. Whether it be the sweeping eagle in his flight, or the open apple blossom, the toiling work-horse, the blithe swan, the branching oak, the winding stream at its base, the drifting clouds, over all the coursing sun, form ever follows function, and this is the law. Where function does not change, form does not change. The granite rocks, the every brooding hills, remain for ages; the lightning lives, comes into shape, and dies, in a twinkling. Creme,

Americans Doing Much to Develop the Country.

GUAYMAS (Sonora, Mex.,) March 18.

—To the average reader of The Times, its newest field, Sonora, Mexico, is a remote region, somewhere in the sister republic, to the southward, but little more, is known of the State than the name. Sonora might be down by Yucatan, and inhabited by barbarians, for all that is generally known of it in California. In reality, however, it is a near-neighbor, nearer to Los Angeles then Oregon, and Yurthermore, is a good neighbor.

geies than Oregon, and Intrhemore, is a good neighbor.
Sonora lies to the southward of Arisona and New Mexico, and extends far down the Gulf of California, It is opened to the world by a branch of the Santa 376 system, and several scaports; the chief of which is Guaymus. Of late years it has come in for attention of Americans, and here has been found a congenial and remunerative field for American capital. Money is to be made here in numerous lines, and the nephews of Uncle Samuel are always made welcome so long as they abide made welcome so long as they abide by the laws of the land, and particularly so when they bring along pocket-fuls of his beautiful golden double eagles to invest. The best investments to be made today are probably in the mining way. Silver had big profits in it there a few years ago, and even now it is being mined, and, of course, for it is being mined, and, of course, to the money in it. For gold, however, Sonora is a dandy, with golden bangles all over his hat, and The Times takes pleasure in introducing him to California, who knows something about gold, herself. While the papers of the world, and The Times along with them, have given insight into wondrous dehave given insight into wondrous deposits of the yellow metal in the Transvaal, Alaska and Cripple Creek, Sonora has not been heard of, with richer deposits than them all. The story of the Minas Prietas gold camp, and the wonderful Yaqui River gold region requires special meation of itself, and will appear subsequently in The Times. Suffice it to say now that, for extent and richness, there are no gold fields known today to compare with those of Prietas and thereabouts.

Oranges here offer inducements that would compare favorably under judicious management with our own beautiful Southern California. They are grown in the methods of the land of the mafiana, however, so they are not to any alarming extent a rival. The fruit is small, ranging about two hundred to the box, but of delicious flavor. Of this orange industry, more, too, later.

of this orange industry, more, too, later.

The Mexican people here are the most progressive in Mexico. They are not angels, by any means, and any American who came among them and expected to run them on United States principles would find that he was butting his head against a very hard stone welk. Taking them, however, in comformity with their own laws and customs, and meeting them fairly half way, the "gringo" will find in them a hearty and faithful cooperation, and will bless the day he came among them. The Mexicans have, by no means, the lazy and shiftless attributes that have been ascribed to them by many americans. The most faithful employes of the mining companies down here, the men who can be found at the same post year in and year out, are the Mexicans. While not attaining often to positions requiring executive ability, and being blamed for a content with modest positions and standing, they are desirable allies to the foreigner employing them, plodding and willing always. Life and property are as safe among them as in our own United States, and to their credit it may be said that justice is more prompt and stern than there. Train-robbery and stage-robbery are here practically unknown, and this too in a land where heavy shipments of gold builion are being constantly transported. It was the writer's pleasure recently to see at the Torres, of gold weighing 250 pounds each, and yalued at $11 an ounce. That batch of pleasure recently to see at the Torres, Sonora, Wells-Fargo office, eleven bars of gold weighing 250 pounds each, and valued at $11 an ounce. That batch of gold was in very little danger of seizure, for, in this country, a death peasity for train or stage-robbery means sure-enough death. Not long ago, in Northern Sonora, there was a party who thought to evade the penalty, and at the same time participate in the profits of helding up a mining paymaster. But alas, for them? Col. Kosterlitsky soon rounded them up with his dreaded "Rurales," stood them up in a row against an adobe wall and shot big holes in them. Such measures are discouraging to the robbing element of Sonora, and the business does not flourish.

discouraging to the robbing element of Sonora, and the business does not flourish.

The chief eitles of Sonora are Hermosillo, the capital, and Guaymas, the chief seaport. In these towns reside the better class of the Mexicans, people of delightfui courtesy and cordiality. The cities are built on the adobe plan, with patids of rare plants within, and a prison-like appearance to the exterior, due to iron bars over every window, at Hermosillo the city is sweet with the fragrance blown in from the orange groves, now in full blossom. The streets are marrow and crooked, and all jut into one another. On them may be seen many queer features. There are the f'diligencias," double-seated open carriages, for hire at very modest rates. The horses are worked on the plan that whips are cheaper than barley. Then there are the Yaquis, who come in driving two or four oxen, hitched to a two-wheeled cart piled high with wood. The oxen are urged on by pointed prods of bamboo, the merciless drivers constantly pricking, Genrau sores made by their driving, Burros zig-zag into town with rawhide sacks of water on either side. The leading languages are heard everywhere, mostly Spanish, but also French, German and our own beloved United States. The whole aspect of either of these cities is decidedly foreign parts quickly and economically they are advised to make a tour of Sonora, appropos a pointer or two from one who has been there: If going to Guaymas take along extra blankets, for the leading languages are heard everything else is bad in various degrees, from the beef, which is out up on the "by-the-yard" plan, and is just ordinarily tough and tastless to the butter, in comparison to which axie-greese is silt-edge, it being superlatively vile. Barring these discomforts a trip into Sonora, made in the winter time, when the cilimate is just perfection, is a pleasant outling.

Two prominent citizens of Sonora, one a Mexican, the other an American,

Railroad) have the following to say of the State:

CRETARY ORTIZ ON SONORA.

SECRETARY ORTIZ ON SONORA.

Secretary Celedonic C. Ortis is a fine type of the Mexican gentleman. He was found at his office in the government palace. He speaks English with fluency, and acquiesced pleasantly to the request to say something for The Times about Sonora.

The population of Sonora," said Secretary Ortis, "Is in the neighborhood of 188,000, according to the census of last year. In Hermosillo proper there are about 9000, with about 14,000 in the municipality. In Guaymas, the population is about 7000. The resources of the state are mining, agriculture and cattle-raising, with some sea-faring and manufacturing. Its condition is decidedly prosperous, and its wealth on the increase. Commerce has improved wonderfully, and merchants admit that business is enlarging.

FOREIGNERS WELCOME.

FOREIGNERS WELCOME.

"Are foreigners and foreign capital welcome." Decidedly so. Foreigners are thoroughly protected, but the outside investments are more sought and encouraged. We desire that foreigners should be perfectly satisfied with our country and our laws. Many enterprises in Sonora are in foreign hands, and investors express satisfaction at their treatment from the country and the government.

MINING IN SONORA.

"Sonora is a splendid mining country, rich in gold and silver, and in this line Sonora is sure to have a big boom. Of course the largest camp of the state is at Minas Prietas, which, as you know, is very extensive, indeed. There only a few mines are worked of a great many in that district, On the Yaqui River gold is washed out at the placers. The Altar district, up near Arizona, is rich in gold, most of which is worked by the dry process. In the mountains to the eastward silver is smelted with wood in rude furnaces. To the northeastward, in the Nacossari district, copper is mined extensively and smelted on the ground. This property recently changed hands, being now in charge of Superintendent Darlington, who succeeded Col. Weir, with the old management. To the southward and near the coast there is another big copper property, the Rosailo camp, owned by French capital. French steamers are loaded at the coast with buillon from the camp and ship the metal to Europe. The state is very rich in mineral, and there is a great future in our mines.

"The commerce of Sonora is large.

eral, and there is a great future in our mines.

"The commerce of Sonora is large. You would be surprised at the stocks of goods carried by our merchants, and the large amount of fine goods, particularly of silks and fancy dress goods. Some goods come from the United States, chiefly hardware, considerable of which is from California. One trouble is the high rallroad rates, which do not compete with steamer freights. Other things being equal, our merchants favor the United States. We get our hardware and prints from the United States; silks and laces from England and France; wines from France and Spain, and furniture from Austria.

"Some goods are market with the stocks of the states, which was a state of the states of the states of the states."

Austria.

"Some goods are manufactured in our own borders. At Ures is a woolen mill, where is made blankets, clothes. seranes, etc., using the latest machinery and employing sixty to 100 operatives. In the interior are immense factories for the manufacture of shoes, manta, and latterly, Kentucky jeans, to which the Yaquis have taken a great fancy. "The silver question of the United States has improved this section. With the fall of silver here, goods formerly purchased abroad became too high, and factories were put in, which furnished employment for many people, and kept our money at home.

NEW ENTERPRISES. Austria.

proposed to divide the lands and sell them to farmers and others.

"A railroad line will soon be constructed from Torris to the Minas Prietas camp. The concession has been granted to Mr. Seymour, late owner of the Grand Central mine. He afready owns the equipment of the defunct line to Cerro Blanco, and this he will take up and replace below. This will undoubtedly prove a profitable undertaking. Six or more stage lines have been doing a good business on that route for years. Mr. Seymour proposes to start on the work at once, later agreements are signed.

"In Hermosillo here H. T. Richards has been granted a concession for street car lines. It is optional with him whether he puts in horse or electric cars. Mr. Richards also has another meritorious project. It is the damming of the river near here from the bedrock up, thus impounding the underflow of the stream and obtaining a great deal of water now lost, for irrigation and other uses."

THE YAQUI "WAR."

great deal of water now lost, for irrigation and other uses."

THE YAQUI "WAR."

The telegraph columns of The Times have already reported the killing of forty Yaqui Indians in a battle east of Ortis station last Thursday. This, it would seem, nearly annihilated the Yaqui "army," for Secretary Ortis estimates the number of the warring element at about sixty. The Yaquis may be seen throughout Sonora, a people peculiar from all others. Their native dress is decidedly quaint and picturesque. Blankets are wrapped about their upper body, the flowing end thrown back, over the left shoulder. The pants are wider and shorter and more flowing than any Los Angeles Chinese laundryman would ever dare attain to, and are cleanest white native coton goods, called manta. The feet are base or at best sport sandals. The inovation of shoes has lately been attempted by a few, but is frowned on generally. The hair is chopped off square behind, never reaching so low as the shoulders. These Yaquis are good workers and brave fighters, at the boilers of the various gold mills at the Prietas camp Yaquis are preferred to Mexicans, and one engineer said he would "rather have one Yaqui, fireman than six Mexicans." From time to time reports of skirmishes between the Mexican soldlery and these people have come out to the world. Of this "war" Secretary Ortis says:

"The Yaquis were up to recent times an independent tribe, living along and adjacent to the Yaqui River. In 184 the Mexican government sent a commission to treat with these Indians. It was finally proposed to allot the lands in severalty to each head of a family. They did not take kindly to the proposition; and grose in arms. From that time there has been a desultory warfare with the rebels of the tribe. At first the warriors numbered thousands, but gradually they, acquiesced to the government plan until now but sixty or threabouts are at war. They are difficult to quell, as when they are THE YAQUI "WAR."

OCCURRENCE.

"Oh, that is easy of explanation. In the first place, I make a considerable saving through the year, and no matter how small my purchase may be, I always save something, ----, and everything they have is so reliable; they seem in every department to make a study of having goods that bring me back a second time for them, and, above all, what I most appreciate is the comfortable and home-like feeling I experience while in that store. They are so attentive to my most trifling wants, and my country friends also tell me that their orders by mail to this firm are just as correctly filled as if they bought them personally at their counters, "Well; that is my ideal of a business concern, and I will certainly trade there, too."

SUPERINTENDENT NAUGLE ON SONORA.

J. A. Naugle is superintendent of the Guaymas, Mex., to Benson, Ariz. He was found at the company's headquarters at Guaymas. Of the big Yaqui River Canal project he said:

"This company proposes to put 200,000 acres of fertile land in cultivation. They offered to guarantee a trainload of products every day in the year.

scres of fertile land in cultivation. They offered to guarantee a trainload of products every day in the year from there, if the railroad was continued to their country. The Santa Fé is not engaged at present in building railroads, however.

"Business is good in this country," continued Mr. Naugle. "Traffic, both railroad and marine, was never better. There is more money in the country than ever before. From the United State come hardware, agricultural implements, mining machinery, cotton goods and oil. About 25 per cent. of the imports into Sonora are from Europe, against 75 per cent. from the United States.

"The State of Sonora has six or eight modern flouring mills, which produce flour enough not only for all home consumption, but for a considerable trade down the coast. Twenty-five per cent, of the tonnage of this road is wheat, flour, corn and beans.

"The drop in silver has been of benefit to this country. Gold is obtained for all exportation, such as ore, buillion and cattle, and all labor is paid in silver, and, Mexican dollars being 55 cents now, a saving of about half is made there, which has had the result of developing the country.

"Foreigners are welcome in Mexico, Business cannot be done as in the United States, but by conforming to the laws of the country an outsider is as well treated as anywhere.

"Along the coast the development has been marked. A new steamship line has been organized, to ply between coast points and San José de Guatemala. Tri-monthly trips will be made, the draffic will comprise mainly merchandise, flour, barbed wire, hides and coffee. The business will be more local than through. Four steamers are already in the service, and a new one left England February 25 for here.

"The city of Guaymas has a beautiful harbor. At present there are three Mexican men-of-war here, the Zaragosa, a cadet ship; the Democrata, in here for new boilers, and the Oaxaca, a troop transport. The railroad company has a large wharf and warehouse on Ardilla Island, where deep-water vessels can discharge and receive cargoes to and from the cars.

"Senator Joaquin Redo recently finvesses can discharge and receive cargoes to and from the cars.

"Semator Joaquin Redo recently finished the construction of a marine railroad here for docking ships up to 1000 or 1200 tons capacity, and it is in successful operation.

"It is expected here that within the present year the headquariters of the Pearl Fishery Company of La Paz, Lower California, will be removed to this place, adding 2000 people to the population. The company has an extensive facet of small boats for pearl fishing, that ply down the coast as far as Central America. An American concern is negotiating with the company for the erection of a pearl-button factory here, which will employ 300 people. The company obtain 300 to 400 tons of pearls annually, many of them very fine. These latter are shipped to Paris.

WANT LOS ANGELES OII..

"If the Mexican government would waive the duty on oil for fuel exclusively, the Los Angeles oil fields would be of great utility here, and the result would be great development of mining and other enterprises. The oil could be brought here in tank cars or by water, at a figure that would justify a large trade in that product at the prices now prevailing. At present there is comparatively little fuel in the country, wood being aften remote from the camps, as at Minas Prietas, where it is hauled twelve to forty miles. Oil hurners could the put in there and operated with econ-

GIRLS FORGET HOW TO PLAY. Miss Hill's first aim in physical trainis to develop the play instinct which so early crushed out of little girls, r whole argument is to keep more sely to nature. The little girl is too on cut off from playing with her others, from climbing trees, jumping ces, running and leaping, so that by time her heir goes up and her skirts ne down, the love of natural sponseous movement has become a lost use. It is pathetically true that if a shman class were turned loose out of ors and told to play, they would not ow what to do with themselves; and still, whose radiant color and art manner bespeak her own love of imal movemnt, is, as a rule, in far yer spirits than many of the young is who have huddled over their obs until the very thought of physical ertion is a bore to them. In this reset American college girls are far bed their English sisters. At Girton & Newham, hockey and cricket are ly to nature. The little girl is too

velop themselves to the utmost along the lines of beauty, grace and elegance. The aesthetic side of their work constitutes learning to walk naturally and gracefully, cultivating a fine carriage of head and body, leaping and climbing, in fact everything that tends to the personal, practical side of life, including jumping from a carriage, landing correctly, and even running for a car. a car. THE IMPORTANCE OF GAMES FOR

Since so much of this work is simply Since so much of this work is simply "setting up" and corrective, it is deadly duil unless the instructor has the power to throw an imense amount of animal spirits into the lesson. But even under the best conditions, Miss Hill has found that gymnastics do not furnish the necessary nerve stimulus, the refreshment that is necessary to a good-working brain; that games alone give a recreation of vital energy, and that she whose brain shall be the most clear, the most active, and in the freshest mental condition must have the nerve stimulus which comes from sports.

"I have not started games at Wellesley," said she, "simply because I and Newham, hockey and cricket are as much a matter of course as their baths.

encourage legitimate competition in Wellesley is the first woman's college in America to have a regular organized crew. Miss Hill has won such laurels from her pioneer work in this delightful sport, and is so unquestionably in the lead, that wherever they can command the necessary water privileges, colleges are now waking up to the importance of this line of physical training, and Miss Hill is frequently called upon to give them the aid of her valuable experience. She is at the present time organising a crew at Cornell, and analyzing the stroke for them.

Four years ago, Miss Hill started at Wellesley organized rowing, that is, rewing on a scientific basis, selecting the candidates from physical suitability for the sport, and instructing them in the correct technical methods of rowing in good form, taking up seriously the study of the rowing stroke and analyzing the different types with special reference is their application to girls. They have now been experimenting four years, and through the kindness of Havvard, Yale and Oxford friends have this apring evolved a Wellesley stroke. The most resembles the Harvard stroke, as it has the long body swing.

Wellesley stroke. This most resembles the Harvard stroke, as it has the long body swing.

In the middle of February began in struction on the rowing machines for the captains of the '96 crew, who will in their turn pass the stroke along to the candidates. These captains under Miss Hill are the student coaches and coxswains. There are sixteen accepted candidates for one class crew, divided into two boats. Early in the year the applicants present themselves. From these are taken the candidates and from the candidates at a date chosen by the captain, is selected the crew for float day, the objective point of the whole year. In this way all the girls are kept interested, and the greatest good given to the greatest number. Instead, therefore, of having one perfectly trained, finished crew of 133 girls each year get the benefit, pleasure and stimulus of scientific rowing. They are taught to analyze the stroke on rowing machines preliminary to going into the boats. The crew girls are obliged to work in the symnasium twice a week to keep them straight and normal, and after the rowing begins, three hours minimum a week on the lake is required. They never row without trained supervision, either that of Miss Hill or one of the student officers. These young women have no desire to become athletes, hence are not working for exceptional strength, but for technical skill, good form, health and pleasure. They have interclass matches, and their interest is naturally greatly stimulated by the competition in technical skill, although the victor is awarded no trophy.

HAVE SURPRISED VALE HAVE SURPRISED TALE.

Miss Hill is trying to carry out the English spirit of a genuine love of sports. Americans, she thinks, are too much inclined to work for the trophy, the gate money and the glory. Yale, Harvard and Oxford men have taken a great interest in the Wellesley crew, although none of them have ever coached the young women professionally. One of the old Yale oarsmen expressed the greatest surprise that girls with such limited opportunities, with no money, and little time, could accomplish so much. Many of the young women deny themselves much in the way of ribbons, flowers and bon-bons to men deny themselves much in the way of ribbons, flowers and bon-bons to save money for the necessary expenses of the crew. And only with the great-est difficulty can they get the time to work together, for as yet no regular field hour has been provided for on the field hour has been provided for on the programme.

The crew and basket-ball team constitute the organized, representative class sports, for which physical suitability and a definite amount of work is required. The girls are selected according to their gymnastic excellence and general good health conditions.

They are examined by the college physician and resident health officer, who decide for what games they are best adapted. Besides these organized sports, Wellesley has three social-sports, tennis, bleycling and golf, for which neither physical examination nor a regular amount of work is required.

Miss Hill is hoping to organize this spring, class sports of a different grade from rowing and basket-ball to suit the needs of delicate girls, such as bowling on the green, archery, etc. Her aim is to be entirely democratic in the matter of sports, having games of different variety, form and degree of activity to suit all conditions of girls.

CORSETS ALL RIGHT.

Freshmen are often surprised at the beginning of their lessons in physical training in not being advised to fling away their corsets. Quits to the contrary Miss Hill recommends retaining them if their good appearance is in any way dependent upon this false support, until such time as they have developed a well set-up figure, and overcome in a measure the weakness that tomes from improper clothing. By that time the young women are quite ready of their own accord to sacrifice at least the front bone, which is the veritable bone of contention.

Miss Hill confessed herself very advanced in her ideas of costume, and would like the same outfit to serve both for field and class room, as the change from one to the other requires too much time. The field costume at Wellesley consists of knickerbockers, as short skirt, Norfolk jacket, sweater, or shirt waist, according to weather, high boots, and a little cap. For the symnasium the knickerbockers, which are a little less full than the much-discussed bloomers, are worn without the skirt.

(Acton Rooster:) The mining industry has never looked better for Acton than at present, and there are no fisming articles sent out either about such rich discoveries here and there to excite people. But put this down: Acton is the coming mining center. What ought to be done now is to drift a tunnel two thousand feet below the top on Mount Gleason, and put in proper reduction works here. There are millions in it. There are no better openings for capital than here, and it will come.

with electricity in a most satisfactory manner. First, fill in the window with lattice work, and then outside in the balcony hang a powerful electric lamp in a lantern, with the dark side to the street. If the afternoon is dreary, the light is turned on and gleams through the lattice, making it look like wooden lacework. Some enterprising house-wives have even gone to the length of having electric lights fitted to high-backed, easy chairs, where the light may fell upon the book one is reading, and probably it will not be long before some clever woman has a vestibule light connected with the front-loor bell, so that the mere act of ringing turns on the light which welcomes you home.

Mr. Edison's house "filenmont," at Orange, naturally is completely fitted up with electric lights, and pressing upon a little knob in the front hall lights up every part of the mansion, from cellar to turret, and the effect is something like a dream of Haroun al Raschid.

The entrance hall of Mrs. Thurlow Weed Barner's house is lighted by a peacock, all leweled and gloriously radiant with every color ever dreamed of by the most ambitious bird. By day it resembles a handsome, respectable fowl, adorning a corner and spreading his tail in the most approved fashion, but by night, behold a transformation. Some one presses a button somewhere, and then the peacock dess all the rest and shines as brilliantly as a dozen sums.

Fashion surely moves in a discreetly leisurely way her wonders to perform. After months of prophecy and spaculation on the part of those who are supposed to know the inside workings of Parisian ateliers, where clothes are created, the first small sleeves have just appeared. They are not so very small, either, but the model costumes have a reserved sort of overlapping puff at the top, and then, from four inches above the elbow clean down to the wrist the arm bag fits close as a glove, as a very wrinkled glove, since the newest sleeve is gathered along the inside and outside seam, while instead of any cuff it fits right down over the hand and is finished off with frills of face that fall to the knuckle.

The brown skirt is used with a little scarlet vest of Scotch cheviot, picked out in white, and a coat of rich beetlegreen broadcioth of summer weight. The coat buttons over with a fly front, has a green velvet collar, short talls and not a big button to mar its smart simplicity. With gray plaid skirts, sapphire-blue coats are the correct mode, as care must be taken that with a checked petitionat a jacket of solid-toned goods is used. These skirts, by the way, are just sing yards around and absolutely plain, not a strap nor a seam decoration appearing.

In her beautiful home in Rutland Square, Boston, Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton held, on February 28, her last "at home" for this season in America.

If possible, Mrs. Moulton's Fridays have been rather more brilliant than usual this winter, and at any one of them the modest seeker after llons might look up to suddenly find himself entirely surrounded by them. To the right stands a little thin, neutral-tinted man, who, we are told, is George Cable. And, though there is nothing about him to indicate the lion; in fact, everything to suggest the reverse, splendid passages from the "Grandissimes" and "Dr. Bevier" pass before the mental vision, and make one pause and de reverence, allowing that at least he can roar with the best of them. To the left is Julia Marlowe Tabor, radiantly lovely in black brocade skirt, pink chiffon bodice, and large black velvet hat, engaged in eager conversation with the no less charming Gertrude Hall. A little in front one sees the sweetly-reserved Mary Wilkins, her whole atmos-

AS A GIRL.

Mrs. Moulton was brought up in the old Calvanistic faith, and her childish irosgibation was often filled with pictures of gloom, and dire foreboding as to her future state. She was an only child and greatly petted and induised, although never allowed any but the most serious amusements. Reading fiction, dancing and playing cards being looked upon as the broad road leading straight to perdition. But the imaginative child needs little for its amusiment beyond the splendor of its own imaginings; and Mrs. Moulton tails of how, when she was 8 years old, she carried in her mind all one summer what she called a Spanish drama, and every moment that she could get by herself, she spend summoning before her the characters and watching their behavior, which often astonished her. One young girl particularly, who persisted in dying of consumption, quite against her authors will.

Mrs. Moulton was barely is when her first book was published, and over 15, 600 copies were sold. Edmund Clarenos Stedman, who had just then graduated from Yale, and was editing a paper in a country town, was one of her kindest reviewers and thus began a friendship which was constituted ope of the mymorable pleasures of Mrs. Moulton's life.

LATER ACHIEVEMENTS.

Beside the numerous volumes which Mrs. Moulton has published, some of her very best work has been done in the way of reviews and letters to newpapers. These have always been distinctly literary in character, and were eagerly looked for by the omitivated portion of the reading public as the best possible suggestions for "what to read." But the passion of her life is postry. She feels that poetry alone fully expresses her. Mrs. Moulten never writes unless impelled to do so by the inspiration within.

"Unless the poem comes," said she,
"raps at my door and asks to be writton, I never write. I made up my mind a little time ago that none would ever some again; but five or six have come with fond pleadings, lately. They found a giad welcome, and I shall seen publish them. I am also preparing a book of travels, which I nope to soon give the public."

Mrs. Moulton is leaving Boston asmewhat earlier this spring than usual, as she is going South before sailing for the London Season. She owed her wide poularity to her gracious manner and lovable disposition as much as to her literary reputation, it is always a rer privilege to hear her converse, because,
first of all, she has something to say,
and then she says it in supremely fine
English, and in the mellow murical tones of a beautifully modulated voice.

they collect an equal amount yearly in the form of usury.

That these persons through their extortions have a weighty share of responsibility for the distress and discontent that is today rampant among the masses, a knowledge of their enterprise must convince. The people who pay this usury keenly feel that advantage is being taken of them, that they are being robbed. They thereupon engender a spirit of bitterness against all forms of money-lending—concerning many of which they know nothing—and against interest as an institution. They perceive conditions are awry, that the poor are oppressed and they deem this to be the greatest oppression; ay, seeing no other, they condemn it as the whole oppression; the cause of all other oppressions whatsoever, and they become militant to stamp it out.

It is for the conservative citizen to come militant to stamp it out.

It is for the conservative clizen to regret that this entire business of loaning money to the poor should be left to those who so ruthlessly despoil them. The impotent attempts by legislation to curb this class have always failed, and will continue to fail so long as industrial and economic conditions of the country force the chattel-owner to the money shark at the latter's terms. The only relief possible is through competition. Not competition offered by private industry aimed at profit, but by a public undertaking framed along lines of charity.

This is the manner in which the con-public undertaking framed along lines of charity.

This is the manner in which the condition has been met in all the countries of Europe through the medium of what is called Monts de Pieté. There are hundreds of these affairs distributed through various European towns, the largest of which is in Paris. They were started in Fadua in 1493 and were designed to lend money to the poor upon such property as was offered at a rate of interest so low as to provide only the running expenses of the institution. The Paris affair receives millions of pledges annually, loaning sums as low as one franc (20 cents.) The average rate of interest charged is 15 per cent. per annum.

e success of the Carleton Opera pany at the Burbank Theater last will undoubtedly be more than cated during the coming week, hich is their last. The production of Sir Julius Bene-dict's romantic opera, on Monday, Tues-day and Wednesday evenings, of "The Lily of Kiliarney," will be a special fea-ture of the repertoire. This will be its initial performance in Los Angeles. As the opera is new to our public, some de-tails as to its composer and character of the libretto will doubtless prove in-

Irish drama, "Colleen Bawn," the literal translation of which is "The Fair-haired Maiden." The most stirring and interesting features of the drama are retained in the opera, and the music breathes the soul and poetry of the Irish nation. One or two numbers have already been heard in the concert-room, already been heard in the concert-room, particularly the duet, "The Moon Hath Raised Her Lamp Above," the pathetic song, "I am Alone," and the exquisite ballad for the tenor, "Elly Mayoureen." Sir Julius Benedict, by birth a German, and a pupil of the celebrated composer, Weber, made one tour of America as the musical director of the Jennie Lind company. On his return he took up his residence in England, where he was appointed music master to the Queen and royal family, a position he retained until all the children of the Queen had passed from the days of musical tuition. As a sign of respect in which the royal family held him, the Prince of Wales stood sponsor for his son, and is the godfather of the present young Benedict.

young Benedict.

Mr. Carleton recently produced the opera in San Francisco, where it achieved a remarkable success, the entire press uniting in commendation of both the opera and the performance, which was unusually flattering to all concerned. This opera will be given a prominent position during the week, as reference to the advertising columns will indicate.

reference to the advertising columns will indicate.

On Thursday and Friday a grand double bill will be given. "Fra Diavolo" on Thursday evening and "The Bohemian Girl" on Friday, the operas on both evenings being preceded by Alfred Cellier's delightful little opera, "The Charity Girls," which, for humor and charming music is unrivalled in the entire repertoire of the operetta. In this work Mr. Carleton will interpolate the celebrated song, "Ben Bolt," made famous by the recent productions of "Trilby." The effect of this pathetic ballad, assisted by a quartette of voices in the refrain, has been electrifying wherever Mr. Carleton has sung it.

A special feature of the production of the "Lily of Killarney" will be the cave scene, which Mr. Carleton had painted by one of the best artists in New York. This scene has the lakes of Killarney in the background, and those who have seen these romantic and beautiful waters will undoubtedly recognize the truth of the artist's delineation. Tonight "The Mikado" will be given, and the same opera will be presented at the Wednesday matinee.

An attraction of which much has been heard is Morrison's famous production of "Faust." This will be seen at the Los Angeles Theater March 26, 27 and 29 and Saturday matinée. The presentation is notable, aside from the promised excellence of the company, for its employment of a series of stage effects. Electricity comes into play throughout the production. A cross starting into light by the church wall daunts the flend amidst his loudest boastings. Flowers leap into glowing blossoms in the scene where Marguerite gives herself to her lover. But it is in the Brocken scene that the scene of light effects is attained. Flerce dragons pass through the air, leaving a train of sparks behind, and a veritable cataract of fire descends at the close between the uncanny people of the Sabbath and their illumined chief on the mountain peak above. The Morrison dramatization of Goethe's legend is asscribed to Bayle Bernard of London, and follows the original more closely than other versions which have been seen. The company is said to be carefully selected, and the engagement will undeductedly nove legislation of Monday evening, March 23. Hevalley selected, and the engagement will undeductedly nove legislation of the presentation of the presentation of the presentation of the presentation of the play and success of "Le Deux Gosses," produced at the Ambigu Theater February to duced at the Ambigu Theate ascribed to Bayle Bernard of London, and follows the original more closely than other versions which have been seen. The company is said to be carefully selected, and the engagement will undoubtedly prove very large and profitable.

Mirth, music, dancing and thrilling acrobatic performances will characterize the Orpheum's bill for the week beginning tonight. The management of that house takes especial pride in announcing the appearance of Charles B. Ward, the famous comedian and composer of comic songs. Mr. Ward is best known as the author of "The Band Played on." He is the original "Bowery Boy," and has won more fame in his line than any other musical comedian or singer. Next season he will star in the Bowery play written specially for him. In San Francisco where Mr. Ward has been filling an engagement for the past four weeks, he has been spoken of by the press as one of the few great comedians who have been heard, there in recent years.

The Andersons form another strong attraction. They are announced as the great of colored comedians in America. Alway, bright and jolly, finished in their wark and loaded to muzzle with up-to-dan fun. They are said never to fall to create a perfect whirlwind of merriment wherever they appear.

Les de Filippis are two Parislan protesque dancas. The boulevard dance, their latest congition, which was one of the vaudeville creases when it was given in New York, in said not only to be movel and entertaions, but thoroughly beautiful and artisule, and as funny as a dance can be. These performers are said to have the harpy faculty of rendering the grotesque dance in a graceful manner, and it is promised that their turn will be one of the brightest features of the show.

Of last week's favoriten four have been retained. The Wiltons who made such a hit with their humorou performances on the triple horizontalbar; the Rossley Brothers in a new bring of Irish jokes and songs. The Athus family of acrobatic artists, and the Frodmers, and they creating particular and the Friedlander Brothers, eccentric musicians, who, however, do not allow their eccentricity to mar the beauty of their music. Volina are the special instruments of these latter performers, and they creating particular and the Friedlander Brothers, eccentric

"Miss Helyett," which failed so signally in the United States, is still being played with profit in France.

Daniel Frohman's Lyceum Company will have next season a new play by the author of "The Prisoner of Zenda."

There seems to be small doubt that Dan Frohman is to join the ranks of London managers, a la Augustin Daly. George C. Boniface, Jr., left the Camille d'Arville Company in Montreal last week. He had a quarrel with the star.

The one hundredth performance of

The one hundredth performance of "Chimmie Fadden" will be celebrated at the Standard Theater, New York, on April 14.

A new drama will be produced shortly in the English provinces with the curious title, "Baby, or the Mid-night Trust."

The success of David Belasco's "The Heart of Maryland," so far, warrants the belief that the author will clear at least $300,000 on it. "The Sunshine of Paradise Alley" has reached London, and is making as big a sensation in the Engish metropolis as it did in this country.

There is a bill now before the Legislature in New York which, if it becomes a law, will compel every the atrical manager to advertise, in addition to his usual announcements, the location of his theater, the hour of the opening of his performance, and the price of admission.

It is generally known that David Belasco has a one-third interest in "Too Much Johnson," the farce with which Charles Frohman and William Gillette are making barrels of money. Belasco originally bought the play (La Plantation Thomassin) from the French author and then let Mr Frohman have it.

"La Loie," formerly pretty, simple, little Loie Fuller, an American girl, has succeeded in making herself famous in two continents by the application of brains. She was, as everyone knows, the originator of the serpentine dance, which she has carried to such a degree of perfection that nothing is left to be accomplished.

All Paris is talking of the phenomenal success of "Le Deux Gosses," produced at the Ambigu Theater February 19. The play has created a profound impression and is said to be the best work of its class that Paris has seen since the days of "The Two Orphans." It is significant that Plerre Decourelle, the author of the former, is a nephew of M. d'Ennery, the author of the older play.

Chevalier was an actor on the legitimate stage for ten years before he ever thought of making his rounds of the music halls, and he was associated in production with John Hare, Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft, Willie Edouin, J. H. Barnes, William Terriss, George Alexander and, in fact, almost all the leading actors in the London theaters.

London theaters.

"The Prisoner of Zenda" has made such a hit in London that Mr. Alexander has taken to giving matinées on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. A good many Parisian theaters have been, during the last few years, converted into music halls. The Eldorado has, however, reversed the general order of things, and, after being one of the best Parisian music halls, it has been recently turned into a theater. Elaborate alterations have been made and the auditorium has been entirely redecorated.

The many friends of Rose Cophlan and the auditorium has been entirely redecorated.

The many friends of Rose Coghian will be glad to know that she has secured a play which has been written expressly for her by her brother Charles. It is called "The Head of the Firm," and the subject deals with an advanced woman of the present day. The characters are excellently drawn. The part is one that will suit Miss Coghlan admirably, it is said, and A. M. Palmer was so impressed with the play that he has accepted it and will produce it for Miss Coghlan on March 23 at Palmer's Theater, New York, with as fine a cast as can possibly be secured. A most novel thing on the play is a prologue, which depicts the scenes two years previous to the play, in which all the characters appear, but not one word is spoken. After its run in New York it will be seen in Chicago on Miss Coghlan's trip to the Pacific Coast.

Spring Costumes.

(Harper's Bazar:) It does seem passing strange that the Lenten season should be so emphatically a time when thoughts of dress fill women's minds, but always with the ushering in of Lent the new fashions are put en exhibition, and the shops are crowded with women choosing material for spring and summer wear.

The cloth costumes receive the most attention just at present, for they are the ones that will make their appearance, and while it is not positively necessary to have a new gown for Easter Sunday, every truthful woman will admit that a fresh spring costume is most useful, and, of all the gowns of the year, the most satisfactory.

There have been many reports to the effect that silk walts and fancy walsts of all kinds were not to be fashionable any longer, but the leading tailors say they are making few, if any, cloth waists to match the skirts; that the skirt and coat alike are to have a separate silk waist, just as last year. Of course, the styles of the waists are different in many essential points. The skirts of the cloth costumes are not all made after one model; there are three or four to choose from, all equally effective, and all flaring out around the bottom. They must be well cut and hang well, even when made of the cheapest material; indeed, the expense of the gowns now is for out and fit, for some of the materials used now are remarkably cheap.

A $75 costume will be made of eight or nine yards of blue serge, costing from 75 cents to $1 a yard, and it will look smarter by far than an expensive material badly made up.

The skirts are all gored, but the front breadth seems to be having a hard time. Some models have it overlapping the side seams, forming as it were, a box-pleat, which is caught down about nine, inches from the waist, and then flares out, making an exaggerated fullness around the bottom of the skirt. There is another model, which has the front breadth very narrow at the, top, not over five inches at the waist, but gradually widening out until it measures twelve inches at the waist, but gradually widening out until it measures twelve inches at the bottom of the skirt. This is quite a favorite pattern for tailor gowns. The seams of the front breadth overlap the side seams, and are strapped; the others are left plain and untrimmed.

Such a skirt is not over five yards in width, is not lined through with stiffening, but hash a bias piece of haircloth about an eighth of a yard in depth to keep it out, and also a wire tape across the front and side breadths.

H. Walter Webb's new home at Tarrytown, N. Y., is to be built of marble, and is to cost $1,500,000.

there seems urgent need to give still greater publicity to the one and only successful remedy.

Peruvian Bark is known as the most powerful antimalarial article in medical science; the difficulty is in introducing it into the system. In the concentrated form of quinine it is too violent in its action, and cannot be taken long enough continuously to eradicate malarial poisons without otherwise disordering the system.

Peruvian Bitters is a scientific blend of Peruvian Bark with other medicinal herbs and fine California Bandy. It is not only antimalarial in its action, but is an absolutely perfect tonic. It supplies the active principle of Peruvian Bark in continuous small quantities, while it so tones and invigorates the entire system, especially the digestive functions, as to produce the best possible condition for a cure. There is no case on record where Peruvian Bitters have failed. Reader, if you are not afflicted, perhaps some suffering friend or acquaintance will thank you to bring this to his notice.

Beware

Whenever a doctor is called upon to treat a blood disease, the result nine times out of ten is that the treatment is worse than the disease, and in a short while the patient finds his condition far worse than it was at first. The reason of this is that notwith-standing the great progress made in The reason of this is that notwithstanding the great progress made in surgery, and in some branches of medicine, the doctors have failed absolutely to discover a cure for blood diseases. Whether in the form of pill, powder or liquid, their treatment is always the same — potash and mercury — which temporarily dry up the poison in the system and no sooner has it taken on the full effects of these powerful drugs, than that suppleness and elasticity of the joints give way to a stiffness, followed by the racking pains of rheumatism. Then follows loss of hair and finger nails, and even decay of the bones—a condition most horrible.

Mr. Henry Roth, of 1848 South Ninth street, St. Louis, Mo., was a victim of contagious blood polson—that worst form of blood disease, which has always baffled the doctors. He was treated by a physician and in the line of the stream of t baffled the doctors. He was treated by a physician, and in due time promounced cured, but as usual, in such cases, the disease soon returned, even worse than before. He says: "I had severe pains in my feet and arms, and was covered with small red sores. An ether doctor treated me for a long time and I was again pronounced well, but the disease came back on me again as before. I was in a horrible fix, and the more treatment I received, the worse I seemed to get. A New York specialist said he could cure me, but his treatment, which was quite expensive, did me no good whatever. Many patent medicines were resorted to, but they did not reach my trouble. I was stiff and full of pains, my left arm was useless, so that I was unable to do even the lightest work. This was my condition when I began to take S. S., and a few bottles convinced me that I was being benefited. I continued the medicine, and one dozen bottles cured me sound and well. My system was under the effects of mercury, and I would soon have been a complete wreck but for S. S. S."

S. S. is the only cure for real blood diseases. It is guaranteed purely vegetable and one thousand dolars reward is offered for proof that it contains a particle of mercury, potash, or any other product of the chemist's shop. The mercurial treatment of the doctors always does more harm than good. Beware of mercury!

BEAUTY AND A PIMPLED FACE.

The Beauty of a Woman is Often Marred by Patches of Red, Sarsaparilla Blotches and Impure Blood Pimples,

The Picture Below Fittingly Illustrates the Argument.

Here is a comely, if not beautiful, creature. The arch of her eyebrow, the contour of her face, the mobility of her features and the delicacy of the lips and ears are here indicated. Yet this charming looking woman is marred by the little patches of red on the left side of her face. Now what is true of this picture is equally true of many fine-looking ladies throughout the

These are the days when every one are cleaning their houses, their stores, their wardrobes and their blood. Now you can get a good blood medicine, free from iodide of potassium, free from all mineral drugs, yet a medicine that will carry the impurities of the body through the proper channels, cleansing and enriching the blood and bringing the flush of health to the cheeks, and this medicine is your own home remedy, Joy's VECETABLE SARSAPARILLA. It is not a creation of man, but a wise provision of the Creator, for these herbs that go to make Joy's VECETABLE SARSAPARILLA are grown on the foothills, in the mountains and valleys of our own State. You yourself can go and gather these herbs and make your own Sarsaparilla, but we do it more cheaply for you, for we give you sixteen ounces of the pure juices of these herbs in each bottle, and each bottle contains a world of good.

JOY'S VEGETABLE SARSAPARILLA is a good medicine to take at any time but it is especially good during the spring months.

PIMPLES! PIMPLES! PIMPLES Oh! How Nasty They Are!

I took a bottle of Sarsaparilla containing iodide of potassium, thinking to cleanse my blood. I never thought what a lot of worry it would entail. Things were running easily in my life until I woke up one fine morning and looking in the glass discovered those pimples. When I peered in the mirror I was bewildered. Never before had my face been covered with so many red

Henry was coming to see me that night, and he would be sure to ask me a whole lot of questions about those pimples. I hurriedly dressed and eagerly ran down stairs to breakfast. It was served in its accustomed homeliker.ss, and I thought I would at least enjoy a good breakfast before any one tortured me about those pimples; but lo and behold! As soon as Sambo brought in the coffee he forgot that he was a servant, and exclaimed: "Law! What has done come over your face?"

These words rang in my ears like the cannonading at Alexandria.
What has done come over your face?" I had no appetite for breakfast.

"What has done come over your face?" I had no appetite for breakfast. I had no desire to face Henry with those red blotches.

Mother soon came in, and, of course, she had to declare: "My dear child! what have you been doing to yourself?" When I told her that I had been taking a sarsaparilla containing iodide of potassium she called in the family physician, and he told her that iodide of potassium is a mineral drug, and that invariably he or she who takes those mineral drugs in fairly large quantities, in the guise of sarsaparilla, is sure to have those red blotches, those horrid pimples, those sore trade marks on their face.

Now it is a positive fact, it is a truthful statement, indeed, it is the veriest truth, that the great Home Remedy—Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla—contains no mineral drugs, no deadly poisons; it is wholly and entirely made up of herbs grown in the foothills, in the valleys, on the mountain tops of our own State—California.

He or she who desires a good blood medicine, a liver regulator and stom-

He or she who desires a good blood medicine, a liver regulator and stom-ach alterative, can make no mistake in using Joy's VEGETABLE SARSAPA RILLA. When your druggist gives you a substitute be sure and see that the bottle contains no iodide of potassium.

Sarsaparilla containing iodide of potassium will surely bring out pimples on the face. "Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla contains no iodide of potassium or any mineral drug. That this is true is certain, and to make assurance doubly sure, ask the well-known chemists, Thomas Price & Sons, whether or not Joy's Vegevable Sarsaparilla contains any mineral drug. This remedy has been analyzed by these good chemists, and they declare it to be free of all mineral drugs, and of all deadly mineral poisons.

The inferiority of nasty substitutes makes them too cheap for you to take When you ask for the best, see that you get the best, "The Great Home Remedy, "Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla."

WHY YOUR HEART SPRING FLUTTERS. PIMPLES!

When your heart flutters that is Nature's method of telling you that your heart needs stimulants. Good, substantial food, well digested, is the best stimulant for a fluttering heart. It makes good rich blood to build up the nerves and strengthen the heart.

THE CUSTARD-APPLE.

The Delicious Fruit Which Once Grew in England.

IT IS THE ANONA SQUAMOSA.

The Fruit Is Said to Have Nourishing Qualities in a Marked Degree-The Seat of the Genus to Which It Belongs Is Probably the Warmer Parts

The typical genus of the order of plants called Anonaces is the Anona, and this contains among others the luscious fruit of the East Indies known as the Custard-Apple. There is no fruit (excepting, perhaps, what is commonly termed the bread fruit) which is safe to eat so heartily of in very warm climates as this luscious food, and as a natural consequence it is largely cultivated. Another very similar member of the genus is what is called Ramus fruit, or the Ballock's heart. But this does not get to quite the high state of perfection that the former variety attains. Although the home of the Anonada is properly the warm belt of America, it has been cultivated in other climes at different stages of the world's development. Some of its unmistakable seeds have been found fossil in the London clay of Sheppey, and it probably grew in Britain in the Ecoene period. The seeds of the Custard-Apple are highly acrid, and are used ED. JOY COMPANY—Gentlemen: For a torpid liver and foul stomach Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla can't be equaled. Respectfully wants. seeds, too, are said to be poisonous when eaten freely, so that it is necessary to discriminate very carefully between the fruit and the seed. But this is not uncommon in other plants besides the Anonada. It was found when that famous home Remedy, Joy's Vegetable Sarsaparilla, was first compounded, though, that not a single seed of all the splendid array of vegetable substances used in its preparation is of a poisonous nature. But this is only one of the many marks of distinction that this great blood purifier has. All its constituents are purely Californian, and it is absolutely free from the slightest particle of mineral poison. Is there another Sarsaparilla of which this can be said? I Look at the number of disfigured people that you see on the street! More than half of this curse of humanity is due to the taking of Sarsaprillas that contain iodides—principally of potassium. THE STORY OF A LIFE.

THE THINGS THAT MATTER. By Francis Gribble. (New York and London: G. P. Putnam's Sons.)

"Things That Matter," how little some people realize that the so-called little things of life are often the most momentous. The story before us most fully illustrates this. It is a story of misunderstanding, of the married life of years, when the two who should have been so much to each other, drifted apart from the lack of knowledge of their own hearts and their deep innner needs.

A marriage without love is portrayed, into which a sincere friendship entered, but nothing warmer. But the wife soonest discovers her own need of tenderness, and love, a thing of slow growth, at last bursts into fullest flower. That she loves her husband is a fact that at last comes home toher, but he is blind to the fact until all is over, and she is beyond the sound of his voice, her ear dulled in the sleep of death. It is a sad story, strongly drawn, but it has its lesson, which it would be well for husband and wife to heed.

the Literary Tide.

With evidently sincere conviction, Maurice Thompson proclaims in The Independent that at present there are signs of a healthy reaction in literature. He says that the strong interest, sud-tienly aroused and widespread, in his-torical, biographical and purely literary writings indicates more than a mere willingness of the public to get rid of the incubus of pessimistic and filthy novels. He takes it as a sign of fare-well to the departing shades of "distinguished but disreputable mixers and wenders of so-called realism-venders who for a long time have hidden their foul traffic behind a pretense of teaching a moral lesson." Mr. Thompson says:

"Students of the broadest capacity,

"Students of the broadest capacity, and they are necessarily few, have seen from the beginning an early end of what has been called realism, but which is, in fact, pessimism. Gloom and despair, splenetic revolt, impossible social theories, hatred of marriage and the duties and restraints it imposestives have been the burden of the novellate most in evidence since the decay of the noble romance with which Scott charmed the world.

"The realists are right just so far as realism stands for verisimilitude; but they are wrong in assuming that nothing is credible which is not debasing, nothing artistic which is not debasing, nothing true to life which is not beastly. The theory that art must delineate and interpret life honestly and without the shadow of distortion, is unuestionably right; but the error comes in when the artist assumes that to be true he must be nastly.

This assumption of omnimanent and omnipotent evil is an insult to our civilization, and was to be borne no longer than the time required for us to discover its true bearings upon life. We all know that depravity, exists, that the fillicit battles constantly for recognition and the right to be protected. Evil is the shade and shadow in both life and art; but it is not the whole of life and art; but it is not the whole of life and art; but it is not the whole of life and can never permanenly be the whole of art.

"Ignorance has been the gateway through which pessimistic realism has cutered into possession of the popular regard. On one hand a superflical vision of what science has been disclosing, and on the other hand a narrow and distorted interpretation of what we may call Christian social ethics, have led thousands of poor people, all unavares, into the mire of a pseudo-materialism and upon the barren and missmetic bogs of socialistic speculations. In trying to make a concretion of flinty science sweet and discostale with the treacle of religion, these ill-educated minds have been sadly debilitated."

Mr. Thompson halls it as encouraging when our ma

In a neatity-bound volume the reader is presented with a series of srealistic sketches that are like living pictures of life, and he enters into the spirit of the stories related as if they were a part of his own experience.

"The tide is turning, and it is a high duty of American critics and reviewers to accelerate the change. It would be a great thing to see the twentieth century come in with a renascence of truth and beauty. Especially welcome would it be to see art actually adapt itself to the best that there is in our civilization, our aspiration, our destiny.

"All artists are agreed that didactic art is not art; but our pseudo-realists have taught pessimism in every line of their work. They have taught that marriage is a failure, that home is a brothel, that coutriship is lewd, that society is an aggregation of criminals. Their lessons have had their hour, and the world appears to be tired of them. At this moment a limitless field is opening to a new, blithe, hearty corps of artists who will be glad to see that life is not all evil, that its currents have exhaustless veins of unworked freshness and sweetness as well as counterdrafts of bitterness and banality."

Charles Dudley Warner on "Strong"

Literature.

Noting the fact that in the modern Noting the fact that in the modern phraseology of criticism certain books, novels, stories and essays are characterized as "strong" Charles Dudley Warner, in Harper's for March, proceeds to investigate the force and propriety of the term. He finds that it is usually applied to books that treat the sexual relations with offensive frankness, and to those pictures of life by women which shock by their naive or knowing boldness. After satirizing on these points at some length, Mr. Warner says:

women which shock by their naive or knowing boldness. After satirizing on these points at some length, Mr. Warner says:

"It has come about that the novels and stories which are to fill our leisure hours and cheer us in this vale of tears have become what is called tragic. It is not easy to define what tragedy is, but the term is applied in modern fiction to scenes and characters that come to ruin from no particular fault of their own—not even when the characters break most of the ten commandments, but by an unappeasable fate that dogs and thwarts them. Ugliness and misfortune and suffering unrelieved make a modern tragedy, and there has come an opinion that tragedy of this sort is the highest type of literature. Vulgar or dissolute surroundings, undeserved fate, and a bad end make a satisfactory tragedy. This situation has much of the tragic to see a rosy-cheeked or a spectacled young woman whose life has been mainly guarded from evil and surrounded by the sunshine of family and social affection, or a young man of considerable culture and considerable promise, whose enjoyment of life is scarcely at all abated by cigarettes and a sceptical philosophy, sit down with an inkstand and a steel pen, and on white paper sketch the blackness of life, the misery of humanity, the wretchedness of a world of damnable complications, of which neither of them can have had more than the slightest experience. No other human being can create such "strong" and hopeless tragedy as those young candidates for immortality. And it is tragedy of a peculiar kind. Strong as it is, I am sometimes unable to feel its dignity, or its divine or its its relentless character. I sometimes feel that matters might turn out differently, even with the approval of the gods, if the young writers had not such an awful sense of their responsibility to make the world more unpleasant than it is."

velop it, and lift it to divine heights. We quote from the article:

"No man can produce anything great in literature except he is sustained by the sympathy of his time. No great poet has ever done his work by his own unaided genius. All great creative work is simply the adequate expression of the general mind of humanity, and when at any time that mind is unsympathetic and at discord with itself, no creative work can be done.

"It is so in this country now. The New England writers of the last generation were upheld by an American spirit which has ceased to exist. It may have been provincial, but it was strong, and through its strength they were sustained and fitted for lofty flights.

were sustained and fitted for lofty flights.

"Now the whole face of America has changed. We are passing through a great formative period. Our creative faculties have been tunned to industrial and inventive achievement, or to mere money-getting. Our population, which forty years ago was almost homogeneous, is now widely diversified. Out of all this a new Americanism is being born, whose meaning we do not know, and may not know for a generation or two to come.

"That it will be a humane, generous, and great Americanism who can doubt? Its promise is of achievements in literature, and in all that is high and fine—greater than the world has yet seen. Encouraged by that promise, we may well hope that the greatest poets, the most powerful creative intellects of all time, will be the products of the general mind of the American people. But they can not come in this generation, or in any other that is dominated by the spirit of mere material progress."

Mr. Adams's first book was called "Hatchie; or, The Guardian Slave," and was suggested by his experience on a trip he took in 1848 to New Orleans, going down on one of the coast lines. His first juvenile book was that famous story, "The Boat Club; or, The Bunkers of Rippleton," Langwill Discusses Publishers and and Books.

"The best work at the best prices," is moral principle of valuation upon an ethical basis. It says, for instance, that if the publisher reckons his office that if the publisher reckons his office expenses in the cost of production, then the author has a right to reckon his, even including any journeys or researches he may have had to make in order to write his book. But this right is not only an athical fallacy, it is a politico-economical one, because the economical question is only concerned with the distribution of the work, and economical question is only concerned with the distribution of the work, and the money or the heart's blood that went to make it has nothing to do with the question, while the publisher's office expenses are of the assence of the question. Some authors also claim that the publisher has no right to make sucthe question. Some author size of the question. Some author size and the question. Some author size and the question. Some author size and the question of the publisher is not a plees-worker, in he has been provided the publisher in the publisher is not a plees-worker, to this the publisher is not a plees-worker, to the publisher is not the publisher in the publisher is not the publisher. He would call the publisher in the publisher in the publisher in the publisher is not the publisher. He would not be publisher in the publisher in the publisher in the publisher is not the competition of the publisher is not the publisher in the publisher is not the competition of the publisher is not the publisher in the cessful books pay for unsuccessful But here again he has every right. The scholar and gentleman, at once the friend and the banker of his authors, makes a pleasing figure. It was, perhaps, more ideal than real, for even of Murray we read in Lord Beaconsfield's Letters: "Washington Irving demanded a large price. Murray murmured. Irving talked of posterity and the badness of the public taste, and Murray said that authors who wrote for posterity must publish on their own account." Still, if the publisher would live up to this ideal, his would remain an honorable profession instead of sinking to a trade. He would rank with the rare theatrical manager to whom art is dearer than profit—if such a one still survive. But the trail of business is over the age; the theatrical manager is a shameless tradesman, and more and more the publisher will become the mere distributor, if, indeed, he be not eliminated by a mechanical organization. The popular author needs only a central store to supply the trade with his printed writings, the cost of production of which is covered by the first day's sales.

But, if we can forgive the publisher anent and our civity sears ago was almost nongerically serviced by the first state ours, is now widely diversified. Out of all this a new Americanism is being born, whose meaning we do not know. It is, and may not know for a generation or two to come.

"That it will be a humane, generous, and great Americanism who can doubt? Its promise is of achievements in literature, and in all that is high and fine—greater than the world has yet seen. Encouraged by that promise, we may well hope that the greater popular set poets, the most powerful creative intellects of all time, will be the products of the general mind of the American people. In the poet's garden were two things, common enough, but made beautiful by a touch of romance:

Who loves a garden, loves a greenhouse, too."

In the garden today this greenhouse is gone, but the love of it lingers still. Of this he wrote to one he loved, "a brilliant beauty," a charming, bantering woman, own sister to Delia, his "love's young dream."

"My dear: I will not let you come till the end of May or beginning of June; because, before that time my greenhouse will not be ready to receive us. . . And there you shall sit with a bed of mignonette at your side, and a hedge of honeysuckles, roses and jasmine; and I will make you a bouquet of myrtle every day."

The second beautiful thing was the "summer-house," beautiful no longer, alas, except as his. Of this he wrote to her "end of May," coming for the "bouquet of myrtle:" "I long to show you my workshop, and to see you sitting on the opposite side of my table. We shall be as close-packed as the wax figures in an old-fashioned picture frame. I am writing in it now. It is the beautiful thing was the wax figures in an old-fashioned picture frame. I am writing in it now. It is the beautiful thin with a pleasant orchard," pleasant no longer. Through this window, across the orchard, the vicarage could be seen, where lived the poet's friend, the Rev. John Newton. For right of way to and from the poet's garden and this "holy habitation," through this orchard, a guineaper annum was pald. Hence the name, "The Guinea Orchard." This way the two friends, the poet and the parson, himself a poet, came and went for many days with "holy missives." There were temples in their hearts and choirs oft-times singing. One day the doors were opened and the world heard the music of the "Olny Hymns." Of these Cowper wrote 68 and Newton 280.

In scenes like these the poet dwelt till he went to Weston Underwood, scarce two miles away, "the prettiest village in England." In this garden, with its greenhouse and summerhouse, and "Guinea Orchard" adjoining, the greatest pleasures of his e

(The Athenaeum:) The late Mr. Murray had for many years collected materials for a complete edition of Byron's works in prose and verse. Mr. Murray had in his possession a considerable number of letters to various persons, including those of his father, some of which were not shown to Moore, as well as many documents and papers of interest. He had also acquired Lord Byron's continuation of "Don Juan" and several other unpublished poems and fragments. With the ald of these materials it is hoped that a final edition of Byron's works may be given to the world at no very distant date.

W. Earl Hodgson, who claims to be a friend of the poet laureate, says that Mr. Austin, originally a Catholic, is now an agnostic. "Yet he is no more dogmatic about agnosticism than he ever was about faith, and so supports ever was about faith, and so support the church with might and main." M Hodgson also tells The English Illus trated that one of Mr. Austin's persons friends is the Queen, who for years ha been in the habit of sending him, o peen in the habit of sending him, on appropriate occasions, a photograph of herself, or some other token of remembrance and esteem. Another is the Prime Minister, who, when he goes to Swinford Old Manor, feels that there is an exception to Lord Beaconsfield's rule that a country-house visit is three days of boredom in which a man can only eat and sleep.

There will presently be published in London and New York a volume of the highest interest to students of the lit-erature and art of Dante. The look is highest interest to students of the literature and art of Dante. The look is to be devoted to reproductions in reduced fac-simile of the drawings made by Botticelli for the "Divina Commedia." Eighty-five of these illustrations are preserved in the printroom at Berlin. Eight more are in the Vatican. Botticelli executed the designs with the pen and with the silver point. He put some of his best work into them, giving free rein to his poetic irragination, and throwing over each design the peculiar grace of his style. The drawings are well known to specialists, but this set of reproductions will be none the less welcome, for it will bring home to many libraries and studios material for study which has hitherto been difficult of access for all but a few fortunate travelers. The reproductions will be accompanied by a commentary, and there will be an introduction, giving a brief blography of Botticelli and a critical study of his work as a Dantesque illustrator. Fac-similes from the Florentine Dante of 1481 and from early manuscripts will also be included in the work.

In introducing a lecturer on Browning, Edmund Gosse recently spoke of his own personal friendship with Browning, and said: "I am bound to tell you that I saw a different Browning from the hero of all the handbooks and 'gospels' which are now in vogue. People are beginning to treat this vehement and honest poet as if he were a sort of Marcus Aurelius and John the Baptist rolled into one. I have just seen a book in which it is proposed that Browning should supersede the Bible, in which it is asserted that a set of his volumes will teach religion better than all the theologies of the world. Well, I did not know that holy monster. Perhaps I was not good enough to know him. But what I saw was an unostentatious, keen, active man of the world; one who never failed to give good practical advice in matters of business and conduct; one who loved his friends, but certainly hated his enemies; a man alive in every eager, passionate nerve of him; a man who loved to discuss people and affairs, and a bit of a gossip, a bit of a partisan, too, and not without his humorous prejudices. He was simple to a high degree, simple in his scrupulous dress, his loud happy voice, his insatiable curlosity."

Bab and the Gracious Colonel Recall Days of Chivalry.

Dress Suits of the Period-Overlooking People's Follies.

The Value of Blood-Former Balti-more Beauties and Lovely Rich-mond Belies-"Here's to Youth, Beauty and Wit."

NEW YORK, March 16, 1896.—He was an elderly gentleman, and when he greeted you he stooped over very low and kissed your hand, not with any intensity, but in that light sort of a way as if a butterfly had dropped upon it and meant to show respect to its whiteness and its shape. He belonged to the generation that has passed. If you invited him to dinner, he appeared in dress clothes that might have made a foolish boy laugh, but which demanded respect from men who knew anything of the world. The talls of his evening coat were extra long, and his waistcoat was of claret-colored velvet, closed with buttons made of garnets, set about with small diamonds. It is not the mode nowadays, but it was the fashion to wear waistcoats of velvet or brocade when renteemen kissed ladies hands, when duels were in fashion, and when a lady's mame was always spoken with reverence as well as admiration. Sometimes I feel as if I did not regret the day of duels. Of course, fin a duel, there was a chance of a gentleman or a blackguard I feel as if I did not regret the day of duels. Of course, fin a duel, there was a chance of a gentleman or a blackguard being killed, but if nine gentlemen had to die to cause one blackguard to disappear, they had not lived in vain.

He is an old friend of mine, is this elderly gentleman, and when he comes I light the alcohol lamp under the kettle and watch it until it reaches the boiling point. And then I take a tall glass and put in it two lumps of sugar, the juice of half a lemon, the slice of orange, a brandled cherry; then, well, a spicy liquor that comes out of a decanter, and last of all, a long-handled silver spoon. What for? Oh, to keep the glass from breaking when the boiling water is poared in.

MY GENTLEMAN OF THE OLDEN

MY GENTLEMAN OF THE OLDEN deem't care for tea. He is great on recipes for dishes such as gourmets love; he can tell how Mrs. Carter of Cartersville, she that was Sally Calvert, used to make plum pudding, and how she would never tell the secret of her wonderful success in this most delightful but most indigestible of dishes. When I present young Mr. Millionaire to him, he is polite, excessively polite, but after the young man is gone, he says to me; "My dear girl, you know I always feel very near to you, because in ITI one of our cousins eloped with a second cousin of mine, and one cannot forget family ties. So I can tell you what I think. These young men must be encouraged to keep up the tone of the day. I remember when the father of this special one used to come to the kitchen door of our country house to buy the skins of the cows from a darky who killed an old cow to sell her skin, and this old Dutchman, an honest but yulgar old man, used to trade with them. I was only a child then, and, like all children, was curious about what it didn't concern me. The old man who

THE FOLLY OF THE GENERATION deavors by foolish talk to make the the world "forget the beginning of its fortune. My dear colonel," I added, "I could show you a young man whose father made his fortune by running a stage before street cars were known and who now refuses to bow to anyhody who hasn't a brougham attached to his establishment! I could point out to you a young woman whose grandfather made a fortune in beer, and who says in a languid way that she can't imagine anybody drinking anything but yery dry champagne. I could even introduce you, my dear colonel, to a so-called gentleman whose father made. very dry champague. I could even introduce you, my dear colonel, to a so-called gentleman whose father made a fortune during the civil war in what was known as ready-made clothes, and this gentleman says that he can't understand how anybody who has brains can buy his clothes in New York, or wear anything has hasn't the stamp of the London tailor on it. And, my dear friend, the shop still goes on. But this so-called gentleman has taken his mother's name, and on his yacht, or on his four-in-hand, or anything that could suggest it, there isn't even a suggestion of the sign saying, 'Go to Sell-well's; you can get a suit of clothes worth 350 for 100! On this day only.' Oh, colonel, it is a case of other times and other manners."

And the colonel muttered something that sounded very much as if it began with a D and ended with an n, but no hostess with any tact ever hears everything that is said. We were sitting that is said. We were sitting there in the firelight, thank goodness! One can always have an open fire, the colonel sipping out of his glass, and I testing my tea and admiring the buckles on my slippers, when he announced: "There are no beauties today. There are good-looking girls; there are

Mattie Ould, of lovely Mary Trialet and of dainty Lizzie Cabell was worth an ail-night's travel in an uncomfortable car. They were beauties and they were wits. Mary Triplet was

A TINTED VENUS; her hair was like the ripe side of a peach; her exin was like the ripe side of a peach; her exin was like the ripe side of a peach; her exis were as blue as the heavens, and her lips as red as the cherries. But she was marble. Then there was Miss Cabell; brown hair, brown eyes, tiny of size, a pocket Venus in semi-brown shades. But Mattie Ould. I cannot remember the color of her hair; I think it was fair. Nor can I describe her eyes; they looked so far into my soul that I dropped my eyelids in reverential admiration, and never saw what shade they were. But there was that beautiful figure, and best of all, there was that wonderful wit. Do you remember when the three beauties were at the Old White, and ten of their adorers gave them a wonderful supper? First one and then another of the ladies was asked to give a toast. Each declined. Only Mattie Ould was equal to the occasion. Quickly grasping the tiny white slipper of Lizzie Cabell, she filled it to the brim with champagne, and turning to Mary. Triplet, she said 'Here's to youth, beauty and wit—they make a Triplet.' At another time, when I was dining with her father, she was being wood by Nat Schoolcraft and a young lawyer named Campbell. We were quite a large party, and some suggested that Miss Mattie give a toast, She held up her glass, in which gilttered the imprisoned laughter of the peasants of France, and she said, 'Here's to the woman who strains at a gnat and swallow a camel.'

"Then I remember her marriage to Nat Schoolcraft; her going abroad and her coming home. Mr. Schoolcraft had wonderfully beautiful bachelor apartments over his stable, and while they were waiting for their house to be finished, he and his wife occupied these rooms. The child they had hoped for came, and came unexpectedly, but, with her baby on her arm and with death staring her in the face, and the grave in which this beautiful woman was laid had been lined with the flowers she had loved—the daisles. At her grave that day no hymn was heard, but four men whose beautiful voices she had appreciated stood there and sang 'Under the Daisles,' Every year when I go home on Memorial day, I walk over to Mattle Ould's grave. And it is covered with bouquets of daisles. Nothing else. It seems to me fine, my dear, when a city can take pride—no, this was not just a city, it was the whole south, in one woman because of her beauty and her wit. The other two? They did as all good Southern girls do—they married, and were good wives.

"Beautiful 'Mary Triplet, like her rival, sleeps in the grave in the beautiful God's Acre close to the river. But who can think of her and not remember the duel that was fought about her? She had been engaged to be married to a young lawyer; the engagement was broken, but one night at a dance she was placed opposite him, and she either had to dance with him, or make a scene. Being a well-bred woman, she did the former. A few days after, a short poem appeared in one of the papers. It began this way:

"When Mary's queenly form I press, In Strauss's latest walts. I would as well har lips caress, Although those lips be false.

"There were a couple more verses in the same offensive strain which I have forgotten. The effusion was discussed at the smart club with great ardor, and men hinted that the lover who had been rejected was the author of it. A Mr. Mordecal, who was present, and who belonged to one of the oldest families in Richmond, said that any man who would write such a thing and publish it was a coward and a scoundrel. In a few days, what he had said reached the rejected lover. He'at one wrote him a note, in which he told that he was the author of the poem, but that he had not intended it to reflect in an unpleasant way on Miss Triplet, and he demanded an apology. No apology was sent. A few days later, when the men met in the clubhouse, THE REJECTED LOVER when the men met in the clubhouse, THE REJECTED LOVER brought up the question again, with this result: He was knocked down and so badly hit that he was confined to his room for several days. Common rumor—for you may be sure that there was much gossip—said that the mother of the rejected one told him that if he could find no one to carry his challenge to Mr. Mordecai that she would. But there, was no trouble about a messenger. The duel was arranged. At the first shot both men missed. Bach was asked if he wished another shot. Each said, "Yes." At the second shot both men fell, the rejected one with a ball in his stomach. They were taken to their homes and a few days after the duel Mary Triplet's defender died. There was some sort of a trial, and the research one was fined a small sum of the duel Mary Triplet's defender died. There was some sort of a trial, and the rejected one was fined a small sum of money and allowed to go free. I think this is the last case of a duel being fought for beauty, but, as I tell you, my dear, we have no beauties nowadays.

"We have beautiful women and fascinating women, but no women who are sufficiently marvelous to stand out from all others, and to be the toast of the town and the pride of the country. 'Other times; other manners!' The colonel gave a deep sigh, and I felt that I must rouse him up, so I asked, "What you say is true, but just now we ordinary women are greatly troubled about good and bad luck. Now, colonel, tell me all you know about THE LUCKY MONTHS."

a horsechestnut in my pocket to cure me of the rheumatism."

"And I?" Well, I carry a four-leaf clover in my purse, and in my pocket the ears of a jack rabbit, killed in a country churchyard, as he was sitting on the grave of a murderer, in November, under the new moon, by a crosseyed, red-headed darkey, but not for myself—only to bring good luck to BAB.

tis neck. Then he prepared for a great rush of customers.

For several days he waited in vain. The space before the window was crowded almost every hour of the day with people who looked at the suit, laughed and went away. "The people of this town don't know a good thing when they see it," said the merchant. One day a friend of the merchant stopped to look at the suit. The friend laughed, went into the store and said to the merchant:

"That's a great joke you've put on that card, but I can't see that it brings much trade."

"Joke!" exclaimed the merchant.

"That's no joke. That's as serious a proposition as I ever made." Whereat the friend laughed heartily.

"Come out here," he said, "and look at that sign."

Together they went forth. The crowd stood back and the merchant read his sign: "These suits $5. They won't last long," and heard some one say:

"I don't see how a suit of clothes for $5 could last very long. I suppose now that suit of clothes would fall to pieces in about two weeks. Anyhow, that's an honest merchant."

The merchant read the sign again and interpreted it as the people had. In about five minutes another sign took its place, on which was printed: "They are going fast," and they did.

A Feat in Telegraphy.

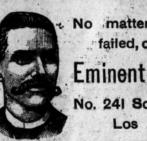

(Portland Oregonian:) A rather unusual, though not at all wonderful, feat, in the way of telegraphing, was performed a few days since by the Western Union Telegraph Company, in carrying on a conversation direct between the company's office in New York and their office in this city. George Gould, who is one of the directors of the company, and also a practical operator, manipulated the key in the New York office. He wished to see how well a conversation could be carried on over the wires at the longest possible distance over which a wire could be secured for the experiment, so the Union Pacific wires were.company's wires, and they, being connected with the O. R. and N. Company's wires, and they, being connected with the Western Union office here, the trial was made, and proved very satisfactory, the lines working over the whole distance as easily and clearly as between this city and The Dalles. In making the necessary connections of the wires, four automatic repeaters were used. While it is nothing wonderful to exchange messages over so long a continuous wire as far as the mere fact of transmission is concerned, it is very seldom that it is done, probably not once in half a dozen years, and it would be very difficult for anyone except a man in Mr. Gould's position to get the chance to make the experiment. As a usual thing, the wires are kept busy along all the different sections of the line between here and New York, and in order that a message may be sent through direct, all other business on all the lines must be stopped for the time. A message going from here to New York is usually repeated four or five times.

Episcopalians Taking a Hand.

(New York Tribune:) In England the Established Church has set an organization in the field modelled upon the lines of the Salvation Army, and it has proved extremely successful. The Episcopal church here is now taking steps toward the formation of a similar force. It is not thought that its work will interfere with that of the Salvationists, but is expected to supplement it to reach large classes inaccessible to the ordinary ministrations of the church. Two efforts of the sort have already been made. One, several years ago in Detroit by the Rev. Joseph H. Johnson, now of Los Angeles. The second is now in successful operation in Pittsburgh, having been founded by James H. Cakewell, a lawyer, and a member of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, in that city. The more general organization now proposed is to be under the auspices of the entire church, and to extend its work over the whole country, after the example of the parent order. There is room for all of them, and a field for their efforts wide enough to give them all elbow room. Episcopalians Taking a Hand.

Mr. Dupree, who runs the Warner Pharmacy at Bridgeport, Ct., says that he has considerable trade for Ripans Tabules among the traveling salesmen who visit Bridgeport. It is becoming quite the practice with commercial travelers to keep a supply of the Tabules in the grip. Hasty meals and continual riding in joiting railroad trains do tend to bring on indigestion. "They have helped me a good deal," one of these men was recently heard to say. "I take two a day." They all say that after an evening session with jack pots, tobacco and whisky, nothing clears the head so early in the morning as a Ripans Tabule taken just before going to bed, however late the retiring hour may have been. One Gives Relief.

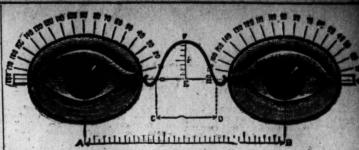

Ripans Tabules are sold by druggists or by all if the price (80c a box) is sent to The ipans Chemical Company, No. 10 Spruce st., iew York. Sample vial, 10 cents.

Why So Many People Have Dim Vision--Great Danger of Weak Eyes Leading to Total Blindness--Some Facts About the Eyes Which Many People Do Not Know.

Nothing in this world is so important as our eyesight. The very thought of becoming blind sends a thrill of horror through our soul. And yet most everybody has more or less weakness of the eyes. And they go right on, day after day, straining and abusing them, little thinking of the fearful danger they incur of becoming blind. For weak eyes very easily become totally blind.

Some of the Symptoms which

Plainly Indicate the Need of Wearing Spectacles:

Inability to read fine print, sew, or the sensation of smarting or burning, eyes water or become dim, redness or inflammation of the eyes or lids, pain in the eye-balls, temples or forehead, periodical and sick headaches, neuralgia and enrovous prostration—these are Nature's danger signals and should not be neglected. So call at once. You will find in our fine stock everything to improve one's eyesight in the way of glasses.

NOTICE.

There is just as much science required in fitting Spectacles as there is in pre-scribing medicine. Beware of those who are not well versed in the anatomy and physiology of the eye and its appendages, for the eye is too delicate an organ to be trifled with.

BUSINESS AND PROPERTY.

TED TO THE TIMES. REV. J. M. WHITON, D.D., New York city.

I not a right to pay a poor fel-day's wages for an hour's work? The rich landlord had bequests into private pockets, come back to say anything about ey would doubtless speak out in ame strain.

But this assertion of the right to be generous is nowadays turned about into an assertion of the right to be selected as a trival out of business by selling below cost longer than he can stand it, haven't I a right to do it? Or, if I control the sale of a necessary article, haven't I a right to screw the price up as high as I can? Or, if I own an unimproved lot, for which there is a strong demand in a busy center, haven't I a right to fix a fancy price on it, and wait till the pressure for it obliges a buyer to come to my terms? Such are samples of a score of cases, in which men defend their selfishness by the question in which Jesus's parable defended generosity.

The claim of right to do what we will with our own is being gradually limited by law. In a great city a man is no longer allowed to build just as he pleases. Nor is a steamboat company allowed to carry as many passengers as it will. Nor are parents allowed to do as they will with their children in the matter of wage-working or of schooling. Nor may a man sell certain kinds of goods without license, and some he may not sell at all. In such cases, the law says, in effect, You may do as you will with your own, provided what you will is for public welfare.

Extreme Socialists demand that the Extreme Socialists demand that the business of the country shall be put mostly under public management. This wild proposition is next door to a truth. The truth is that all private business is a sort of public trust—that is, it is for the public benefit, including, of course, the benefit of the man who carries it on. It is to be worked for all it is worth, not to him alone, but also to those, whose wants he supplies. By supplying their wants, he makes his living. The more and the better he does it, the more he makes by it. But is he to think only of what he thus gives?

This, then, is his trust, his public trust, to care as much for what he gives as for what he gets; to make his business worth as much for public as for private benefit. Many business men now act on this social theory. Conscience and a sense of personal honor, stimulated by the public approval of their example, may be relied on to bring it ultimately into general adoption. The public odium attached to some great fortunes, amassed by men who have done business on the piratical theory that it is a cruise for spoils, bears witness to the truth they defy—that all legitimate business exists for public service, and should be regarded by conscience as a kind of public trust. In claiming the right to do what we will with our own, no moral man means to insist on anything more than the moral right. A question now rises about the limit of our moral right in some things that are legally ours. We have made use of the world as we found it was made for us by the society, or partnership of peole, to which we belong—say, one na-This, then, is his trust, his public eld as we found it was made for us the society, or partnership of peoto which we belong—say, one na, a partnership that lives on while members are born and dle. The ng man now entering active life s that this partnership has made him a rich country out of a wilness, has secured for him well-rede rights at cost of much blood treasure, has accumulated for him bugh the labor of centuries stores profitable knowledge, has trained um and electricity to serve him, has en him an education costing more n his parents paid for it. Where the dworking ploneers cleared the forsavage, he now shares the richly-

who stands thus on the shoulders others, and plucks from the top of tree its ripest fruit, needs to remind of others, and plucks from the top of the tree its ripest fruit, needs to remind himself how it came into his hand. It is his own, as against any individual claimant. But, as against the partnership, which has made the world for him, with the opportunities it opens to him. It certainly is not all he own. The science and art, the law and government, the tools and machinery, of a civilization which he had no hand in producing, have all contributed to it. So far as anything not his own has gone into it, something should come out of it. On so much of what we call our own, there is a just lien. This lien is not discharged by current taxes. These merely keep things going as they now are. Something more is due for the use of the plant that has been set up for us. For this every man is a debtor to the partnership—the community that he belongs to. It belongs to him to discharge this debt in equity by a public-spirited, open-handed benevolence in the use of what is in law his own.

Let any one imagine what he would be as a solitary individual in the wide. Let any one imagine what he would as a solitary individual in the wide eas a solitary individual in the wide corld, remote from all other men, and with no resource but his own unaided owers. In such helplessness he would gree with Pascal that "one man is no an." Comparing with this the well-royided, well-defended life, supplied y social cooperation, one feels the orce of St. Paul's question: "What ast thou that thou didst not receive?" a this reasonable view there is no disuting the proposition that business hould be treated as a moral trust for ocial service, and property be held ubject to a large claim in equity for ocial service, and property be held ubject to a large claim in equity for ocial service, and property be held ubject to a large claim in equity for ocial service, and property be held ubject to a large claim in equity for ocial service, and property be held ubject to a large claim in equity for ocial service, and property be held ubject to a large claim in equity for ocial service, and property be held ubject to a large stand in the service and justice and practical Christianity.

When I speak of the silum work, I refer not to the ordinary work of the army, as seen in the different cities where our forces are toiling in their hells and in the open air with those tactics that have become so widely known. I refer to a special branch of our work which is carried on in the worst quarters of the great cities by a band of women who have in dress and home and daily life become "naturalised" in the slums, that they may reach and bless the helpless and outcast. They worst neighborhood, possess only the bareat necessities so far as food and clothing are concerned, their dress being of coarse material, over which they wear a common kitchen apron to keep them on the level with the poor women among whom they dwell. The army bonnet is discarded for a plain little black hat, and a shawl takes the place of the uniform coat.

The idea may perhaps enter the mind of some people that these women have been reclaimed from among the outcasts, and hence feel this life no sacrifice. That is not so. Our officers in the same class as our other officers, and knowing nothing of the slums and its horrors until they willingly embrace a slife of sacrifice among its denizens for Christ's sake and the sake of the poor and lost they would help and rescue. Their work is not to train and educate and elevate their neighbors; in fact, their neighbors, many of them, feel no desire nor inclination to be either educated or elevated. Their life-work is to comfort, to help, and to win them from sin to purity by loving efforts. They do not go to refine the vulgar or to dispense charity to the needy. They go to fight the cause of the misery, squalor and wretchedness—sin—and they do it in the most practical fashion. You would not find these girls giving tracts to the starving or preaching sermons in the desolate house where hungry, unwashed children crowd around the helpless mother's sick-bed; though their object is the blessing of the soul, and though their work is religious through and through,

MODERN INFIDELITY. Where does infidelity get its ideas of justice, mercy and truth? I say it has stolen them from Christianliy. Where do men get their ideals of morality except from the Bible? Dr. Frank Hamilton, who was the chief surgeon in charge of Garfield, said that no one so wounded has ever recovered. The real story of the search for Garfield's bullet has never been told. It was kept out of the newspapers, and it is not generally known that a number of experiments were made to locate it by electricity. The results were of no value to Gar-field, but they brought out inventions

"Soon after this," continued Prof.
Bell, "an old soldier was brought into the hospital. He had a very sore leg and there seemed to be no apparent reason for it. The man had been shot in the leg during the civil war. The ball had struck his shin bone, but it was thought to have glanced off. The wound soon healed and for twenty years the old soldier moved about on that leg without trouble. Then one day he stubbed his toe and the shock caused his limb to swell. It soon be-

He was told, however, that he would certainly lose his leg if there was no bullet, and that there might be a chance of saving it if it was found that he was mistaken. He then consented to any experiments the doctors might choose to make. Well, they tried the instrument on him. The machine acted in the same way that it did when it was applied to Garfield. The man was evidently made of lead, and the electric buzz sounded out whenever the machine was brought near him. They examined the bed and found the mattress had been fastened to the bedstead with tacks. They As I looked at the bullet the great It was a long steel needle with a wire attached to it. the balance buzzed. At last the doctors noted that he had a gold ring on the hand that held the instrument. This was taken off and the buzzing stopped. The instrument was then run up and down the man's leg, and when it came to a certain point it buzzed. The man was now put under the influence of ether and the flesh of his leg was laid open to the bone. Still there was no bullet. "The story of this expariment was sent to me," continued Prof. Bell.
"I was much pleased and I asked that I be allowed to have the bullet. Shortly after this Mrs. Bell was passing through New York. She stopped over night at one of the hotels, and while there she received a little pasteboard jewel box marked "Tiffany." HOW GARFIELD CIRCUMVENTED there were a number of interesting incidents connected with it which were cidents connected with it which were unknown to the doctors or the public. One of these was told here not long ago by Crump, who was steward of the White House then. Crump had to give a great deal of personal attention to Garfield. He was in the sickroom a large part of the time, and he has a number of interesting reminiscences of Garfield's last days. One of these relates to the orders which the doctors gave that Garfield must have no water to drink, except that furnished by the physicians. He was, however, very thirsty, and during the absence of the doctors and the nurses he begged Crump to get him a drink. Crump re-

When he returned Garfield began again, but Crump again refused. Garfield then commanded Crump to give him the water, but Crump pretended he was deaf. In talking of this time Crump said:

time Crump said:
"I didn't dare to give him the water.
I feared it would hurt him, and I held out as long as I could. At last, how-ever, he called me to him, and, with tears in his eyes, said: "'Crump, would you refuse a dying man a drink of water?"

"'No, Mr. President,' said I, 'but you are not dying.'
"'But, Crump,' he added, feebly, 'If you do not give it to me I will die, and hereupon he closed his eyes. He looked so feeble and sick that I couldn't stand it. Still, I couldn't disobey the doctors.

But, somehow or other, I just set a glass of spring water on a table by his when I returned if that glass wasn't empty! President Garfield looked un at me with a smile, and asked me what I meant by tantalizing him by placing a glass with no water in it within his reach, and him so thirsty. He did not ask for any more water that day and I am certain, if he did drink it, it did him no harm."

GARFIELD'S BACKBONE. I had an interesting chat with Maj. Ben Butterworth about Garfield last week. We were riding together from Washington to Pittsburgh on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and Maj. Butterworth grew reminiscent. He is, you know, one of the brightest of our public men. He has had a wide experience, and he was for years a close friend of James A. Garfield. The two served in Congress together, and But-terworth was one of the Ohio delegates to the national convention at which Garfield was nominated. During the conversation I asked him what he thought of Garfield's character. He re-peculiar of our public men. He was great in many things and weak in others. He had a great head and a great soul, but he had no more backbone than a fishworm. He could not say no and he could not hold anger. I verily believe that a man might have spat in Garfield's face without incurspat in Garfield snee without neutring his lasting enmity. Garfield would have promptly knocked him down, but before the fellow reached the ground he would have begun to pity him, and would have gone and raised him up, and told him that he was sorry that he had had to do it."

talk of Garfield as President long be-fore the convention met. He knew that there was an undercurrent in his favor, and we talked the matter over together before we went to Chicago. He told me then that he did not think that he ought to retain his position as the leader of the Ohio delegation and of the Sherman forces. It was just be-fore we got to Chicago that he said to me:

be looked upon there as the leader of the Sherman forces. Now, if this movement in my favor should develop into anything, whatever I do I will be accused of being false to Sherman. I don't like it. I am afraid of it, and I don't want to go to Chicago as his manager. What do you think?

"'As for me, Garfield,' said I, 'I don't think anything about it. I know that you cught not to go. If I were John Sherman I surely would not let you go. You know the story of Priscilla and John Alden. Well, I abould be afraid if you went to the convention for me it might turn out in the same way as did the courtship of Miles Standish when Priscilla asked Alden, "Why don't you speak for yourself, "Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

John?"
"Well,' said Garfield, 'I feel somewhat the same way, and I wish you would go to Sherman and tell him what you think. Show him how I am situated, and ask him if he won't relieve me from my promise and put some one else in my place.'

"I went at once to see Senator Sherman, and told him about my talk with Garfield. I put the matter just as strongly as I could, and urged him to release Garfield from making a speech. Sherman said he was not atraid, however. He wanted Garfield to present him to the convention. He said he was the leading man in Ohlo, and that as such he was necessarily the leader of his forces at Chicago. I told him that Garfield's prominence was just the reason why he shouldn't be the leader, and I tried to make him believe that the situation was a dangerous one. I could not do it. He told me that he had no fear of Garfield's loyalty, and that he would risk the Miles Standish business. The result was that Garfield-went to Chicago."

SOME TALKS WITH GARFIELD AT CHICAGO. "Was Garfield true to Sherman when he got there?" I asked.

was Garlied true to Sherman when he got there?" I asked.

"I think he wanted to be," replied Maj. Butterworth, "but what can you do in such situations? We had several conversations about the matter at Chicago. One was on the steps of the Grand Pacific Hotel the night before the convention met. Garfield said he didn't like the talk that his friends were making as to his availability. He said that he could not afford to accept the Presidency in any way that would leave a stain upon his personal honor. He said he wished the situation was otherwise than it was, and that he did not know what to do. I think he felt very much the same during the convention. I sat just behind him, and when they began to vote for him I could see that he was much frightened. He turned around to me and asked me what he should do. Said he:

"If I ask them not to vote for me."

If I ask them not to vote for me, "If I ask them not to vote for me, it will appear as though I were calling attention to myself, and my refusal will be a kind of a bid for them to vote for me. On the other hand, if I remain silent it seems to me as though I will be false to Sherman. What shell I do? What would you do, if you were I?"
"I then said that if I were in king place I would state that under no circumstances could I accept a nomination. A moment later Garfield got up and made a speech of this kind—at least he told his friends—in the convention that he did not want them to vention that he did not want them to vote for him. It was of no avail, how-ever, and the stampede soon occurred which made him the nominee.

GRANDMA GARFIELD. "You were there at the time," con-nued Maj. Butterworth, "and you tinued Maj. Butterworth, "and you doubtless have a vivid remembrance of that wonderful scene. There were many things, however, connected with it which were not published. As the vote was being taken, and as the point was reached when there was no doubt that he was to be the candidate, I leaned over to Garfield, and said: "'Well, Garfield, there is one woman I know who will be very happy over the result of this day's work." "Garfield turned around, his eyes filled with tears, and he said: "Ben, I wish you would go as soon as you can and telegraph to mother.' "Gen. Garfield." Maj. Butterworth went on, "had a great love for his

I remember calling there one day with Charley Foster. We were talking with the President, when Grandma Garfield came in and told James that she would like to have some money. President Garfield asked her how much she wanted, and she told him five dollars would do, where-upon he handed her a ten-dollar bill. As he did this, Gov. Foster asked Mrs. Garfield if she did not think she was getting a little extravagant in her old Garfield if she did not think she was getting a little extravagant in her old age. Grandma Garfield did not see that Foster was joking. She looked at the bill rather doubtfully, and said that she thought she could get along with much less if James thought it was necessary. There was a laugh, of course, and James told his mother not to worry, and that he could see the not to worry, and that he could easily

A COUNTERFEITER.

MAN NAMED SMITH, WHO MANU FACTURED MONEY.

Mould-Passed Them on Lodging house Keepers-Damaging Evi-dence Secured Against Him.

A clever counterfeiter, who has be-guiled many an unsuspecting man into taking his fraudulent coins, has at last been brought to justice through the efforts of Police Detectives Auble and Hawley. The man gives the name of Ed Smith, but there is no doubt that this is an alias, and that the fellow is an experienced and skillful sharper and all-round crook.

Three or four months ago people be-gan to come to the Police Station to de-nounce the fellow who had passed spurious coin upon them. The detectives have been working on the case ever since. Again and again they seemed to two of fresh air before turning in, So out of the door he would sally and that would be the last the swindled landlord would ever see of him.

Detectives Auble and Hawley have one of the bogus coins in their possession. When new it was as bright and shining as the real thing. A little handling, however, soon wore off the thin plating of gold and left the coin in all its leaden dinginess.

Messrs, Auble and Hawley have only just begun to gather the evidence necessary to secure the conviction of the prisoner. But already they have witnesses who can present extremely damaging testimony. One witness will identify Smith as having passed a counterfelt $5 gold piece upon her. Another will testify that she saw him at work making counterfelt money. A complaint has been filed in the Federal courts and Smith will be arraigned before United States Commissioner Van Dyke on Monday.

This is the fourth counterfeiting outfit Detectives Auble and Hawley have broken up in the past two years. On June 24, 1894, a band of four Italians, named John Dingliemo, Joe Triganni, Michael Elungo and Biagio Cilli, who had been manufacturing coin out near Prospect Park, were all captured and landed in jall. The quartette is now in Folsom, two of the men locked up for eight years and two for nine.

On July 10, 1895, J. H. Ormandy was arrested here for counterfeiting. He received a sentence of three years in Folsom. In November, 1895, Detectives Auble and Hawley arrested Robert E. Hayes for making a business of raising $2 bills to $10 bills. Hayes is now in San Quentin for a three-year term.

At 12 m., Tuesday, March 31st, the offer to supply the complete edition of the

ew Encyclopedia Britannica

At wholesale cost, together with free university advantages, will close. In reply to the many inquiries The Times wishes to state that its contract with the publishers, which makes it possible to place this liberal offer before the public, will expire, and that no orders will be accepted after that time, nor will The Times be enabled to extend to its patrons the free university advantages which are now being enjoyed by over 70,000 members in the United States alone. It will be necessary therefore to place your order for the Britannica, which is the text book of the League, before midnight, Tuesday, March 31st. The Times has received many congratulations for its enterprise and interest in securing these exceptional advantages for its patrons, but they must in turn congratulate those who have been wise enough to take advantage of the offer since, in these times, with competition so sharp, there can only be a survival of those who are mentally and morally the fittest. Some people would not take the wisdom of King Solomon as a gracious gift, though most people are ambitious to learn and know. Some will not take advantage of this unparalleled offer which insures them free, of cost, the assistance of a corps of the most learned educators who are maintained solely to assist the members of the League in the acquisition of the broadest knowledge, or to secure this grand edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica; the Repository of the wisdom of all the Kings of Knowledge the world has ever known.

OUR UNPARALLELED OFFER.

On receipt of the annexed coupon and One Dollar we will forward, freight prepaid, to any reader of The Times, the complete set in 25 volumes of the New Encyclopedia Britannica, any style of binding, allowing them to pay the balance in payments of $5 per month, or we will on the 10c a day plan, ($3 per month) deliver the first twelve volumes and as soon as they are paid for send, freight prepaid, the remaining thirteen volumes. We will also give each subscriber, free of cost, a certificate of membership in the Home University League for one year, a year's subscription to "Self Culture," the organ of the League, which embraces the lectures on university work, together with innumerable articles on the latest and best thought. Besides a "Guide to Systematic Reading in the Encyclopedia Britannica," outlining over fifty courses of study, and the Saturday Times and Weekly Mirror for one year.

This is a chance you cannot afford to overlook. Do not wait until it is too late and then regret lost opportunities.

TESTIMONIALS.

LOS ANGELES (Cal.,) Sept. 10, 1895.
Times Educational Department, Los Angeles, Cal.—Gentlemen: I am glad to say a word in favor of the Encyclopedia Britannica and the Times Education Crusade. The Encyclopedia is a library in itself for students, mechanics and others, and the plan you have arranged for home culture and training is a very commendable one. I heartily indorse the idea of bringing to our people an opportunity for self-culture

Hoping your efforts to place this in the hands of our people will be very successful. I am, yours very truly,
J. A. FOSHAY,
Supt. Los Angeles City Schools.

A WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT OF STANFORD.

"The Encyclopedia Britannica is the greatest library extant." The Times' edition, with its new maps and additional matter, is of very great value and the Home University League is destined to accomplish a good work.

SAN BERNARDINO (Cal.,) Oct. 25, '95. Mr. F. J. Brown, Los Angeles, Cal.— Dear Sir: I believe "A Guide to Systematic Reading in the Encyclopedia Britannica," prepared by Prof. Baldwin, is just what is needed to make the Britannica a success with all classes of readers as well as students. I shall be happy to receive a copy for my own use, and shall be glad of every opportunity to recommend it to others.

Very truly yours, Times-Mirror Company, Los Angeles, Cal.—Gentlemen: I have examined "The Times' Great Educational Crusade." I see no reason in the world why the plan should not commend itself, particularly to the five great classes suggested, namely: Students, artisans, merchants, professional men and agriculturists. Any plan which offers so rich a mine of information and such education at so small a cost, should be eagerly patronized by any intelligent community. Yours very truly, W. C. To make a success in life we must mingle with those whose influence will be a benefit to us, not alone for the sake of their companionship, but more especially to stimulate one another's ambitions and to share in one another's ideas. The Home University League seems to be shaped and planned on those lines, and will, without doubt, grow in popularity and become one of the great human agencies for educating the masses in a thoroughly practical way, and covering, as it does, such a broad field, it cannot fail in accomplishing a vast amount of good.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, Los Angeles (Cal.,) Mar. 12, 1896. Mr. F. J. Brown, Manager Educa-tional Department of The Times—Dear Sir: I have been much interested in examining Dr. Baldwin's plan for "Sys-tematic Readings in Encyclopedia Brit-annica." With the cheap edition of that magnificent work, the Britan-nica, now so easily obtainable, I know of nothing so valuable as direction and inducement for home improvement. The plan is broad in its conception and may result in great advance in the in-telligence of the people. Wishing you the greatest success in your grand

Mr. F. J. Brown, Manager Educa-tional Department of The Times— Dear Sir: I have examined with coninterest the "Guide to Systematic Rea ing in Encyclopedia Britannica" and I take pleasure in saying that, in my judgment, this book has made the Encyclopedia Britannica a full library for the man in almost every walk of life. Hitherto it has been largely, if not solely, the reference book of scholars and specialists. But Dr. Baldwin's book has made it possible for the humblest scholar to glean from it the foundations of scholarship in almost every department of knowledge.

I bespeak for it a generous patronage and trust that it may be the means of making this great storehouse of

Times Educational Department, Los Angeles, Cal.: The "Britannica" is a veritable mine of knowledge, which I have always admired for its richness; but it requires some literary skill to dig in such a mine unaided. However, Prof. Baldwin's admirable "Guide to Systematic Readings in the Encyclopedia Britannica" enables the unexperienced reader to work with great advantage and uncover innumerable nuggets and bonanzas of knowledge hitherto hidden. I am in hearty accord with the "Home University League," whose object is to lead people, old and young, to pursue courses of solid and instructive reading, especially along the lines that will perfect their life work and bring to them the happiness of a broader social culture. I can heartily recommend the "Britannica" for use in our homes and by the teachers and pupils of our public schools.

on the extraction of teeth.....

If you have a tooth, or several teeth to be extracted, it stands to reason that you would not go to a dentist who extracts a tooth only occasionally and who, for that reason, has limited facilities—only a few Instruments and is in fact not equipped for difficult cases or even simple ones; as a result, often breaking off teeth, lacerating the gums causing intense suffering, and being unable to remove the roots from the jaw, thereby destroying your sleep, shattering your nervous system, causing excruciating pain and finally the roots ulcerating, often resulting in lockjaw. "We extract from 50 to 75 teeth a day, and

ALL WITHOUT PAIN.

We have an Extracting Room, arranged especially for this work, with two chairs to do away with the tedious waiting which is experienced usually in other offices—while the dentist is putting in a gold filling for some one else and can't stop. We have the most complete set of instruments, many of which were made especially for us for certain cases (Dr. Schiffman's own designs) which enables us to extract any tooth, any broken-off roots or roots badly decayed way down under the gums, in fact, any tooth or root. We have an expert tooth extractor who does nothing else but extract teeth all day long, taking out 50 to 100 teeth and roots per day, which has made him so expert that no case baffles him. When persons have gone to other dentists and have had teeth broken off they usually are discharged suffering intensely, and finally find their way to us and we take out the mascerated roots without pain, almost instantly.

LOCAL ART AND ARTISTS.

The well-known and popular artists, Mr. and Mrs. J.G. Borglum, are expecting to leave this week for the East, en route to Paris. They take with them a large number of elegant paintings, mostly of California scenes, among which are a series of old mission views, which are like a maniature reproduction of the old missions themselves set upon canvas. Above them all is the perfect glory of California skies, so deeply blue, touched here and there with the spleador of a white cloud, through which the sunlight is falling as through a curtain. The old mission walls glow with a mellow softness that is full of warmth and tenderness, and there is a dream-like beauty about them that is full of the romance of the past. The treatment is very broad, and the details perfect. The perspective is fine.

and lofty height, and the wide sweep of plain are all suggested.

These pictures will be like apostles of California beauty, and they will not fail to fulfil their mission to win many for this State who shall come here to make homes among us and help us to build for it a noble future.

These pictures will be like a bit of California set down in the heart of busy New York and Paris, and they will bear with them something that will be nobly suggestive of our delightful atmosphere and the natural charm of our life here. Foreign eyes will feast on our beautiful cafions, with their running streams and giant boulders and the background of purple mountains; enter into the danger of the horseman pursued by Indians, and study the attractive simplicity of our old missions, and decide that, although our history is not as old as theirs, it yet has its charms of native grandeur, and the State a natural environment that camnot be surpassed for grandeur and loveliness.

We look for the return of these fav-

State a natural environment that cannot be surpassed for grandeur and loveliness.

We look for the return of these favorite artists in the fall or early spring, and meanwhile The Times wishes them bon voyage and the financial and artistic success which they merit.

Eugene Torrey has had on exhibition for some days at the photographic gallery of the well-known artist, John A. Lorenz, some very fine paintings which need only to be seen to be appreciated by the genuine art lower. Mr. Torrey makes nature speak her own language through his rare interpretations of her beauty.

Among his fine landscapes is a broad winter scene, the flat levels covered with ice and snow. The sheep stand out in the wintry whiteness their feet buried in the snowy blanket which envelops the earth, and so realistic is it that one almost feels the chill of the scene, and seems to stand in the heart of an eastern winter.

An exquisite picture is that of the young girl leaning against the brown trunk of a large tree. The soft sunset lights touch her pretty face, the atmosphere is all aglow, and it is a picture of rest, of youthfulness and summer charm. The two peasant girls hand in hand by the seashore, form the charming foreground of another attractive landscape. Behind them is the sweep of the billows, and the sea-green waters. The mobility of expression in the girls' faces lends them a life-like charm.

Mr. Torrey is also a fine flower painter, and he has a panel of roses which seem to lack nothing but fragrance to make them real. The display is large and varied and should attract public attention.

John A. Lorenz, whose gallery may be found at No. 317 North Main street, is doing some most effective photographic work, and is fighting a battle for art in photography which we hope he may win. We like to note the progress of art in this direction, for it is the progress of culture and the education of refined taste, by which the stranger will measure our advancement.

of 26; Sir Joshua Reynolds from a painting by himself. In the large sizes of photogravures is the magnificent reproduction of the "Old Dutch house at Matteawan, N. Y.," which figures in the annals of the American revolution, being midway between the two sections of Washington's army at Newburgh and Fishkill. It is a wonderfully fine picture. There are also a half length of Byron, nearly life-size, from the Phillips portrait, and a life-size three-quarter figure of Miss Josephine Rowan of Los Angeles, most generally admired of any portrait shown.

Titian's Dante and Beatrice hold the attention, as does Mary Chadworth, the heroine of one of Byron's purest poems, "The Dream."

The portraits of Miss Beatrice Harraden, which hangs upon the walls, are pronounced by herself as the only completely satisfactory ones ever taken. These are but few of the many shown.

Surely art is making a place for herself among the studies and the art safferies of Los Angeles, and we shall be glad to note from time to time the advance which she is making in our midst.

REVENUES AND EXPENSES.

The receipts of the treasury continue fall short of the expenditures, notwithstanding the efforts of Secretary Carlisle to figure out a surplus. This state of affairs is very discouraging, to say the least. As shown in a recent dispatch from Washington, in the months in which the Wilson law has been in operation, only three months produced any appearance of a surplus, while the total receipts of the eighteen months were $75,000,000 short of the total expenditures during that time. It looks as though the nineteen months, including March, would scor other failure in the matter of revenue production. In the first ten days of the month the deficit was over Treasury officials look deessed, and are silent when asked as to the prospect of getting revenue which has been promised month after month by Secretary Carlisle. He estimated on December 3, 1894, that the eipts of the year which is to end June 30 next would be $28,814,920 in excess of the expenditures. On De-cember 10, 1895, he admitted that he was mistaken in the former estimate 000,000. Already the deficit, including that of the Postoffice Department, is $25,000,000, and there are more than three months in which it must pile up re the end of the fiscal year for which he carefully predicted a surplus of $28.814.920. It looks now as if the as his estimated surplus.

It is a noteworthy fact that the Wilson law, while increasing the importations enormously, has fallen off in customs receipts, and, while increasing whisky tax enormously, has faller off in internal-revenue receipts. The following tables compare the receipts eighteen months with the first eighteen months of the McKinley law, both as to

It is encouraging to learn from Washington, as published in the telegraph columns of The Times yesterday, than an appropriation will be made by Congress for the improvement of San Pedro Harbor, also that the improvements will be made under what is known as the "continuing-contract system," which means that the work will go on steadily from year to year to such extent as the engineer in charge may consider most appropriate.

The improving of San Pedro Harbor, so that vessels of deep draft may enter the inner harbor, should mark the be ning of a new era in the commercial alstory of Los Angeles. The University section, which has elected to remain outside the corporate limits of the city, will learn its mistake in the near future, and will ere long be knocking at the city's gater for admission. Those sections which by yesterday's vote become a part of the city will derive benefits so pronounced as to demonstrate beyond dispute the wisdom of the affirmative side of the proposition.

The vote, both in city and suburbs, was much smaller than it should have been on a question of so great importance. But a majority of 23 is as potent and as decisive as a majority of 23,000.

Exit Equas.

(Ollver McKee, in Lippincott's:) Now that this equus ex machina has arrived, it caps the climax, so it has been said, of the steadily-growing modern tendency to get rid of the horse. In fact, we hear a good deal of the "future of the horse," as if there were serious doubt whether our falthful friend is not in danger of utter extinction. The cale and the trolley, is is true, have displaced him as the power by which our city cars are run. Only occasionally, is some poor and primitive outlying suburb or country town, can he still be found, and then it is usually in from of some dingy "jigger" car that have the still of the s were pained to hear of her death, which occurred early Tuesday morning at the residence of her sister, Mrs. S. ing people. The horse, it is thus apparent, has in a measure been superseded by science, and in some quarters it has been questioned whether he ever deserved the place in our affections he has held so long, and whether he is really so intelligent as we have believed him to be. He has been written down as a crochety, timid, unclean, and unexpeditious animal, with manifold diseases, tender of hoof and body, with faults which, once acquired, are never shaken off, and with a comparatively short life of usefulness when his first cost and the cost of feeding and care are considered. The man who is enthusiastic about cycling has for our ancient friend only sneers and libes as he scorches madily by on a smooth bit of macadam. The man of science points exultantly to ponderous tables of statistics proving that electricity and cables have driven the horse of nine railways out of ten and have opened the field for unlimited capital in the construction of roads with rapid transit facilities which were impossible in the horse era, and which have caused cities and towns to take on a wonderful expansion. One tabulation, which is said to be authoritative, informs us that there are in the United States 13,588 miles of street railway, of which 10,383 are operated by electricity, 1914 by horses and 632 by cable. The capital state of the companies is $748,614,206.

THE GUN TOURNAMENT.

second day of the tournament of the Los Angeles City Gun Club drew out a larger attendance than on the previous day. The shooting in general was not up to the standard of Friday, previous day. The shooting in general was not up to the standard of Friday, though some excellent scores were made, notably Vaughn's 24 in the team match. Mason, while he divided the honors of the day with Vaughn, missed a number of very easy trials, being rather off his usual good style. J. S. "Gold Dust" Fanning still leads the tournament in average, having missed 34 birds out of 275 shot at. Mason and Vaughn each killed 107 birds out of 125, tying for the day's average, Van Valkenberg getting second average with 105 out of 125.

The team shoot was a surprise to a good many. There were seven teams entered, the Gold Dust, San Diego, Santa Ana, Riverside, Azusa and two from Los Angeles. The surprise came in ot the general poor shooting, and the fact that Riverside downed the redoubtable Santa Ana team that has won the cup so often. The scores of the winning teams are as follows:
Riverside—Bruner 16, Packard 20, Taber 19, Chick 21, Smith 20; total 86.

Santa Ana—Mason 19, Vaughn 24, Proud 12, West 17, Parker 20; total 82.
Today, the big event is the medai shoot for the individual championship of Southern California. The entry list is large, and Elmer Mason, the present holder of the medal, will have to show up in his proper form to win it. Today will be the last day of this successful tournament.

Amateur Sport.

(Harper's Weekly:) We are just be-rinning here in the United States to inderstand what sport means. That American characteristic of pulsing ac-tivity has carried us along in sport. American characteristic of pulsing activity has carried us along in sport, as it has in every other branch of human endeavor, to the highest degree of development. We have pursued it with a restless, feverish energy that has refined our skill but dimmed our conception of its rightful purpose. It is really only in the last three years that we have begun to appreciate the wholesome properties of our games. We are only just beginning to realize that to make sport so much of a business is to take away its sport-giving qualities. It is only within the last two years our university faculties in the East have attained a certain grasp on these facts.

our university faculties in the East have attained a certain grasp on these facts.

We are learning to consider sport less seriously, and probably the cessation of Harvard-Yale football relations, more than anything else, furnished the needed lesson. We have passed through a football season without a Harvard Yale game, and live apparently in contentment. Previous to the experiment many believed that without the annual game life would be unbearable.

Much has been accomplished by the faculties of the eastern universities in the last two years, and great has been the revulsion of popular feeling in the last year against the spirit of mere winning that has given sport a feverish and uncertain life. More than all the rules has this common-sense of faculties, alumni, and undergraduates, too, done to put sport in its proper place. There is yet much for the faculties, alumni, and undergraduates, too, done to put sport in its proper place. There is yet much for the faculties, alumni, and undergraduates, too, done to put sport in its proper place. There is yet much for the faculties, alumni, and undergraduates, too, done to put sport in its proper place. There is yet much for the faculties, alumni, and undergraduates, too, done to put sport in its proper place. There is one all-important evil that must be rooted out, viz., extravagant charges of admission to games. I am firmly convinced that, more than any other single evil in the eastern college sport, convinced that, more than any other single evil in the eastern college sport, the gate-receipts question is the most pernicious.

The influence of such large receipts has been harmful; a most extravagant atmosphere throughout university ath-letics has been created, teams have been enabled to travel and be maintained af-ter the manner of professional risks.

stroys the better instincts taught by sport for sport's sake.

If not so much money came in at the gate there would not be so much to spend in training; there would be no private cars, no half-dozen rubbers, no special cooks, nor many of the other luxuries associated with the present-day college fitting for athetic contest. When college boys are prepared for their games in that manner, and football is a means to such an end, it ceases to be sport and becomes business.

Several of the ostriches at the Norwalk farm are paired off in separate pens for breeding purposes, and some of them have already commenced laying this season. A great many chickens are also raised on the farm and some of them use the ostrich nests to lay their eggs in. It is a most comical sight to see the "barn-door" hen preparing to lay among the enormous ostrich eggs, which weigh three pounds each, baiancing herself on one and trying to roll another under each wing. Lying side by side, the chicken eggs look most diminutive in comparison with those of the ostrich eggs for her own or to imagine that she had laid them. Only sixteen of the best feathered birds are corralled off for breeding, the others running together in a large field, several of them using the same nest for laying purposes. These eggs are blown and the shells obtain a ready sale, particularly at the present time, heing sent East as "California Easter eggs."

An Affecting Incident.

(New York Press.) "My dear," said the Emancipated Woman as she handed back the letter to her husband, who waited timidly behind the coffee-urn, "it is simply out of the question. I cannot entertain your father for an incidenite stay, and that settles it."

Seeing the tears trembling upon his lashes, however, she went around the table, and, taking his slight, delicate hand in hers, kissed him tenderly. "There, darling," she said, lovingly, "Tm sorry I spoke so harshly, Write your father if you wigh. It must be lonely for you all day while I'm down at the office. Good-by."

She was a loving wife, and, like so many others, she could not bear to see her husband's tears.

Nevertheless, as she seized her derby in the hill, she wore under her breath at fathers-likely in general.

The Spanish butcher who is now working overtime in the fair island of Cuba, one Weyler by name, insists has been charged, but rather emphatically affirms that he is the gentlest savage that ever cut a throat or stood people up in line against a blank wall and had the life shot but of them by his zealous cut-throats.

However, the party by the name of Weyler may insist and affirm as much as it may please him, there are colas it may please him, there are columns, pages and reams of printed testimony, well authenticated, to prove that he is not only the butcher as charged, but that he likewise toys with the truth in the style for which Eli Perkins is said to have filed a caveat.

It is a fact substantiated to the minds of all reasonable people that for years and years Cuba has been the Armenia at our doors. The most awful outises mitted against a weak and almost de-fenseless people. Children have had their brains beaten out by a drunken soldiery; the fairest daughters of the lovely isle have been raped by the lecherous brutes of the army of Spain; men have been beaten starved and murdered until the blades upon the stalks of cane have dripped with the rad dew of death; a people have been made shelterless, non-combatants have been warred upon, maltreated and hunted from their homes into the sea, and yet the American Congress sea, and yet the American Congress talks and argues and dallies in the security of the Capitol at Washington with as much unconcern as it would "chew the rag" over a scheme for rifling a soldier's widow of her pension or about an appropriation 'or opening a harbor at Indio on the desert.

Mr. Bayard, our Ambassador to the court of St. Jim, must have heard something drop with a dull thud along in the afternoon of last Friday. Hangman's day was an excellent day on which to express to the matchless toady of the age the opinion his countrymen have of him. Congress did a mighty good job when it treated Mr. Bayard to a good warm roasting, and it did it to a good warm reasting, and it did it mighty well.

It would seem as if the distinguished Prince's toady from Delaware would have learned from Lord Sackville-West's experience that a representative at a foreign court should know enough to keep his mouth shut, but so long as he didn't it was a thoroughly-pleasing thing to see Congress read the riot act to him in letters of large size and with a voice of thunder.

Of course, Mr. Bayard may experi-a voice of thunder.

Of course, Mr. Bayard may experience some surprise at learning that he is not a bigger man than the United States, but the surprise party goes.

Some years ago, when a train in the San Joaquin Valley was held up by road agents and robbed, and before the miscreants who accomplished the robbery were discovered, the Eagle suggested in this column that, although the job was being laid at the door of the Dalton gang, it would probably be found that this famous band of free-booters had nothing to do with it, but that the real culprits would turn out to be some of the "hardy yeomen" of the hog-thief belt of Tulare county or thereabouts. The Eagle was grievously roasted on that occasion by the papers and a presumany narmiess cuss who would not steal a lump of sugar from a lame fly.

After being pretty well "shot up," as the cowboy novellst has it, Chris was finally run to earth, and is now festering at Folsom, although most any one can think of a spot where he would fit better.

Well, another train-robbery has been attempted in the San Joaquin Valley.

Well, another train-robbery has been attempted in the San Joaquin Valley, and again at the very first sending out of the news was it asserted that the instigator of the outrage was one of the Dalton gang, but it all turns out just as it did before. The robber was another industrious denizen of the hog-thief belt, who chopped wood in the day-time and put up jobs to rob trains at night, along with some others of as tough a gang as lives outside State's prison in any country.

All of which goes to show that a concepted affect outside is head to as the hog-thief belt of Tulare county eradicated from the map. It is a con-stant menace to the joys of travel along the level and sometimes levely floor of the San Joaquin Valley, for, to all appearances, it is quite considerably possessed and inhabited by a tough and conscionceless gang of criminals, possessed and inhabited by a tough and conscienceless gang of criminals, who derail trains and murder people simply as a diversion—a sort of pic-nic, so to speak. The hog-thief belt of Tulare county is at least a mighty good thing for the sleuth hounds of the law to keep their eyes on.

Kid Thompson has gone and left us for the northern part of the Stats. He will shortly take a short-cut journey thence to a warmer climate than Southern California or else Justice has slipped not only one cog but several. When the wretch who roasted poor Charley Masters to death against the boiler-head of a locomotive is properly and adequately made good and dead, dead, things will be righted in some respects, as much as they have been at any time since the war.

Whoop! Anna Shaw is up and acoming. The fair and maidenly-modest creature who thinks man is a brute, and not only a cumberer of the earth, but a cucumberer, is shortly to appear for the great and glorious cause of suffrage for the sex, at so many dollars an appear—and expenses.

And lo, when she looms up on the scene, man will take to the brush, if he has any "savy" about him, and tif he wishes to take a fool's advice he will stay there until Anna blows over.

When Anna is loose in a community, man, as such, has little business being alive or in putting in an appearance, for there is certainly not room for Anna and man at the same time, on the same earth.

Anna and man at the same time, on the same earth.

By-and-by, Mr. Man, Anna will have had her say—at so many dollars a say, and expenses,—and then you can sneak out of the chaparral and begin holding a part of your own at least, but while Anna is on the tapis, and also on the ground, Bre'r Man he had better lay low.

I do not doubt that you all have noticed how beautifully that fund for buying a home for the newsboys has been growing of late. There's over $3000 in the fund now, and piles more $3000 in the fund now, and piles more money in sight.

The Sants Fe, good fellows, are going to run a train, "directly," to help the thing out with a thousand dollars or so; Gen. Campbell is going to deliver one of those eloquent and able lectures of his in aid of the good case; Manager Dailey of the May Nannery company hopes to get some of the "bleeds" of the town to play a same of burlesque ball for the same object, and still other things are being thought over and planned about looking to the securing, not only enough of "unds to buy the home, but enough to give the dear ladies, who are looking out for the boys, a tidy sum to back them up the boys, a tidy sum to back them up for a while in supporting the home after it is bought and paid for. It's a glorious scheme, and the kindly, it's a giorious scheme, and the analysis generous, noble people who have chipped in to help the thing out never did a handsomer act in all their lives. God bless 'em, every one.

A great and growing need in Los Angeles at the present time is an institution where young girls can learn to be helpful to themselves and those around them; a place where they can be taught all kinds of work, such as cooking, sewing and laundry work; in short, everything that will prepare them for a life of usefulness in the house-keeping line. Many homes now wretched could have been made happy had the wife and mother been taught these useful arts when young. Very soon such an institution will be inaugurated.

"ANNEXATION" WINS.

OF THE CITY.

A Big Vote and a Hot Contest in the

There will be a "greater Los Ange-The friends of annexation "won out"

The friends of annexation "won out" yesterday, in one of the hottest election contests that has been known in Los Angeles or Southern California, for several moons, Victory was secured by the narrow margin of twenty-three votes. In the suburban precincts of Vernon, Pico Heights and Rosedale, there were 1015 ballots audited by the election officers, or an excess of 71 over the city's entire vote.

The total vote in the city was $41, conceded to be ridiculously light, in view of the voting population of the city. The meagerness of the vote is emphasized by comparing it with the suburban vote. In the three precincts it consisted of only 601 ballots, or but little more than one-half of the vote polled yesterday. The feeling in Rosedale and Vernon ran very high, and the district embraced in these suburbs was fairly "combed" to bring to the polls every man who had the right to cast a ballot. The annexationist forces were well organized, but the "antis" had made almost as thorough preparations for the bettle, and fought with vim and vigor throughout the entire day.

At each voting place there were at

At each voting place there were at least a score of workers, and the arguments and counter-arguments became at times so warm as to almost bring on violence.

VERNON'S FALL DOWN.

VERNON'S FALL DOWN.

In Vernon, where annexation had a handseme majority of 92 votes at the last election, the "antis" had so worked that when the votes were counted, they had won the battle by 10 ballots. This revolution of sentiment was attributed to the work of the saloon element, which was alleged to have the backing of the wholesale liquor dealers in the city. Reputable men who worked at the polls all day in Vernon declars that money was freely used to influence the votes of "fellows of the baser sort." Sald one gray-haired election official, "If it hadn't been for my position, there would have been a broken head or two, while those fellows were getting in their work."

The vote in Vernon yesterday stood 133 for and 143 against annexation.

ROSEDALE'S VOTE DOUBLED.
But it was in Rosedale that the tug

ROSEDALE'S VOTE DOUBLED.
But it was in Rosedale that the tug of war took place. People had never before guessed that so many voters existed in the place, when the counting of the returns indicated that 491 hallots had been cast during the day. Out of this number, the judges threw out 18, leaving a total of 473. Of these votes 237 were in favor of annexation, and 236 against, giving a majority of one for a "greater Los Angeles." At the last election there were but 248 votes cast in Rosedale, by which it may be seen that in Rosedale, at least, the entire population turned out en masse, to speak their mind on the subject of annexation.

WHERE VICTORY WAS WON.

WHERE VICTORY WAS WON. WHERE VICTORY WAS WON.

It was the voters in Pico Heights who saved the day, and by piling up the neat little majority of 32 votes, made victory possible for the annexationists. There was no lack of enthusiasm manifest at the polling-place in this precinct, and as in the other suburbs, a remarkably large vote was polled. Exactly 266 men deposited strips of pink paper in the ballot-box during the day, which is 102 more than cast votes in Pico Heights at the last election.

FEELING IN THE CITY.

FEELING IN THE CITY.

Throughout the city, intense apathy prevailed, so far as interest in the election was concerned. There was no argument of any sort at the polls, and the voting was accomplished with a decorum that would have been appropriate at a funeral. The only feature of note, in the election, was the vote polled in the Elighth Ward against annexation. In this ward, which is more representative of the saloon element than any other in the city, the vote stood 71 against, and 45 for annexation. In every other ward of the city, the cause of annexation received a majority vote. The polls closed at 5 o'clock, and by 6:30 o'clock the city vote had been recorded in the office of the City Clerk. The returns from the suburbs Clerk. The returns from the suburbs did not arrive until 3 o'clock. The vote in detail is here given:

with the City Clerk-Smells in the City Hall in Evidence.

At the City Hall yesterday official business was at a standstill. Meetings of the Finance and Supply committees were held, but nothing more than the approving of sundry requisitions and demands was accomplished.

At the Courthouse a burglary trial was on in Department One during most of yesterday, in which John Conley was convicted of yet another burglary. The headworks case ground along with unabated vigor. A divorce case was tried behind closed doors in Judge McKinley's court. Another water suit Kinley's court. Another water suit was commenced before Judge York.

AT THE CITY HALL.

OF VARIOUS SORTS. Petitions and Complaints Filed with the City Clerk. As the various large sewer districts that have been in process of construc-tion for several months, approach com-pletion, the defects in their construcpiction, the derects in their construc-tion, and the mistakes made in levying the thousands of assessments, are made apparent in the petitions and com-plaints that are daily filed with the

Yesterday the Security Loan and Trust Company, Silas Holman and Mrs. Lord each filed petitions, asking for re-lief from a double sewer assessment on their lots in block E, of the Bonnie Brae tract. Assessments for a sewer in Burlington avenue have been paid by the petitioners, and they are now asked to pay for a sewer in the alley in the rear of their premises. These petitions will come before the Council April 13, when a time for their hearing will be set.

ANOTHER MAN WANTED. When City Assessor Hull asked the Council several weeks ago for twelve deputies, to assist in making the an-

Council several weeks ago for twelve deputies, to assist in making the annual assessment of city property, the Council decided that if ten men were able to do the work in 1895, ten men could do it in 1896. Accordingly the City Assessor was allowed ten men, to be employed about four months in his office. The Assessor was quite dissatified with this procedure, but was forced to accept the inevitable. That he has not, however, given up all hope of an extra man, is evinced by the following petition to the Council, filed yesterday with the City Clerk:

"To the Honorable City Council: On account of the increased amount of work in this office over last year, I find that it will be impossible for me to complete the assessment roll in the prescribed time, which is the first Monday in July next, with satisfaction to myself and justice to the taxpayers of the city, with the same amount of help that was allowed me last year. I, therefore, most respectfully request your honorable body to pass an ordinance allowing me to employ one more deputy from March 21 to July 6, 1896, inclusive, to be employed as mortgage clerk."

EXTENSION ASKED FOR.

The South Side Irrigation Company filed yesterday the following petition Council for an extension of

to the Council for an extension of time on their contract:

"The undersigned respectfully requests forty days additional time to complete the cement sewer pipe line on San Pedro street, south of Washington street. The pipe we are laying is well made and all of it now four months old, which we thought better to lay than at three months old, as is usually done."

The bondsmen of the irrigation company, J. S. Slauson and Henry Martz, consent to and request this extension, if it is granted without prejudice to their liability as bondsmen.

"IN A HORRIBLE CONDITION."

"IN A HORRIBLE CONDITION." J. H. Abbott, who is interested in Broadway property has addressed to the Council the following letter:

"Allow me to call your attention to the horrible condition of the storm drain at the southwest corner of Fourth street and Broadway. This shaft has stood full of putrid water for nearly a week and overflows every day, and runs along the gutter and is particularly offensive. I have been to the Street Superintendent's office twice, and was told that the city furnishes only five men to attend to the sewage and that they would attend to this corner as soon as possible. Will you kindly see that this nuisance is abated, some time this year, or next? No hurry."

CITY HALL ODORS.

Plumbing in the Municipal Headquarters Again Out of Joint.

Hall is once again asserting itself and at the present time is very much in evidence, by reason of the foul smells that emanate from nearly all the closthat emanate from nearly all the clos-ets in the building.

It will be remembered that Plumbing Inspector Burgoin, assisted by the Health Officer, made a detailed exam-ination of the plumbing in the build-ing several months ago, and their com-bined reports were to the effect that a renovation of the entire system was necessary.

a renovation of the entire system was necessary.

As this would have cost the city about $5000, the Council begged off, and the Health Officer, moved by the merciful bent in his disposition, did not force the municipal authorities to make the repairs that the situation demanded. It was suspected at the time that a "job" was being put up on the Council in the matter, though no proof of any such manipulation was ever produced.

of any such manipulation was even produced.

The closets throughout the building are beginning to again send off their disgusting odors, and as the heated months of summer approach the con-dition of things will presumably grow

Morse.

Health Officer Steddom last Monday notified the Council that the closets in the Public Library were not in a condition to be used. The matter was referred to the Sewer Committee, but the committee has taken no action in the case, nor prepared any report to the Council in the matter.

THE HEADWORKS CASE.

Fred Eaton Gives Some Important

Department Four is still echoing t the sounds of the opposing minds in the case of the city against Messrs. Pomeroy and Hooker. The City Attorney is gradually bringing the defendants into a belief that they have some very hard cold facts to disprove when witnesses are called in rebuttal.

Fred Eaton occupied the stand for the entire morning, and led the jury, Fred Eaton occupied the stand for the entire morning, and led the jury, figuratively speaking, through the underground bed followed by the subterranean water. He went back first to the mountain watershed, and gave the surface and subterranean flow as it exists under a large portion of the country. He stated that for fifteen miles of mountain watershed there were twenty inches of surface flow, while the underground flow was but one and one-half inches. From this Mr. Eaton claimed that there was not any such amount of water under the surface as is claimed by the defendants. If there were any such amount it would be quite impossible for the flow. To pass the narrow neck of the valley at the entrance, a point where the railroad enters. Here the plaintiffs have bored several wells and discovered bedrock at the bottom and walls of rock on either side, leaving a narrow space for the great flow claimed by the defendants to pass through. If there were any such flow nearly all of it would have to come to the surface to get out of the valley; yet the surface flow of the river at no point below or immediately above this narrow neck. shows any material increase in volume whatsoever. Judge Shaw interrogated face flow of the river at no point below or immediately above this narrow neck shows any material increase in volume whatsoever. Judge Shaw interrogated the witness a number of times for his own benefit, showing his complete grasp of the importance of certain points made by the City Attorney.

Burr Bassell, who was employed by Engineer Compton to sink the many wells necessary for the making of the profile maps, was the next witness examined. The City Attorney showed a disposition to allow him to analyze his evidence as to the contents and strata of the holes in the ground, but Mr. Chapman entered an objection, Judge Shaw sustained the objection, Judge Shaw sustained the objection, and so the City Attorney, with a Mephistophelian smile, led the witness up to the exhibits, and bade him go carefully through each well, explaining depth of well, width of strata, amount of water, kinds of material found, etc., etc. Mr. Dunn then remarked that he had some work to do in the other room, and gracefully retired, leaving the jury to the mercy of Mr. Bassell's facts and figures, which he recited off with rapidity enough to turn the heads of the toughest of them Little further information was elicited, the court adjourning early.

Compton, named Harbell, sued Dr. Hannon on some notes, and, at his instance, Constable Marleau attached some stock and implements belonging to Mrs. Banning, claiming it as Hannon's property. A suit to replevin this property was brought by Mrs. Banning's attorneys, but as she was in Burope at the time, her' testimony was wanting, and the case went against her. It was appealed to the Supreme Court, which reversed Judge Van Dyke's decision, and ordered a new trial. The defense demanded a jury, which rendered a verdict against Mrs. Banning. This verdict was set aside by Judge Van Dyke, and a new trial ordered. Marleau appealed from the order, but the appeal was either dismissed or abandoned, and the case came into court a third time. The defendant again called for a jury, but this time the verdict was set as jury, but came into court a third time. The de-fendant again called for a jury, but this time the verdict was given in favor of Mrs. Banning for the recovery of the property, or of $500, its equiva-lent in value. The report that the Constable had won the suit was a mis-

Attorney Howland Recovers the Money He Paid.

A lively and somewhat noisy suit was going on yesterday afternoon in Jus-tice Young's court, in which Walter F. Haas, Esq., held the fort alone against Haas, Esq., held the fort alone against five attorneys arrayed against him. As all talked at once during the most of the time, it was a little difficult to understand just what the row was about, but an occasional glimpse of the framework of the case peeping through the floods of words, set forth the fact that Attorney Charles T. Howland was suing G. M. Rogers and Mrs. Mary A. Rogers, to recover $96 as the balance due on the price paid for the merry-go-round at Wannock's Park The merry-go-round had been attached by Rogers, and sold under the execution. Howland, Rogers's attorney, bid in the machine at the sale, paying for it out

John Conly, alias "Nig" Graham, the pal of the convicted burglar Fred Forrest, who is now serving a term in San Quentin was tried yesterday before Judge Smith and convicted of burglary in the first degree. This is the second charge against Conley, who was convicted a few weeks ago of burglary in the second degree, and sentenced by Judge Smith to the maximum punishment of five years in the penitentiary. This second conviction will be likely to let Conley in for a term of some length. The man is a tough-looking citizen, who bears his record in his face. He started life in the reform school, and has already served four terms in the pentientiary. With all these facts in consideration it took the jury hardly ten minutes to agree upon the verdict to be rendered.

THE STURDY DIVORCE.

Robert Allowed to See the Children

Judge York yesterday granted Mrs. Alice G. Sturdy a divorce from Robert A. Sturdy, the Boyle Heights black-smith who was accused not long ago of grievously battering his better half. He was discharged by the court from the accusation of battery, but the divorce proceedings went on, and cul-minated in the desired separation. Mrs. Sturdy was awarded $40 a month all-mony, and the custody of the three children, their father being allowed to see them every Sunday.

The doors of Judge McKinley's court were closed yesterday afternoon dur-ing the trial of a divorce suit brought by Mrs. Mary S. Smith against Alfred T. Smith, on the grounds of extreme ruelty. Whatever it was that constituted the crueity, Judge McKinley did not consider it sufficient to warrant a severance of the matrimonial bonds be-tween Mr. and Mrs. Smith, and find-ings and judgment were ordered for the defendant.

ATTACHED HIS WAGES. ary Wilson Secures Support for

Her Child.

A queer case was on trial yesterday before Justice Young, being a suit brought by Mary A. Wilson to force a married man named Walter A. Doug-las to support her child, of which she las to support her child, of which she claims he is the father. He denies the allegation, but she prevailed on him some time ago to sign a contract for the payment of $10 a month toward the support of the child. After a time, these payments falled, and the mother brought suit against him and obtained judgment for $60. An execution was levied upon the wages of Douglas, who is in the employ of a railroad company. He declared they were exempt from attachment, having accrued within thirty days before the execution was levied. It was found out, however, that the company retains as security the levied. It was found out, however, that the company retains as security the wages of an employe for the first fif-teen days. Of this time Douglas had worked nearly nine days, and the court gave Miss Wilson a judgment for the amount, holding that it was

Suit for Injunction to Prevent Its Diversion. Another water case on trial yester-day before Judge York was that brought by J. W. Sullivan against the the diversion of water in the San Di-mas Creek. The San José Ranch Commas Creek. The San José Ranch Company has constructed a system of waterworks at an expense of $80,000, about three miles up the stream from the land owned by Sullivan, through which the creek flows. The company claims riparian ownership of the water in the stream both above and below Sullivan's land, and also a right-of-way derived from W. T. Martin, the former owner of the land. The object is to use the water for supplying the San José ranch and the San José addition to Lois Angeles county, and Sullivan sues for

VICTORIOUS AT LAST.

Third Time Proves the Charm for Mrs. Banning.

The suit on claim and delivery just won by Mrs Mary H. Banning, has rather a complicated and stormy history compared with the small amount involved. Mrs. Banning owns a large ranch near Compton, which she had leased to Dr. Hannon. A butcher in Compton, named Harbell, sued Dr. Hannon on some notes, and, at his instance Constable Markey at the fact of the company at the court of all ment and the sole charge and march 28, burther stated that, if all went well, Mrs. Watterson some potes, and, at his instance Constable Markey at the court on March 28, arriving in Los stated that, if all went well, Mrs. Watterson some potes, and, at his instance Constable Markey at the court on March 28, arriving in Los stated that, if all went well, Mrs. Watterson some potes, and, at his instance Constable Markey at the court on March 28, arriving in Los stated that if all went well, Mrs. Watterson some potes, and, at his instance Constable Markey at the court of the company at los and the court of the company and the sole charge and management of the lower court in the case of the San Pedro Lumber Company to the Child.

NOT THAT PROPERTY. Suit to Prevent Interference

Judge Van Dyke yesterday denied the motion for a non-suit in the case of I. A. Beckett et al., vs. D. M. Welsh et al., a suit for injunction to prevent interference with a homestead in an action to recover on an old judgment. It developed that the nomestead was not a part of the property against which the execution had been levied, so it was agreed that the defendant assign the judgment set forth in the complaint to the plaintiff, I. THOSE MYSTERIOUS CRIES.

Mr. Kohler Says His Wife Ate Too

Mr. Kohler, who occupies the rooms over Laughery's harness-shop, states that the cries heard from his rooms Thursday evening were from his wife, who was sick at the stomach from eating ice cream. The explanation may be the truthful one, but it is scouted by those who heard the screams. They were plainly audible at the corner of Fair Oaks avenue and Colorado street and at the opposite corner, and when the police appeared upon the scene and asked the meaning of the noises Mr. Kohler made the statement that the woman was "laughing and having some fun."

No light was produced and so suspicious were the officers concerning the explanation, that it is stated that a watchful eye was kept upon the premises the entire night. As this is not the first disturbance which has occurred in the same place, the explanation made is taken with "a grain of salt."

Mrs. C. F. Holder and Miss Creer had charge of the photograph table, and Mrs. Kimball, in a tradiling violet crépe, poured chocolate. Virginia Rowland, a dream in an Empire gown of blue, with Greek fillets of gold, and gold garniture on the neck and short sleeves, was lovely to look upon. Miss Eleanor Craig wore an empire drees of brocaded green and gold, and Miss Dobbins wore a Josephine gown of white and silver. Mrs. Evans, to whose artistic taste the scheme of decoration was due, wore a white empire gown, over which was a silp of gold-spangled tulle, apple green being the garniture. Miss Merwin was a picture of the fragele beauty which the French poets love, in a trailing gown of lavender crépe, and bertha of cream lace, and Miss Cora Eldred wore a Josephine gown of pure white, with shoulder frills. Miss Hubbard wore a lavender Empire gown, and Miss Ford was dressed in a pale green of the same style, with a magnificent stomacher of pearls and emeralds.

The gowns one and all were in such perfect character with the idea of the entertainment, that one might have well imagined that the happy days of the Empress Marle Louise had returned, and that the splendid empire of Napoleon was flourishing, with all of its luxury and artistic tendencies.

The Los Angeles Mandolin Club discoursed music, and at 4 o'clock tableaus were given: "Little King of Rome," Grosvenor Wotkyns; "The Broken Pitcher," Miss Greble; "Madame Le Brun and Child," Miss Fowler and Elizabeth Wotkyns; "Queen Louise," Miss Craig; "La Tosca," Miss Beil Tilden; "Josephine," Miss Margaret Greble: So perfectly were the historical characters represented, that the likenesses were startling, Miss Craig was the beautiful Louise, as she comes down the stairs in that world-famous painting. Miss Margaret Greble was the ill-fated Josephine, as she was in the prime of her charm, and Miss Beil Tilden so perfectly represented the lovely La Recaimer, that an involuntary burst of applause, and "Ohs!" in a suppræssed tone, were heard all over the room. Miss Blumer as La Tosca, and the representatives of the other characters were admirable, the effect of the pictures being enhanced by the large gilt frame and the gauze drawn b between the tableaus and the audience. Miss Greenleaf was highly complimented upon the success of the OFFICE OF THE TIMES. by Los Angeles, March 21, 1896.

BANK CLEARANCES. The clearances of the Los Angeles banks for the past week amounted to $1,098,338, as compared with $948,475, for the corresponding week of 1895.

The clearings of the principal cities of the country, as published in The Times of yesterday, show an average increase of 2.4 per cent. Los Angeles fell behind that week, showing a decrease of 2.5 per cent., the total clearings for the week being $1,153,957, as compared with $887,994 for Portland, Or., which dity showed the large decrease. which city showed the large decrea of 23.4 per cent.

PUBLIC FUNDS. There is a considerable amount of complaint in regard to the order made by the State Board of Bank Commissioners requiring all banks having the custody of any public funds to keep such deposits intact, and not to mingle them with their other moneys. The Investor, referring to this matter, says:

"It is pointed out that while the commissioners in making such an order are acting strictly according to law, yet the hardship caused is a serious one. The large amount of money paid in by property-owners twice a year for taxes is absolutely withdrawn from circulation for the time being, and thus causes an artificial stringency, while profitable to the money-lender, is hard upon the borrower.

"A scheme should be devised by which banks that receive public funds should be at liberty to give security, by the deposit of interest-bearing bonds in a State depositary, to be created for the purpose, and be thus allowed to keep in circulation the public moneys they may have on hand. The idea of arbitrarily locking up so large a portion of the circulating medium in an iron vault, where it lies deprived of the use for which it was made, savors more of the practice of the middle ages than of the nineteepth century."

RAISIN-GROWERS COMBINE. The raisin-growers of Fresno appear to be earnest in their determination to make a fight for better markets. It is cer-tainly about time that they should do something, for prices have been slid-ing down of late with dangerous rapid-ity. At the same time consumers are paying good prices throughout the

The meeting of growers and packers held at Fresno recently was a representative one. It is proposed to form an organization of growers and packers capitalized at $1,000,000. Sales of raisins will be made f.o.b., instead of consigning them all over the country. The organization will sell through on central head, and prices are to be made subject to the approval of a committee of three, representing the growers' interests. Reasonable advances will be made to the growers for picking purposes, either on the delivery of the raisins, or in cases of special need to be given in loans on proper security before delivered. Such an organization as this, if conducted in a business-like manner, may accomplish much good.

CANNED-FRUIT SWINDLE. It is claimed that several canning companies in Baltimore regularly brand their canned fruit with California labels. The canned fruit with California labels. The fruit is inferior in all respects to that which is put up in this State, and is calculated to do much damage to the reputation of California canned fruit among those who do not know the difference. The California Fruit Grower suggests that all California canneries should agree upon some distinct mark in addition to their individual brand, which all cans of fruit put up in this State might carry. The Fruit Grower says:

which all cans of fruit put up in this state might carry. The Fruit Grower says:

"Some appropriate distinctive trademark might be copyrighted for use on California canned fruits, and the fact fully advertised, so that the trade everywhere would soon be able to discover any frauds attempted by eastern canners. The consuming public would also soon recognize the difference between the genuine and the imitation, and thus the demand for first-class California canned fruits would be stimulated, greatly to the benefit of the fruit industry. Such a move would also act as a check upon such of our own canners as might be disposed to put upon the market an inferior pack of California fruits. In all its aspects it would seem that the matter of palming off bogus products of eastern growth and packing as genuine California articles, should be looked into from the stand-point of an association of California ears as Probate outly, Mass,, and has been county, Mass, and has been companied by his father and mother, "Yes, sir." COPPER MINES. There is an increasing demand by capitasists for good copper properties and anything of this kind that shows merit is eagerly snapped up. This is not surprising when the brilliant record of many big copper properties is taken into consideration. For instance, the celebrated Calumet and Hecla mine, shares in which have a par value of $25, is quoted in the market at from $300 to $310. A number of other leading copper mines, though not standing as high as this, are selling far above par.

on the depository banks by the Treasury Department for 30 per cent. of the government money held by them on bond account, resuited in the payment to the New York sub-treasury of over $5,000,000. The avowed object of the treasury in making the call was to preclude any approach in exchange rates to the gold-shipping point, by stiffening the rates for call money. Exchange was heavy, but the lack of inquiry was the chief cause of that condition. Call loans advanced to 4½ per cent. This was the maximum figure, and the bulk of transactions were on the basis of 3@3½ per cent. Time funds improved to 5 per cent., ranging up to six months, but the volume of business was only moderate, and toward the close lenders were less exacting as to the quality of collateral. Despite the increase in the treasury gold reserve to above $123,000,000, and the sharp increase in railroad earnings, notably by the St. Paul apprehension as to the

NEW YORK, March 21 .- The NEW YORK, March 21.—The New York Financier says this week that the statement of the associated banks of New York City for the week ending March 21, reflects the prevailing shrinkage in the money market. The loan expansion for the week was not quite $1,000,000. The outward movement of currency still continues, and it is the prevailing sentiment that the return tide will not set in until April, and perhaps later. There are signs, however, that this flow is nearing its end, and while there has been a fair demand from western centers, exchange rates are easing slightly. The outlook, however, is for a firm money market for some time to come. The April settlements are drawing near and until these are over the situation must remain somewhat in doubt. The government depository banks last week turned over $4,000,000 into the treasury in response to the call for a 20-per-cent, payment, and as the sum remaining to be paid is a very large one, the limit within which the payments are to be made has an important bearing on the general situation. The excess reserve is down to $19,000,000 and an imperative call for the balance of the government deposits would have an embarrassing effect on the market, as the reserves are in many cases at a low point. The treasury is, however, treating the banks liberally in this matter, and no fear, it is said, may be apprehended from such cause. The first call was more in the nature of a request than an order. With the usual adjustment of spring balances and a resumption of the flow of money toward the east, the outlook will clear rapidly. Another point to be considered is the probability of exports of gold. The exchange market gives no sign of a sudden advance, but what will happen if there is to be a large increase in the available supply of money at the end of the spring season is not difficult to conjecture.

CHICAGO, March 21.—In wheat there was a good trade and moderately active market, the features being the active and heavy covering by shorts. The market was rather excited for a time and sold up fully 1 cent, but lost part of the advance before the close. Opening prices for May were at a slight decline due to the light exports shipped from both coasts for the week, only 1.—592,000 bushels, against 2,401,000 bushels the week before, and 2,988,000 bushels the same week last year. This showing had a depressing effect for the moment and there was enough selling in it to carry prices off a triffe. But the predictions of a cold wave the arrival of a good many bad crop reports and the rather sensational publications of that character in a morning paper soon turned the sentiment. There was active covering by shorts. The political situation abroad was also reported as increasing in gravity, and this increased the desire to shorts to cover and the market had a season of decided strength. But after the most urgent shorts had covered trade fell off and then early buyers began to realize. There was also considerable short selling under which the grain was lost. The Argentine shipments for the week were 1,066,000 bushels supply Monday is expected to show from 300,000 to 400,000 bushels decrease. Trading in corn was limited and fluctuations narrow. Oats were quite active for Saturday and in sympathy with other grain markets, ruling firm and higher. Provisions were helped by the strength in the live-stock market and opening prices were at a slight advance. The market soon became dull and the strength of the grain markets prevented any recession.

MINISTER SAVED AFTER 31 YEARS.
TYRONE (Ark.) Sept. 16th. 1895.
Gentlemen: I must say that for 31 years I have been a perfect slave to tobacco, and can safely say, as a minister of the grospel, that two boxes of No-To-Bac has completely cured me of any desire for the poisonous weed, so that I feel like a man once more in: life.
Yours truly,

DRIVEN OUT OF TEXAS.

CLOVERDALE (Ind.) Aug. 10th. 1895.

Gentlemen: One year ago, while living in Henrietta, Tex. I became so nervous from the use of tobacco that it was a burden to me to keep still in one place any length of time.

I bought one box of your No-To-Bac and used it according to directions, and gained 15 pounds in two weeks. It cured me of the use of tobacco and also of nervousness, for which I am thankful.

Yours respectfully,

J. E. FRAIZER.

MAYOR CARLSON STUDYING NE-VADA RAILWAY RECORDS.

Kate Moyne, Accused of Trying to Wreck Santa Fe Trains, Bound Over to the Superior Court With-out Bail—A Chinaman's Troubles.

SAN BERNARDINO, March 21.—
(Regular Correspondence.) Mayor "Billy" Carlson of San Diego was in town today in the Interest of the Newada Southern Railway, and the California Eastern Railway, into which the former has been merged. The doughty Mayor claims that work on the extension of the road will be begun within ninety days, and that before next winter there will be cheap coal in California, brought over the road from Utah. He claims that there is now ample money back of the road to crowd it to completion at an early date. The road recently went through a receiver's sale, and is subject to redemption by the former owners up to April 16, for the sum of $306,288.63. It is said the road has cost $750,000. It is asserted the money for this redemption will be in hand before that date. The indications are, however, that there will be some litigation to determine who has the right of redemption, if those who claim a knowledge of the intentions of the buyers at the receiver's sale are as well informed as they claim.

After the sale of the road by the re-

After the sale of the road by the reelver, Isaac D. Blake sold the road to the California Eastern Company.
In this was, of course, only the sale of the right of redemption. It is now laimed that this sale was irregular, and does not convey the right of reemption.

MONRO MONROVIA.

MONROVIA, March Zi.—(Regular Correspondence.) The people here are still enthusiastic over the electric-light proposition, and hope to see apparent differences adjusted and active operations commenced without further delay. It is a needed enterprise, which will pay from the start, and a guarantee of its establishment at once would decide many people to locate permanently, who are now in the country looking for a suitable location, and who are accustomed to enjoying such modern conveniences. Visitors are here every day who declare the San Gabriel Valley to be the choicest of all residence places, and Monrovia the ideal spot, but with all our natural attractions they still desire the artificial advantages to which they are accustomed, and ask pertinent questions along these lines which strike home to our citizens and point forcibly to immediate duties. That a matter of such vital importance to Monrovia's welfare should be tied up by litigation just at this time is most deplorable, but there is still a ray of hope that it will be untied in time to secure the benefits of this season's immigration before it is driven elsewhere. Our people are public-spirited, and can ill afford to have their plans thwarted and public interests permanently injured by delay that has not in it a showing of good reason or hope of justice.

The Imaginary Railroad Magnate is Not Saying Much.

SAN DIEGO, March 21.—(Regular Correspondence.) The supposed agent of Collis P. Huntington, Mayor William H. Carison, is not saying much about his aspiration to be the next man to represent the Seventh Congress District at Washington. The Salt Lake and Southern California Railroad, in which he is so deeply interested, appears to be resting on its cars for the time being. Within a month from now, if the plans of the concern are carried out, the $175,00 necessary for the acquirement of the link of road, etc., from Blake toward Salt Lake may be paid. This sum is the amount stated by Carlson. Others have said that $400,000 is necessary for the acquirement of the link of road, etc., from Blake toward Salt Lake may be paid. This sum is the amount stated by Carlson. Others have said that $400,000 is necessary for the acquirement of the link of road, etc., from Blake toward Salt Lake may be paid. This sum is the amount stated by Carlson. Others have said that $400,000 is necessary for the acquirement of the road into operation. There is a disinclination to provide any large cash subsidies for such a road. The increasing freights at this and other Southern California points are believed to be sufficient inducement for a road to build in here on its own hook. During 1895 over seven hundred and fifty-five carloads of produce alone were shipped from this county. During 1896 the shipments ought to amount to nearly twelve hundred carloads because of the increase of the fruit product. If carried along on a legitimate basis, Mr. Carlson's efforts to secure a railroad will doubtless receive proper support and he will be given all the credit that he is entitled to.

Judge Towner pronounced judgment in the case Saturday, by fining Mr. Stephnas $250 and providing further that if the fine was not paid within the next seven days, the said Stephnas should be imprisoned in the County Jali until the fine is duly satisfied, in the proportion of one day's imprisonment for every $2 of the fine. Before judgment was rendered, however, C. S. DUARTE.

DUARTE, March 21.—(Regular Correspondence.) The exchange is finishing navels and commencing on seedlings today. Favorable returns continue to come in, some of which is a happy surprise to shippers. One car of second-grade seedlings billed to Chicago and afterward diverted to Evansville, Ind., has just sent returns amounting to 400.75 net to growers for the car, while a car of Duarte-Monrovia navels recently sold in New York city at auction, and in competition with three other cars of California oranges, brought $1088.55. The other cars were, two from Riverside and one from Los Angeles, and sold on an average of $1 less per box.

Abram J. Miller, an attorney of Brewster, N. Y., attended the New York auction sale mentioned and bought a box of Duarte oranges. He also took notes on the sale and wrote concerning the same to his brother-inlaw. Prof. James A. Foshay of the Los Angeles schools. He says the Duarte fruit was poorly packed and not well graded, sind yet it was plain to be seen by what was said and done that it was the first cholce of every buyer present. He mentioned the prices as stated and said the fruit was displayed, one box of each lot, and as people came in to examine the fruit, I could see that there was a general sentiment that the Duarte fruit was by far the finest, so that they would be bantering each other as to their inability to get any Duarte oranges that day, not having money enough, and what was said in praise of the oranges was very flattering. "The highest price paid was $1.40, and the lowest $2.90. From what I saw, and from my conversation with Mr. Schneider, the agent, I am satisfied that if extra pains is taken in packing and grading fruit, so that the sample boxes show up as they should, there will be a large increase in the amount of money paid for such oranges. If a fruit is fancy they will pay a fancy price for it, and if it is put up in a careless way the growers must take their prices accordingly."

at the Pasadena Float Will Be. Street Poles Will Be Covered with Palm Leaves—Many Entries for the Floral Parade.

When the merchants of this city returned from their visit to the carnival at Phoenix a few weeks ago, they declared that the merchants of the latter city had promised to return the compliment by witnessing the flesta. That the promise will be fulfilled to the greatest extent is shown by the following letter, received yesterday by President Francis:

"The Chamber of Commerce of Phoenix thanks you heartly for the invitation to join you in your celebration of La Flesta de Los Angeles. There invitation to join you in your celebration of La Fiesta de Los Angeles. There seems to be a very general desire here to 'go inside' upon that occasion and there will probably be a large delegation. It is impossible to even approximate the number now, but as soon as feasible you will be informed, and in season, we hope, to enable you to make the necessary increase in your police force. It is highly probable that all of the delegates will be 'tagged,' so that in case any of them become lost they can be easily identified. With the hearty wish that Los Angeles will come out at the big end of the horn with her magnificent flests, permit us to remain, yours very truly, L. H. Goodrich, president; Bruce Perley, secretary."

The committee having in charge the matter of a float at Pasadena has selected a handsome and artistic design, submitted by Will E. Chapin. The float represents an enormous Gold of Ophir rose, in which a fairy is resting in the center. Butterflies will swarm around it and Pasadena's loveliest budsbeautiful young girls—will grace the float. It will be one of the most triking features of the parade.

A novel feature in the cavalcade of caballeros will be the presence of a number of young ladies on horseback, equally daring in their horsemanship. The ladies will be dressed in correct Spanish costume and the entire group will form a characteristic part of the procession.

will form a characteristic part of the procession.

It is desired that those who are willing to donate palm leaves, to be used in decorating the streets, send their names to Frank Wiggins at the Chamber of Commerce. The Committee on Decorations proposes to use palm leaves liberally on the poles in the streets, and donations will be greatly appreciated. If the names of donors are sent in, somebody will call for the leaves when they are needed.

A large number of entries for the floral parade have been received by the committee, and indications are that the floral show on the last day of the flesta will eclipse in numbers and in artistic designs any previous display of this character.

The general desire has been expressed to see the fire department in the parade. The public has a great pride in

of this character.

The general desire has been expressed to see the fire department in the parade. The public has a great pride in the "fire laddles" and the engines and apparatus and the handsome equipment of the department, together with the gallant fire fighters would make a good and beneficial impression on the strangers who witness it. This city takes pride in its fire department, and it has been urged that the flesta provides a splendid opportunity to show it to the world.

The Executive Committee feels under great obligation to Caspar Orena, the owner of the square on Hope and Sixth street, and to Mr. Grant, the lessee, who have donated the use of the block until after the flesta. The construction of the tribunes will be commenced during the week.

The details of the first day's programme have been decided upon. In the afternoon the various flesta clubs will assemble at a certain point, and dressed in their fancy costumes and masked, the participants will commence to loot the city in order to present the Queen with the offerings of her faithful subjects. The procession will be led by the Park Band of San Francisco, and a bugle corps. At a signal the whistles of all the factories, mills and locomotives will disperse a chorus, announcing the commencement of La Fiesta. The maskers will enter mercantile houses and load upon immense truck such articles of wear and luxury as a queen generally possesses. If, perchance, the police should interfere, the bluecoats will be at once seized and thrown into an iron cage, that will be constructed on a heavy truck.

AN ANGRY SLAVONIAN. Boso Zivorich Pounds and Kicks an Bozo Zivorich was arrested by Deputy Constable Mugnemi Friday afternoon for a cruel and unjustifiable asupon a man whose gray hairs should have protected him from the young Slavonian's anger.

There are many Slavonians in Los

There are many Slavonians in Los Angeles, a large proportion of them ignorant, unable to talk English, poor, but yet hard-working and industrious. As a rule they are peaceable folk, but almost all of them belong to one secret society or another and occasionally the factional feeling runs high.

Zivorich and a Slavonian named Rade Pasin, both of them ordinary lay-laborers, belong to opposite factions and there has been considerable bad blood between them. Thursday Zivorich went to the old man's room, in a block at the corner of Ord and New Main streets, and picked a quarrel with him. The matter ended in his knocking his opponent down and then pounding and kicking him. Deputy Constable Mugnemi declares a belief that Zivorich would have killed Pasin if the other men had not interfered. As it was, Pasin was badly bruised and sore all over, and so he swore to a compaint charging Zivorich with battery. The offender was arrested on his return from work Friday afternoon. Ball was fixed at $200 bond or $50 cash, which the Slavonian at once furnished. He will be tried Tuesday.

A SOLDIER'S TRIBUTE.

"I was with Gen. Meade at Gettysburg," said William Thompson of the Soldiers Home, "and it was there I lost my arm and nearly lost my life. At noonday of the great battle our detachment of artillery was stationed on the north bank of that memorable stream. We had been keeping our guns hot for several hours, and the air was fairly hissing with shot and shell. The order was passed for us to drop farther down the stream to a safer point, and in making all haste to get in motion, I remember a great flash and a sharp pain in my shoulder, and when I awoke the surgeon was bandaging my wounda. 'It's only a miracle that saved you, my poor fellow, he said. 'The shot that carried away your arm threw one of the ordinance wheels onto your shoulder and saved your life, my boy-kept you from bleeding to death while you lay here all the afternoon.' It was a miraculous escape indeed, and in it I always see the hand of Providential mercy. Five years ago I began to suffer from kidney troubles, and since that time I have spent many hundreds of dollars and consuited many physicians. They pronounced it Bright's disease, and at last told me that my case was hopeless. An old army friend took me to the English and German Expert Specialists, and it was surely a grand victory, not the less dear than the one at Gettysburg, for they saved my life, and today I am strong and well, without a vestige of my old trouble. All the swelling has gone out of my legs, and I can walk milles without resting every block, as I used to do. I owe it all to these eminent specialists, and will be pleased to have it known to all who suffered as I have.
